AMERICANS PRESENT DRASTIC PROPOSALS TO END OPIUM EVILS

Ask League Conference to Limit Production to Medicinal Needs and Control Traffic.

BISHOP BRENT MAKES PLEA

Forceful Action Is Necessary Since Hague Convention Has Accomplished Little, He Says.

PRAISES WORK OF LEAGUE

Official American Delegate Extols Ideal of the League Itself and the Peace Protocol.

GENEVA, Nov. 19 (Associated Press).—A series of proposals striking at the very roots of the evil caused by the misuse of narcotic drugs was presented to the International Opium Conference here today by the American delegation, headed by Representative Stephen G. Porter.

Only by the most drastic restriction at the point of production, the Americans held, could the quantity of illicit drugs reaching the people of the world be shut off or curtailed. Consequently they proposed prevention of a surplus production of raw opium and also of the coca leaf, from which cocaine is extracted. Furthermore, they would absolutely prohibit the distribution of heroin, an opium derivative, holding it unnecessary in medical or scientific practice.

Besides the inhibitions on the production of narcotic raw material, various proposals were advanced for its handling in commerce where necessary.

It was recommended that imports of raw opium for the purpose of making prepared opium, which is generally used for smoking, be curtailed in those countries where such use is now permitted, the amount imported being reduced 10 per cent. each year until all importations ceased. It was also suggested that the contracting parties take measures for the gradual suppression of the manufacture of, internal trade in and the use of prepared opium.

A central board was recommended to which the contracting parties would each year furnish estimates of their requirements for all purposes, the signatory countries undertaking to prohibit importation in excess of the quantities necessary.

Bishop Brent Presents the Proposals.

Following the presentation of the American plan, Bishop Charles H. Brent of the American delegation delivered an address to the assemblage in explanation of the program offered. He said that the plan was submitted at this juncture in order that the delegates might have an opportunity "to study, criticize and amend the proposition it contains."

Bishop Brent emphasized that the American program was in the nature of "suggestions" and was an attempt to translate the ideals of the United States into terms of national and international practice. Its purpose, he declared, was that "to which every signatory of The Hague Convention is pledged—the ultimate suppression of the abuse of opium and cocaine and their derivatives, and the restriction of their production and manufacture within the requirements of medicine and science."

The speaker explained that the American program voiced the popular demand, as well as that of Congress, and was supported by organizations representative of all of the United States. He said that if it were urged that the Americans are expecting to cover too much ground at a stride, one could answer that such a course was less dangerous to the interests of the human race than an attempt merely to mark time or daily.

He insisted that the public demanded forceful action because The Hague Convention, which has been in existence twelve years, has borne relatively little fruit.

"We lay our case before the convention without reserve and without ulterior motives," the Bishop said. "There is no guile hidden beneath our service. If we are bold in our proposals, we are also frank in the presentation of them.

"No longer can we honestly say of slavery or of drug addiction what Canning once said of chattel slavery: 'I abjure the principle of perpetual slavery, but I am not prepared now to state in what way I would set about its abolition.' Our plan is one of preparation for action."

Money the Crux of the Problem.

Bishop Brent declared that money was the crux of the restriction of production and manufacture within the limits of medical and scientific needs. Eliminate the economic difficulties, he said, and the rest would be easy. He insisted that the conference must take into account the embarrassment that would be caused certain countries by the suppression of opium production.

He argued that China needed encouragement and the aid of her sister nations to overcome opium and other narcotic abuses and said that if the countries where the Chinese live in large numbers deal with the matter courageously, it would have its effect on China. He said the question was being asked why profits from the sale of opium in countries where such sales are legal could not be used to combat the narcotic evil. He declared that the world awaited the answer to this question by the countries which claimed that the traffic in prepared opium is not practiced for revenue.

Pleading for higher standards, Bishop Brent said that the League of Nations

Women in Colorado Town Rout Both of Major Parties

CRAIG, Col., Nov. 19.—Women rule in Sunbeam, forty-five miles west of Craig, official returns canvassed yesterday show. Upsetting the plans of the Democrats and Republicans in the recent election, a women's party appeared on election day and succeeded in electing two constables and one Justice of the Peace. The names of the three women were written in on the ballot.

Mrs. Nellie Templeton was elected Justice of the Peace, displacing her husband, who ran as a Republican. Miss Julia Clark and Mrs. Bessie Morea were elected constables. Mrs. Morea's husband, a candidate for Justice of the Peace, endorsed by both parties, was the only one to escape the women's landslide, and his wife will serve as constable in his court.

DENY INTENTION TO SCRAP PROTOCOL

MUST CONSULT DOMINIONS

Will Seek to Satisfy France on Security—Arms Conference May Be Delayed a Year.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The statement that the British Government has decided to scrap the Geneva Protocol is declared in official quarters to be unwarranted.

The idea seems to have been deduced from the fact that the Cabinet has requested the Council of the League of Nations to omit the Protocol from the agenda of its forthcoming meeting. But this, it is pointed out today, is capable of a different explanation.

The Protocol is of such far-reaching importance that it is impossible for the new Cabinet to have formulated its policy toward it yet, especially as it desires to consult the Dominions concerning it and to consider their views.

But if the British position toward the Protocol is not yet formulated, one feature of the Government's policy is already announced in influential quarters as settled. The Government will undoubtedly, if it sees fit to propose modifications, put forward some other suggestions which it is hoped will satisfy the French desire for security.

Must Consider France's Security.

It is recognized that the Protocol has been approved by France as providing her with a safeguard against aggression and that it is regarded by her as the price Great Britain had agreed to pay in return for Premier Herriot's concessions to Prime Minister MacDonald. Consequently it would be impossible for this country, if it is to satisfy its ally, to propose any modification of to Protocol without considering how it would affect France and fulfill her desire for safeguards.

Some alternative must be put forward, and this will take some time to formulate with due regard to the necessities of not only Great Britain but also the Dominions and France and no immediate announcement of policy is likely at present.

Indeed, according to one rumor, the Government may decide to postpone the matter for several months. It may declare that it is not ready to enter into the proposed disarmament conference next Summer and announce that it intends to discuss the Protocol again at next year's meeting of the League Assembly.

The London Times says "It is felt that the question of French security especially concerns the British Government. It is recalled that the French Government this year made certain concessions on the reparations question and so facilitated the application of the Dawes report on the clear understanding that sympathetic consideration should be given to the problems of security and interallied debts.

"It is also recalled that the lapse of the agreement made jointly with the United States in 1919 to guarantee the security of France has left a sense of obligations unfulfilled by Great Britain in respect of the defense of the French frontier.

"For these reasons it is probable even if the British Government should find it impossible to accept the Geneva protocol as it stands, that special attention will be paid to those aspects of Euro-

CAIRO, Nov. 19.—Sir Lee Stack, Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian Army, was wounded in the streets of Cairo today when he was attacked by seven assassins, who, after hurling a bomb at his automobile, opened fire at short range with automatic pistols. The assassins escaped.

Accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Captain P. K. Campbell, the Sirdar was going this afternoon in his motor car from the Egyptian War Office to Sirderia for luncheon. The car had just passed the Ministry of Public Instruction and had reached the main street leading to Kas Durelain and had drawn up to allow a street car to pass when seven Egyptians of the student class, in effendi dress, who were standing in the line on the pavement, all simultaneously opened fire.

Sir Lee received three wounds—one through the abdomen, which glanced upward, one in the foot and one in the hand. His aide-de-camp was wounded in the chest—the chauffeur, an Englishman, who was slightly wounded in the legs, drove on immediately to the Residency.

An unexploded Mills bomb was found on the spot where the attack occurred. The attack was made at such short range that four empty cartridge shells were found on the floor of the car and the car itself was riddled by bullets, one piercing the hood, three the side near the chauffeur's seat and four the back seat, huge dents being made in the metal casing by the close impact of the bullets.

The assailants, each of whom fired several rounds, drove off in two waiting private cars. Two Englishmen on motorcycles who happened to be near followed them up for some distance, when the assailants got out of their car, ran up a side street and disappeared, but the Englishmen managed to secure the number of one of the cars.

Within an hour Zaghlul Pasha called at the Residency to express his regrets. He was received by Lord Allenby. Other ministers called at the Residency later.

Zaghlul Informs the King.

Leaving the Residency, Zaghlul Pasha went to Abdin Palace to inform the King of the attack on General Stack. The King immediately sent his Grand Chamberlain, Said Zulfikar Pasha, to the Residency to make inquiries and to express the King's deepest regrets and sympathy.

The attempt to murder Sir Lee Stack has created a great sensation. The public here is dumfounded and indignation is generally expressed, while on all sides the crime is characterized as senseless and cowardly.

The afternoon newspapers had no time to do more than report the news, but one of the Wafd organs in a brief note expresses the deepest regret at the act, which, it says, the country strongly repudiates.

Since the news became known there has been a steady stream of callers of all nationalities at the Residency, for General Stack is most popular and much esteemed by Egyptians as well as by the European communities. Prominent among the inquirers at the Residency were Egyptian officers, many of whom served for a long time with the Sirdar and have known him ever since he first entered the Egyptian Army, and these appeared deeply affected.

El Agram publishes an interview with Zaghlul Pasha. "The attempt," said Zaghlul, "has painfully affected me, not only because of Sir Lee Stack's fine qualities, but especially because of the horror it inspires. Up to the present I cannot suspect the class from which the criminals come, but I am persuaded that the authors of the crime do not desire the good of the country. There is a principle of Roman law which says that the author of crimes is he who profits

May Yohe's Husband Wounded by a Bullet, He Warns Police Not to Trouble Her

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Captain John A. Smuts, husband of May Yohe, one-time possessor of the famous Hope diamond, was mysteriously shot today in a lodging house at 129 West Concord Street, where the couple have lived for two weeks. The bullet entered his left breast and although his name is on the danger list at the City Hospital, physicians believe that he will recover.

A note found in the house indicated that Captain Smuts planned to take his own life. He told the police, however, that he shot himself accidentally while cleaning his revolver.

At his bedside at the City Hospital he said:

"It makes no difference who shot me. If you make trouble for my wife I will maintain that I shot myself, no matter what you may say. I'm a game fellow. I can stand this. I love my wife."

Although Captain Smuts, who is a cousin of General Jan Smuts of South Africa, told the police the accident happened at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, it was not until after 9 o'clock last night that the shooting was brought to the attention of police or physicians.

Mrs. Smuts then summoned Dr. John Corey of 780 Beacon Street. After giving the wounded man first aid treatment and sending him to the hospital the physician notified the police and several patrolmen went to the house.

According to the police, the bullet entered the left breast and came out through the abdomen and some question was raised as to whether it was possible for the shot to have been fired by Smuts.

Mrs. Smuts verified her husband's story of the accidental shooting and said they first believed that the wound was only superficial. She said that she was in another room at the time of the shooting.

In a search of the house, the police found a note reading as follows:

"I intend to shoot myself because I have been unkind to my wife."

It was signed "J. A. Smuts" but the wording of the note and the signature were in different handwriting.

Captain John Andy Smuts is May Yohe's third husband. "Madcap May's" most famous marriage was her romantic union with Lord Francis Hope of the House of Newcastle, whereby she became possessor of the noted Hope diamond, a jewel the possession of which is said many times to have led to exciting adventures or dire mishaps.

It was long after the musical comedy star had been known as a favorite of King Edward VII. and long after she had been the wife of Captain Putnam Bradlee Strong, son of the one-time Mayor Strong of New York, that, with her luck at a very low ebb, she married Smuts, a distant cousin of General Jan. Smuts.

Two years ago Miss Yohe returned to the stage as a singer with a jazz band.

STOCKS IN UPRUSH GAIN HIGHEST LEVEL

Three records established during the last thirteen days of excited stock market trading were exceeded yesterday in a market which for velocity and breadth has never been equaled in the history of Wall Street. The first of these records was in sales on the New York Stock Exchange. They totaled 2,358,871 shares for the day, a high record. The nearest previous figure was 2,309,435 shares, established on Nov. 12.

The second record smashed was in the number of issues traded in in one day. Trading yesterday was in 566 separate issues. The previous high had been 555 issues. The third new high record made was in the average, which reached 102.49 for representative industrial and railroad issues. This figure had never before been reached on the Stock Exchange.

The superstition regarding "thirteen" evidently was disregarded in Wall Street yesterday. It was the thirteenth day of tremendous market activity since the election and was the day on which most records were exceeded, due almost entirely to the great increase in outside participation which has developed in the last fortnight. Buying orders for stocks rolled in yesterday from all parts of the country and there appeared to be little discrimination in the classes of shares sought. Railroad issues were in the lead, but there was exceptionally good outside inquiry for stocks of practically every industry.

Despite the great demand from buyers, profit-taking got the upper hand. This was evident in the averages. The railroad stocks closed with a net loss of .11, and the industrial issues with a net loss of .42, the entire market closing the day with a net loss of .27, or slightly more than ¼ of 1 per cent. for stocks as a whole.

The profit-taking was considered a perfectly logical consequence of the market advance since the election. The higher stocks go, the greater is the pressure of profit-taking.

Bears Feeling for the Top.

In addition to those who are satisfied with their profits and desire to cash them in, is the selling by bear speculators who are "feeling for the top" and are trying to profit by a decline. This pressure has been more apparent in the last two or three days and was particularly noticeable at the close of trading yesterday.

Wall Street's "best hour" yesterday was its first. From 10 to 11 o'clock a greater volume of orders flowed in than could be handled. The overnight accumulation of orders to buy "at the market" was tremendous, it was not until an hour after the opening that a good idea could be gained of the extent of the buying. Trading in the first hour was at the rate of 3,000,000 shares for the day, and stocks of all sorts established new high records for the year.

An example of the overnight advance was furnished in American Can, one of the speculative favorites, which usually moves within ½. The stock opened up 2¼ points. Great Northern preferred opened up 2 points. All through the list of active speculative issues stocks opened up from fractions to as much as 2¼ points from the closing prices of the previous day.

In the first two hours of trading the tickers fell hopelessly behind and it became impossible for traders who depend upon the ticker tape as their guide to do business. At one time the ticker was twenty-eight minutes behind the market. However, as business slackened off later in the day it caught up with quotations and at the close was only six minutes behind. Nevertheless, during the greater part of the day trading was in a more or less chaotic state and traders on the floor of the Stock Exchange had a great advantage over those who tried to trade in stocks through brokerage offices.

Seldom has a wider opening on the Stock Exchange been witnessed than that of yesterday. There were all sorts of accumulated orders to buy stocks on

NO RECAPTURE BEFORE 1925

Railroad Company Now Considers Proposal to Use Lower Level, Giving City Present Line.

Negotiations between the Board of Transportation, of which John H. Delaney is Chairman, and the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company for use of the latter's tubes in shaping Mayor Hylan's plan for an independent municipally owned and operated subway under Sixth Avenue found the city under the disadvantage of being unable to recapture the Hudson tubes before 1935, it was revealed yesterday.

As a result it became apparent that the success of the Mayor's plan, in so far as building a subway under Sixth Avenue from Thirty-fourth Street south was concerned, depended on reaching a working agreement with the tube company. It was said that several propositions had been up for consideration, and while agreement at one time seemed almost hopeless it appeared to be less remote now.

Mayor Hylan, speaking last night before the American Society of Civil Engineers at the Engineering Societies Building, indicated that the plans of the Board of Transportation would provide adequate transportation along Sixth Avenue and said that the plan, originally conceived by Borough President Julius Miller, proposed the tearing down of the elevated structure and the widening of Sixth Avenue eventually from Fifty-ninth Street to Canal Street.

Proposal Now Being Considered.

One of the suggestions made in the negotiations between the Transportation Board and the Hudson & Manhattan officials was said to be a proposal that the city build another set of lines under Sixth Avenue, beneath the tubes of the Hudson & Manhatan Company, between Ninth and Thirty-third Streets, making a double-decked subway there, the city to take over the present lines for part of its own system and the Hudson & Manhattan to use the lower level. This plan, it is understood, is still under consideration by the Hudson & Manhattan Company.

The negotiations between the city transit experts and the Hudson and Manhattan officials were brought about by the decision of the Board of Transportation to reject the Transit Commission's projected route to Washington Heights on Eighth Avenue and to decide on Sixth Avenue. That decision, while made because it was felt that Sixth Avenue was the better route of the two, was further fortified by the fact that the Mayor was more or less committed to a Sixth Avenue subway and the property owners, eager to have the elevated structure removed, offered to share a part of the expense of construction.

It was in the next step—that of meeting the engineering problems involved—that the Board of Transportation, it is said, met with the practical considerations that brought it into negotiation with the Hudson and Manhattan officials. These considerations grew out of the unusual underground situation at Sixth Avenue and Thirty-third Street. There not only do the Hudson and Manhattan tubes terminate, but alongside of them and underneath them are the lines of the Brooklyn-Manhattan subway and the Long Island Railroad.

Negotiations Begun in July.

Analysis of these factors made it clear that, unless some arrangement for the use of one of the present tubes could be made, the lines of the city subway at that point would have to be driven so far underground that elevators would be necessary. It became obvious then that the way out would be to use, if possible, the existing lines of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad between Thirty-third and Ninth Street, along Sixth Avenue.

Negotiations with the Hudson & Manhattan officials were begun last July. The first proposition is said to have been a proposal that the Hudson & Manhattan abandon that part of its uptown route running along Sixth Avenue and leave the way clear to the city to take in that line as part of its projected system. Officials of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad are said to have been distinctly disinclined even to discuss

BOTTLE OF POISON MISSING

HE SHIFTS TO SUICIDE VIEW

Tells How Hindus Burned Themselves—Funeral of Victim Is Held.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 19.—Unwilling to agree to the suicide theory advanced by Coroner J. A. Murphy and accepted today by the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, husband of Addie Sheatsley, 50 years old, whose cremated body was found in the furnace of their home in the Bexley district Monday, County Prosecutor John A. King planned tonight to continue his investigation, seeking to establish a murder motive.

During his examination yesterday the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley refused to agree to the suicide theory, but today he called Prosecutor King to his home shortly before the funeral hour and expressed the belief that his wife had taken her life.

Prosecutor King expects to go to Canton tomorrow to question Mrs. Sheatsley's aged mother, who until March of this year resided with her daughter. Examination of a brother of the dead woman was interrupted by the minister's request that the prosecutor come to his home.

Further mystery was injected into the case today when Mrs. G. R. Allen, who lives about two miles from the Sheatsley home, reported to the Prosecutor that on the morning of the tragedy a man having the appearance of a maniac visited her home and asked if she would give him an old overcoat.

Upon being told that she could not, Mrs. Allen told the Prosecutor, the man asked to be shown the furnace room. She refused and the man jumped from the porch and ran up the street in the general direction of the Sheatsley home. Police tonight were looking for the man.

Some Credence in Maniac Story.

While placing little credence in the story, belief was expressed by some officials that a maniac might have thrust Mrs. Sheatsley's body into the furnace.

In explaining to Prosecutor King the cause for his reversal of opinion from murder to suicide, the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley pointed to statements of alienists who declared that insane persons will cast themselves upon flames. He also pointed to religious works which relate that Hindus cremate themselves while in a fit of religious fervor.

He said also that he had come to the conclusion that a woman the size of his wife could crawl through the 14-inch square door, and expressed the belief that her health might have caused her to become violently insane, with the chronic nervousness to which she had been subject as a contributing factor.

While Prosecutor King does not deny that it would be possible for a person to enter such a furnace, he contends that the person could not survive the intense heat long enough to close the doors.

It has been definitely established, he said, that the woman entered the door feet first. He declared that investigation revealed that it would be impossible for her to do this without using something as a step or a support. All persons who have been examined have declared that there was nothing near the furnace when the body was found that could have been used for this purpose. The diameter of the fire bowl is 26 inches and the door is 30 inches from the floor.

Another theory advanced today by some authorities was that Mrs. Sheatsley committed suicide and that her body was placed in the furnace by some one.

The movements of the minister on the afternoon of the tragedy were thoroughly checked this afternoon by police, who announced they agreed exactly with statements made during his examination yesterday.

Police verified his statement that he left home about 1:30 in the afternoon and returned home about 4:45. In the intervening time he visited a bank, bought a hat, visited the hospital and made several pastoral calls.

Statements of the four children, Milton, 20; Clarence, 18; Elizabeth, 14, and Alice, 10, are being checked by the authorities.

Clarence, according to his story, was the last of the family to see the mother alive. He related that he left home shortly after his father. Author-

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Nov. 19.—The Japanese Government is planning to erect a large wireless station on the Island of Yap in the Pacific Ocean at a cost estimated at 1,500,000 yen. Construction work on the new station is expected to be started early next year. It was stated in official circles this evening that the plan of the Japanese Government is in accordance with the treaty between the United States and Japan concerning Yap and other mandated islands in the Pacific Ocean, which was signed at Washington at the time of the Disarmament Conference.

While Japan will be in possession of the wireless station, it was said here today that all other interested nations will be able to share the communication facilities and may make use of the station for relaying purposes.

FUSIONIST MEETING CALLED FOR TONIGHT

JOS. M. PRICE LEADS MOVE

Hopes to Convince G. O. P. Leaders They Can Win Mayoralty Only Through Alliance.

Despite the strong intimation from Republican quarters that the Republicans would "go it alone" in next year's Mayoralty campaign, the group of nonpartisan fusion addicts who have been flocking together quadrennially of late under the banner of Joseph M. Price will meet this evening at the Hotel Pennsylvania to discuss ways and means for an effective fusion campaign to dislodge Mayor Hylan in the coming municipal election.

Among the followers of Mr. Price, who have nothing to lose and everything to gain from a hard and fast combination next year of the forces opposed to Tammany Hall, few have been discouraged by the attitude proclaimed by Republican leaders. The independents yesterday expressed the belief that the Republicans would come around when the time to cement a fusion compact was at hand.

This hopeful outlook may have been fostered by the experiences of recent Mayoralty campaigns. In the 1921 campaign, following the defeat of Mayor Mitchel for re-election in 1917, when Mr. Hylan first appeared as an aspirant for the Mayor's job, Samuel S. Koenig and other Republican leaders as late as six months before nominations were made were loudly proclaiming there would be no fusion—that the Republicans would go to war with Tammany with a straight ticket and an out and out Republican platform.

But when the time came to make the final arrangement for the fight Mr. Price and his colleagues found little difficulty in convincing them that they would be assuming a grave responsibility if they were to insure a second term for Mayor Hylan by turning their back on the proffered aid of independent elements opposed to continued Tammany rule.

Among Republicans who will be identified with the coming Mayoralty campaign in positions of supreme leadership and responsibility, however, the opinion was expressed yesterday that while fusion next year was not altogether out of the question there was less likelihood of a pooling of anti-Tammany strength along the familiar lines then than at any time in the last score or so of years. In any event, it was said, the burden of proof that they could be of real help in bringing about the defeat of the Tammany candidates would be on the independents.

While the dictum of such influential and patronage-dispensing Republican leaders as Senator Wadsworth and State Chairman Morris undoubtedly will have considerable weight with the party organizations in this city, the final say with regard to the strategy of next year's Mayoralty contest, as pointed out in Republican circles, will rest with the local Republicans themselves. The most formidable obstacle to a new fusion arrangement, it was added, was the failures that had attended fusion campaigns in the past.

In 1921, with fusion against him, Hylan—then running for a second term—won by the biggest plurality ever given a candidate for Mayor in this city.

In 1917, with fusion and the expenditure of more than $2,000,000 by the fusion forces to re-elect Mitchel, looked upon as one of the best Mayors in the history of this city, Mayor Hylan, virtually unknown in politics outside of

CHARGES LAID TO JUDGES

Commissioner Declares That His Activities Against Vice and Bootlegging Will Continue.

REPUBLICANS TAKE UP FIGHT

Wirth, Party Leader, Calls Conference to Consider Demand for Departmental Inquiry.

Police Commissioner Enright defied, yesterday, his critics in the Board of Aldermen, who on Tuesday charged the Special Service Squad with graft and corruption in the enforcement of liquor and vice laws. Denying the charges, Commissioner Enright challenged his accusers to produce proof before the District Attorney. He also charged the Democratic Aldermen who took up the cudgels against him on Tuesday with bearing grudges against him because he had refused them favors. In addition, he implied that bootleggers and other law violators with political influence were behind the charges.

The Commissioner made his defense in a letter to Mayor Hylan, who earlier in the day wrote him a letter about the Aldermanic charges. The Mayor in his letter upheld Commissioner Enright, and ordered him to continue with his activities against vice and crime. Mayor Hylan asserted that the Special Service Squad had made New York "one of the cleanest large cities in the world."

While the Mayor and Police Commissioner were exchanging letters, Alderman John Wirth of Brooklyn, Republican leader in the Board of Aldermen, was arranging a conference of Republican Aldermen as a step another to press for an investigation of the Police Department on the charges brought out by the Democratic Aldermen at Tuesday's meeting. Mr. Wirth said that Section 1524 of the city charter made it possible for five Republican Aldermen—or any five citizens—to petition a Supreme Court Justice to order an investigation of a city department. The Republican Aldermen, according to Mr. Wirth, will meet today or tomorrow to decide what action to take.

The Mayor's Letter to Enright.

Mayor Hylan's letter to the Police Commissioner began with a reference to the failure of charges made against the police by Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan and Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier. The Mayor's letter read as follows:

Dear Commissioner:

Some time ago a Magistrate and an Assemblyman, who had cast aspersions upon you and the Police Department, were glad of the opportunity to make public apology in court for what they had said about graft in the Police Department. Given every opportunity to bring forward proof to sustain their allegations, they were unable to do so. They sought refuge behind the cloak of apology, notwithstanding that such a disposition was wholly inadequate for the injury done. No sooner is that difficulty settled than we have a few more men in public life indulging in the same old pastime of hounding the Police Department.

Three Democratic members of a board of sixty-five Aldermen do not like the way the Police Department is being administered. One Alderman finds fault because some women, attempting to practice a profession as old as time itself, are arrested by the vice and gambling squad. Another Alderman finds fault because the same police squad is too active in his district and is making it very difficult for some bootleggers and proprietors of speak-easies to do business. Still another Alderman objects to the plan, which has been found workable in stopping to a great extent the giving of any form of graft to police officers.

Recalls Conditions of Other Days.

All the attacks are concentrated on the Special Service Division of the Police Department, because this division is the arm of the police service for stamping out vice, gambling, bootlegging, speak-easies, disorderly houses and street-walking. The activities of this squad have helped to make New York one of the cleanest large cities in the world.

No sane person wants to return to the conditions of twenty years ago, and even more recent times, when little astonishment would have been manifested if an Alderman were to show partiality to the existence of immoral and vicious practices. Today, an Alderman receives a salary of $5,000 a year, and it is rather surprising to see any member of the Board of Aldermen finding fault with those whose duty it is to keep our streets clean, even though to the eye of such an Alderman the significant shrug of the shoulder of a woman with an unmistakable lure in the eye is but the displaying of the coquetry of budding womanhood. It is no less surprising that a proper regard for the people of his district should lead any Alderman to voice opposition to police officers who interfere with the operations of bootleggers and proprietors of speak-easies, and to arrest those attempting to bribe a police officer to do or not to do what he is required to do and is paid to do under the law.

Continue keeping the streets of our city clean of police bribers and street-walkers, and the dark corners of bootleggers and speak-easies.

In his reply Commissioner Enright said in part:

"I observe that a couple of small pore statesmen, who through some hocus-

Woman and Two Men Defy Subway Guards; Force Crew to Run Train to Their Stations

A determined homeward-bound woman and two just as determined homeward-bound men braved the ire of a dozen guards on the west side subway during the rush hour last night and, refusing to leave their seats, forced the I. R. T. employes to take them, as the only passengers in a ten-car train, to their respective stations.

The daring three were Miss Eleanor Booth Simmons, Benjamin Mehlig and Arthur Weiner. Last night they were proud of their achievement. Miss Simmons was jubilant as she told the story of her trip.

"We were in a crowded uptown train. When it pulled into the 103d Street station the guard came back and told us to get off. Most of the passengers obeyed, but Mr. Mehlig, Mr. Weiner and myself, with about twenty others, decided that we would sit tight. The guard insisted that the train was bound for the car barns, but we insisted that we were bound for home. After a long argument they decided to take us to 110th Street.

"Another argument started there and all but the three of us gave up the fight. They argued and pleaded with us. We did not budge. They closed the doors and took us as far as 137th Street. When the train stopped about a dozen guards gathered around us. We had to get off they said. But we did not give in. We warned them that if they made any effort to remove us forcibly we would take court action against them. They went away and came back in a few moments with a compromise.

"They asked us what station we wanted to go to. Mr. Mehlig wanted to leave at 137th Street and Mr. Weiner at 181st Street. My station is Dyckman Street, and I was determined that I was going to get there on that train. After several minutes of talk among themselves they agreed to let us stay on. We had the whole train to ourselves.

"Mr. Mehlig stepped off at 155th Street. Mr. Weiner left at 181st Street. Each time all the doors on the ten cars opened. I sat in my seat all the way to Dyckman Street. Then the train went to the car barns."

McAllister, the "Flying Cop," Is Acquitted In 23 Minutes of Murdering Fighera

A jury in Judge Rosalsky's part of General Sessions acquitted Policeman Robert F. McAllister yesterday of the shooting and killing of Vincent Fighera at Manhattan Avenue and 115th Street on the morning of Aug. 13. The jurors returned the verdict after only twenty-three minutes' consideration. Judge Rosalsky, in his charge, told them they could not consider the original accusation, murder in the first degree, because the evidence presented by Assistant District Attorney McDonald did not show that McAllister had intended to kill Fighera.

McAllister's young wife, who had been in constant attendance since the beginning, embraced her husband when the verdict of not guilty was announced by the foreman of the jury. Policeman George Maher of the Traffic Division, who had testified that Joseph Dandie, the principal witness against McAllister, had shot him (Maher) last Summer, was the first of the spectators to congratulate McAllister on his exoneration.

McAllister admitted when testifying that he had shot Fighera. He said that he fired at Dandie, however, when Dandie grabbed his club and made a motion to pull a pistol from his hip pocket, after the policeman had intercepted both young men when he suspected they were about to steal an automobile. The bullet passed through the lapel of Dandie's coat and struck Fighera in the body. He died two days later in Bellevue Hospital.

McAllister was a champion runner before he joined the force and was known as the "Flying Cop."

pons have broken into our Board of Aldermen, are displeased with the Police Department and the Police Commissioner. The bootleggers, bribe mongers and lawbreakers of this city are never without ardent champions.

"Alderman Kiernan has a fat grudge against the Police Commissioner because he would not transfer a patrolman who, on a recent occasion, put this pseudo statesman in his proper place. The doughty Alderman said he would have to resign his jobs unless this particular patrolman was transferred forthwith. The patrolman was not transferred, but also, there is no danger of this cheap politician giving up a job or anything else for that or any other reason.

"Alderman Sullivan is also wroth against the Police Commissioner because his numerous relatives in the Police Department are not taken care of to his satisfaction. He says he was once a patrolman in the Police Department. I might say in passing that the department was not crippled in any way when it lost his services. Alderman Sullivan's statement, under the protection of the privileges of a legislative chamber, to the effect that members of the special services Squad are grafters and that recruits to our police forces are taught in the training school to convict innocent persons or to get convictions without regard to the merit of the charges against persons arrested, is a brutal falsehood and libel upon every member of the Police Department.

"A two-cent politician named McGuinness, who represents an Aldermanic district near Newtown Creek, has been constantly bombarding the Police Commissioner with his personal requests for the transfer and promotion of his friends who are members of this department. If he could have had his way he would have been very much more pleased with the Police Commissioner and the Police Department, but at great expense.

"It is indeed too bad that these cheap politicians, who in days gone by had their front feet in the trough at Police Headquarters, are no longer permitted to have their own way at the expense of the public. For the welfare of the Police Department, the safety of the public and for the good of this community I will try to keep them in their place during my administration at least."

Praises Special Service Squad.

"Every loud, belligerent and pernicious backer of bootleggers, bribe mongers and lawbreakers is very much displeased indeed with the activities of the Special Service Division, but that can only be expected. If the Special Service Division were not rendering effective public service in driving the vicious clients of these cheap political polecats to cover, there would have been no complaint against the administration of the Police Department or the Police Commissioner, but regardless of their displeasure, we will continue to enforce the law against the gamblers, vice panderers, bootleggers and vicious elements of this city, as well as their protectors and backers, wherever or whenever they may be located.

"This hybrid political triumvirate had a prepared resolution to the effect that enforcement of the Federal prohibition law is not a function of the Police Department, but is properly the job of the Federal Government, which has vast appropriations for that purpose.'

"Commissioner Enright then quoted Governor Smith's statement at the time he signed the Mullan-Gage act repealer, warning all officers of the law in the State that they would continue to have the responsibility of enforcing the Volstead law after the State measure was repealed.

"Of course," Commissioner Enright went on, "the Governor's mandate was bad news to those cheap politicians who thought that the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law would give them a free hand in their unlawful enterprises, and that they could work their own will on this and other communities in defiance of the Federal law.

"If either of these pseudo champions of vicarious reform know of any graft in the Police Department or any wrongdoing on the part of any member thereof, cordially invite them to present their facts in Police Headquarter or to the District Attorney of any county in the City of New York, but in the interim they may well understand and take notice that the Police Department, or any officer or member thereof, will not be swerved from their duty of the enforcement of law and order, the protection of the public against the lawbreaker, the bootlegger and the bribemonger, regardless of whose bull is gored."

Sullivan a Famous Policeman.

Alderman Edward J. Sullivan of 264 West Nineteenth Street, who made the most serious charges at the Aldermanic meeting, was formerly a policeman and has two sisters, two brothers and a brother-in-law in the Police Department. He resigned from the department seven years ago. His wife is a niece of Charles Culkin, Tammany leader and former Deputy Fire Commissioner.

Policewoman Mary Sullivan, his sister, is attached to the Women's Bureau under Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton and is President of the Policewoman's Benevolent Association. She formerly performed confidential work under the authority of Chief Inspector William J. Lahey and is said to be a close personal friend of Lahey, who is understood to have been engaged in a bitter feud with Commissioner Enright during the last two years. Another sister is Mrs. Margaret B. Solan, a policewoman and wife of Patrolman Solan of the West Forty-seventh Street Station. Solan was transferred from the Detective Division to foot patrol about three years ago.

If the Republican Aldermen should decide to press for an investigation, it was reported at City Hall yesterday, they may make their petition to Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey of Brooklyn, who was formerly Police Commissioner. Mr. Wirth said that if action should be taken the procedure would follow that which led to the downfall of former Mayor Robert A. Van Wyck. In that case, testimony linking Van Wyck with the so-called "Ice Trust" prevented Van Wyck from getting the Tammany renomination for Mayor, and resulted in the election of Seth Low on a fusion ticket. Mr. Wirth was one of the five members of the Board of Aldermen who brought about the Van Wyck investigation.

Section 1534 of the City Charter provides, if an investigation is authorized by a Supreme Court Justice, for a public examination of any Commissioner, deputy, officer, or clerk in the chambers of the Court. The person examined is required to answer all questions pertinent to the charges, and to produce such books and papers in his control as directed by the Court. The Court also has power to summon witnesses.

TRIBUTE PAID TO ENRIGHT.

Police Head Responds by Declaring City Never Has Been Cleaner.

Police Commissioner Enright reiterated yesterday his statement that the police force of New York was coping with the crime situation "as well as is possible under existing conditions." He spoke at a luncheon given in his honor at the Lawyers' Club by the Monroe Home Association.

"There is not and never has been a crime wave," he said, adding that the years of 1915 and 1916 saw more crime in New York than at any time since.

"The city has never been cleaner as regards commercialized vice and gambling than it is today," he declared.

John T. Stewart, who presided, paid a tribute to the Commissioner, saying that he had coped with the situation as well as any one could have done and that the criticism levelled against him was unwarranted.

The Monroe Home Association, Mr. Stewart said, had been formed at the instance of Commissioner Enright, who first broached the plan to save the house of President Monroe and to make of it a historical shrine. To Mrs. Enright, he said, was due the credit for raising more than $30,000 to further the project through the activity of the Women's Committee, of which she is the Chairman.

DEADLINE DISTRICTS FREE FROM CRIME

Robbers Are Active, However, in Harlem, the Bronx and in Brooklyn.

SCHOOL JANITOR GETS TWO

Policeman Shoots Negro—Three Arrested After Chase Over Roofs—Drug Store Held Up.

The police succeeded again yesterday in preventing the commission of crimes of violence, which usually mark the pre-holiday season in New York, within the midtown and downtown deadlines. All the hold-ups and robberies reported were in Harlem, the Bronx, Brooklyn and on the lower east side.

A negro robber was shot by Patrolman William Schmitkis of the West 135th Street Station, early yesterday, when the policeman caught two negroes in Emil Kalfon's men's furnishing store at 511 Lenox Avenue. The negroes had cut a hole in a wall leading to the store, and were taking boxes from a shelf. When the policeman entered the place, they attacked him and he fired three shots. The negroes ran out. One escaped but the other collapsed on the sidewalk and was arrested. The prisoner said he was Joseph Mitchell of 210 West 148th Street. He was taken to Harlem Hospital with a bullet wound in the left leg. The police said burglar's tools and a bundle packed with silk shirts were found in the store.

Two gunmen held up Jacob Ramras's drug store at 858 East 180th Street, the Bronx, early yesterday and took a $650 diamond ring from a customer and $10 from the cash register. The customer was Mrs. Tillie Abelson, wife of a furrier, of 2,124 Belmont Avenue. She refused to take off her ring until one of the robbers threatened to "shoot it off her finger." When the druggist hesitated to open the cash register one of the robbers struck him on the head with the handle of his pistol.

John Biold, an engineer, of 644 West 143d Street, was charged with holding up the caretaker of the First Warsha Synagogue at 58 Rivington Street on Tuesday and stealing $5.36 in small coins from the charity box. The caretaker, Solomon Epstein, of 114 Chrystie Street, said the man knocked him down before taking the money. Biold was caught outside the synagogue. He has served two terms in Sing Sing for burglary, according to the police. He was held without bail by Magistrate Ryttenberg in the Essex Market Court.

James Fenton, a former prizefighter, who now weighs 300 pounds and is janitor of Public School 115, at 177th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, found two men inside the schoolhouse early yesterday. Attacking the men from the rear, he seized each by the neck, banged their heads together, and threw them to the floor. Then he sat on them and fired four shots to attract the attention of the police. Patrolman Patrick Whalen arrested the men. Both have criminal records, according to the police. They were held without bail by Magistrate Edward Weil in the Washington Heights Court. They said they were Frank Mayo of 22 North Pearl Street, Albany, and Daniel Martucci of 195 Lloyd Street, New Haven, Conn.

Detectives fired three shots in a chase over Brooklyn roofs early yesterday which resulted in the arrest of three men on the roof of 48 Prospect Street, Brooklyn. The police were called by a woman tenant, who said robbers were in a hallway on the top floor.

Max Mannheim, proprietor of a women's clothing store at 1,011 Broadway, Brooklyn, said that burglars had stolen $5,000 worth of goods from his store on Tuesday night.

Thomas McDonough, 42, an actor, of 21 West Sixty-fourth Street, was sentenced in the Court of Special Sessions to between six months and three years in the penitentiary for stealing a fur coat valued at $40.75 from Macy's store on Nov. 15. He admitted the theft, and said he wanted the coat to make a good appearance when asking for parts at the manager's offices.

After a two-year search, Louis Mastrio was arrested at Delancey and Chrystie Streets last night on the charge of being one of two men who shot two detectives of Inspector Coleman's staff on March 4, 1922. The detectives were John J. Gorman and William T. Whalen. George Brune, already convicted of the crime, was deported to Italy. According to the police, Mastrio has served two terms in Sing Sing for extortion and violating the Sullivan law.

Malleable Ironmakers Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—Accused of violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, four malleable iron manufacturers were held today in $2,000 bail each for further hearing by United States Commissioner Manley. The men were Edwin C. Donaghy of the Temple Malleable Iron and Steel Company, Temple, Pa.; Albert E. Shaw of Stanley G. Flagg & Co., Louis J. Mecrath of the Thomas Devlin Manufacturing Company and H. Lloyd Hess of the Lancaster Foundry Company, Lancaster, Pa. A continuance until Dec. 2 was granted at the request of counsel.

WOMAN DENIES CHARGE.

Mrs. Buell Says She Was Not Disorderly in Livingston's Office.

Mrs. Muriel Buell, testifying yesterday in the Tombs Court at a hearing on a charge made by Jefferson Livingston, formerly a manufacturer of condiments, that she acted in a disorderly manner in his office at 67 Wall Street last Thursday, denied that she had threatened Livingston at the time or used abusive language to him.

Mrs. Buell told Magistrate George W. Simpson that on the day she was arrested in Livingston's office she had been invited to return to see him by Charles T. Morgan, a broker, who shares the office with Livingston. She explained that she and Livingston were being sued for between $30,000 and $40,000 by tradesmen and others for supplies in apartments they had maintained. She also admitted that she had dropped a breach of promise action against Livingston on a settlement of $12,500 by him, and she alleged she had been deceived into signing a paper releasing Livingston from the payment of $1,750 a month for life to her. Two lawyers who participated in the arranging of this settlement told Magistrate Simpson, however, that no deception had been used.

Magistrate Simpson announced that he would render a decision in the case on Dec. 1, and requested the lawyers for both sides to submit briefs to him in the Municipal Term Court before Nov. 28.

LONERGAN NOT CANDIDATE.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 19.—Augustine Lonergan, former Democratic Congressman from this district, today issued a statement that he was not a candidate for the seat made vacant by the death of Senator Brandegee.

Should Mr. Lonergan, who is the Democrats' best vote getter, not be drafted by the convention, which meets at New Haven next Tuesday, the nomination may go to Hamilton Holt, who has returned to Woodstock, Conn., in the last few years, since resigning as editor of The Independent, or to Congressman M. B. O'Sullivan of Derby.

The Republican convention, which will be held in Hartford also next Tuesday, seems already to be getting out of hand so far as the State Chairman, J. H. Rorraback, is concerned, and may develop into a stampede for an unmentioned dark horse. Organization enthusiasm has been withdrawn from Congressman Schuyler Merritt of Stamford. Roraback himself or Governor Bingham seems tonight to be the most likely choice on the Republican side.

TONG HEADS WARNED AGREE TO STOP WAR

LECTURED BY CITY OFFICIAL

Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin Dolphin Explains Law to Eight Chiefs of Each Rival Group.

For more than two hours yesterday sixteen Chinese, representing the Hip Sing and On Leongs, listened attentively behind closed doors to an exposition of the criminal law by Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin Dolphin, legal adviser to Police Commissioner Enright, in the trial room at Police Headquarters. The leaders, eight in each group, had been requested to come to Police Headquarters by Commissioner Enright in an effort to bring to a close for all time the feud between the rival tongs, which, in a recent recurrence, resulted in fifteen Chinese being killed and twice as many wounded by gunmen and hatchetmen.

It was reported that Z. L. Chang, Chinese Consul General in this city, and the Chinese merchants of the country, none of them affiliated with either tong, had urged Commissioner Enright to aid them in their efforts to bring about peace, the armistice signed three weeks ago having but another week to go.

The Hip Sing leaders were escorted to Police Headquarters in two automobiles by private detectives, while the On Leong group came in other automobiles under the protection of half a dozen detectives designated by Inspector Belton, head of the Special Service Division. The Hip Sing men were led to the front row of seats on the right side of the room, which is used for the trials of delinquent policemen, and the others were seated on the opposite side, while detectives sat on the end seat of each row, and at the middle, to prevent possible hostilities.

Mr. Dolphin read the part of the Criminal Code relating to conspiracies to commit assault and murder, and warned the tong leaders that the police of this and other cities were prepared to deal severely with tong gunmen. He also told them that arrangements had been made with the immigration authorities for the immediate deportation to China of every Chinese tong member on whom a weapon was found. He added that with Chinese believed to be bent on murder or assault, peaceable Chinese would find the authorities eager to protect them against interference by tong members.

Leaders Explain Differences.

All the tong leaders told Mr. Dolphin that they understood English very well, and no interpreter was used to convey the Assistant Corporation Counsel's words to them, his hearers revealing a full understanding of the points he made in his address to them and the warning he conveyed by nodding in approval or shaking them in disapproval as he went along. At the end of two hours Mr. Dolphin told the tong leaders that he wanted them to explain to him what led up to the differences between the two organizations.

The spokesman of the On Leong Tong explained that the renewed trouble first started in Cleveland about six months ago when a group of dishonest Chinese, who had been expelled from his organization, had been accepted into membership of the Hip Sing Tong, in violation of an agreement between the tongs made twelve years ago, when a long feud had been brought to an end after many killings. This Chinese sent him a complete history of his tong and declared that none of its leaders wanted killings or attacks by gunmen and hatchetmen on rivals.

Then Mr. Dolphin invited the head of the Hip Sing delegation to tell the story from the viewpoint of his tong. This Chinese said that the On Leong leaders were mistaken in their belief that the men who had been expelled from their tong had been accepted into the Hip Sing. He declared that the leaders of his tong unsuccessfully had tried to show that the truce between them had not been broken in this respect, and it was the first time that they had been able to make a statement in connection with this charge to an official so that the Hip Sing position could be made known. Each spokesman then told the Assistant Corporation Counsel that his tong would not countenance a renewal of the warfare between the rival tongs.

DRY CAMPAIGN COST $4,921.

Socialist-Labor Party Reports Its Expenditures at $19,791.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Final reports on campaign funds were filed today with the Clerk of the House by two political organizations.

The Prohibition National Committee, through its Chairman, B. H. Prugh of Harrisburg, Pa., listed receipts at $6,312 and expenditures at $4,921.

The Socialist-Labor Party, through its National Secretary, Arnold Petersen of Chicago, reported contributions of $24,135 and expenditures of $19,791.

WARREN MAY TAKE FLOOR LEADERSHIP

DEMOCRATS TO KEEP QUIET

They Are Expected to Avoid Obstruction and Let Majority Do What It Can.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Senator Warren of Wyoming, in age and in years of service the senior Republican member of the Senate, may decide to take the floor leadership of his party in that chamber. He has not made any announcement, but the impression is gaining ground in Senatorial circles that he will accept the responsibility, despite the fact that he is 80 years old and the Chairman of the always busy Committee on Appropriations.

Until within the last few days Republican Senators were so certain that Senator Warren would decline the honor that active campaigns were under way in the interest of Senators Wadsworth of New York, Curtis of Kansas, and Watson of Indiana. These candidacies were dependent on the attitude of the Wyoming Senator who, if he decides to take the place, will be elected unanimously when the Republicans meet in conference a week from next Saturday.

If Senator Warren concludes to accept election, it will solve also an embarrassing problem for several Senators who will find it difficult to take sides in the battle which will follow if the Wyoming Senator declines.

With the convening of the final session of the Sixty-eighth Congress less than two weeks away, Senators are arriving every day. Probably one-third of the members are in town tonight. Among them are Senators Smoot, Curtis, Warren, Spencer and McNary from the majority side, and Underwood, Harrison, Ashurst and Swanson of the Democrats.

The present program of the Democrats appears to be, let the Republicans have a chance to do what they can. Senator Harrison has stated that he hopes there will be no filibustering or obstructive tactics of any kind indulged in by the minority.

The Muscle Shoals problem will be the first business of importance to come before the Senate, and, since an unanimous agreement entered into last session, it must be definitely disposed of. It is believed that in the end it will be referred back to the Committee on Agriculture for further consideration.

President Coolidge's veto of the Postal Employes' Salary bill also must be disposed of. In this case the veto may be rejected. If the President wins it will be with few votes to spare.

Senators now in Washington believe that all railroad and agricultural legislation of importance will be left for the new Congress.

After a conference with President Coolidge today, Senator Warren expressed the opinion that there would be no income tax legislation at this Winter's session. He said that while many bills bearing on the income tax doubtless would be offered, time would not permit of their consideration.

As Chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations Mr. Warren discussed with the President the supply bills, to which Congress will devote most of its time this Winter.

GOV. SMITH HOME, HURRIES INTO BED

BARS CALLERS AND TALK

ALBANY, Nov. 19.—Governor Smith returned here tonight from French Lick Springs, suffering from a return of his old malady, rheumatism. He cut his vacation short a week to get home and have proper medical attention. A severe wrench he had given his right foot while playing golf was responsible for the return of his trouble, he said.

"I know what brought it about this time," he said, as he limped with a cane from the train to his automobile. "While on the links the other day I swung at the ball with my driver, plyoting on the ball of my right foot. I must have given the big toe a severe wrench, for an intense pain suddenly shot through my foot. I couldn't finish the game and had all I could do to hobble back to the clubhouse.

"When it appeared certain that I couldn't finish the kind of a vacation I had gone out there to get, I decided I would be better off back at the Executive Mansion in Albany. Although my vacation wasn't up until the 25th, I got on the first train out, and here I am."

It was evident to those who saw the Governor limping along the station platform, leaning heavily on the arm of his brother-in-law, John J. Glynn, who accompanied him from French Lick, that he was suffering severe pain. He said he could barely allow his foot to touch the ground. Every few feet he stopped and made a manifest effort to control himself.

"So far as I can tell," he said, "there is no infection whatever. In fact, I am not all together sure that it is rheumatism. It may be that I have merely wrenched one of the joints of the foot, but it is the same foot that I have previously nursed for rheumatism, and I suppose it is the return of the old trouble. It is evident that I have got to give the foot a good rest and it would sooner do it here than out West."

The Governor asked to be excused from talking about politics or anything else.

"My only anxiety is to get to bed as quickly as possible and ease the pain," he said.

In the 1913 Mayoralty campaign it was the impeachment and removal of Governor Sulzer and the timely intervention of Mr. Sulzer's good man Friday, John A. Hennessy, with his little "black book" that turned what, when he entered the fight, appeared to be certain defeat, into victory for Mr. Mitchel, the anti-Tammany candidate, and his running mates on the fusion ticket. Up to the time of Mr. Hennessy's appearance, the election of Tammany's candidate, former Justice E. E. McCall, appeared a foregone conclusion.

Not only these failures in successive campaigns, but the failure of any fusion Administration in the history of the city to succeed itself have created a pretty strong impression upon Republican leaders of a reflective turn of mind, who ascribe this to the lack of any organization behind the fusion candidates to uphold them and help after they have been elected. Hence the huge task of holding off hungry patronage hunters, who have been found to be quite as numerous among the independents, who profess to be moved by anti-Tammany zeal purely by a sense of civic duty, as among the rank and file of "regulars" of the Democratic and Republican party organizations, has fallen on the fusion Mayors.

Many Animosities Engendered.

Incidentally animosities have been engendered which have made themselves felt when a fusion Mayor or other official has been running for re-election. A Mayor elected on a regular party ticket is seldom confronted with a situation of this sort and where he is can fall back on the leaders of his party to act as buffers between him and the job hunters.

Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, was unwilling to talk for publication regarding the anti-fusion mandate emanating from the party leaders. It is known, however, that Mr. Koenig inclines toward the views expressed by Chairman Morris of the Republican State Committee and Senator Wadsworth. Mr. Koenig said the Mayoralty campaign was several months off and that nothing could be gained by discussing campaign strategy so early.

Jacob A. Livingston, the Republican leader of Kings, said:

"The enrolled Republicans in New York City will decide what's best to do when the time comes for a decision."

"If we cannot win going it alone, we cannot win with fusion," was the way one Republican leader, who asked that his name be not used, put it. He expressed the belief that it all depended on what sort of candidates were nominated and added that it would be better to go down to defeat in one or perhaps more Mayoralty campaigns with candidates commanding universal respect with the thinking element among the voters than to win with a hap-hazard ticket and a fusion makeshift.

Republican Leaders Not Hopeful.

From all that can be learned in Republican circles, the party leaders will not enter the coming campaign in a hopeful frame of mind. They pin what hope they can muster for a successful issue of the fight less on the prospect of independent support for their candidates than upon the possibility of dissension in the Democratic ranks. With Controller Craig and Mayor Hylan at daggers' points, they see some prospect of internecine strife within the opposition ranks and undoubtedly nothing will be left undone by next year's Republican Legislature to bring about a civil war over the transit issue or any other issue that may develop while the law-making body is in session.

Senator Wadsworth left for his home in Livingston County yesterday. Before departing he said he had received many telegrams and other communications praising the stand he had taken in favor of a pure and unadulterated Republicanism. Senator Wadsworth made it clear that his interview which appeared in THE TIMES yesterday could not consistently be construed as an indication that he intended in any way to interfere in the affairs of the local organizations.

George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, said that he did not care to make any extended comment on the budding Republican purpose to stand alone.

"They could do only one thing that would please us better," he said with a laugh.

"And what is that?" the Tammany chieftain was asked.

"Forget to make any nominations," he replied.

Morris Goes to Washington.

Chairman George K. Morris, accompanied by Secretary Lafayette B. Gleason of the Republican State Committee, went to Washington. While there Mr. Morris expects to have a talk with Senator William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee. It is presumed that campaign finances will be the topic.

Among the callers at Republican State headquarters was State Senator George R. Fearon of Onondaga. Senator Fearon is a candidate for the position of Temporary President of the Senate, which carries with it the Senate leadership. Senator John Knight of Wyoming County, an old-timer in the Senate, is a candidate for the position also. Senator Fearon talked with Chairman Morris, who conferred also with Mr. Koenig before going to his train.

Assemblyman John Boyle of Suffolk County, re-elected for another term, was another visitor to State headquarters. He said he would introduce a bill providing for the repeal of the State Income Tax law at the next session of the Legislature. Mr. Boyle said that with the 25 per cent. reduction of last year and one-half of the net receipts returned to counties where it had been collected, the State received in all only $8,000,000. He said the revenue from other sources would be more than sufficient to finance all the needs of the State.

such a suggestion and it became apparent that other plans would have to be made. It is understood that the Board of Transportation then began considering what could be done either in the way of condemnation or recapture and a very careful examination of the railroad's franchises was made.

This examination brought to light a recapture clause, but did not offer any immediate relief. Under the terms of the franchise the city provided for recapture of the route, but it was stipulated that this would not be possible for twenty-five years after the line had been completed. The tubes, which run from the railway terminals on the Jersey shore, under the Hudson River to both uptown and downtown Manhattan, and westward to Newark, were constructed in distinct parts and it was not until Nov. 10, 1910, that the last of these parts was completed. Thus under the recapture clause the city could not get possession before Nov. 10, 1935.

It was then that the suggestion was made that new lines be constructed beneath Sixth Avenue, underneath those of the Hudson & Manhattan Company. The plan that is understood to have been put before the officials of the Hudson Tubes is that they use the lower level, leaving the present level to the city. This, it is believed, would involve some financial adjustments as well, and it is said that a close analysis of the expenses and the revenues of the Hudson & Manhattan system, particularly of the uptown branch, have been made by experts of the Board of Transportation.

That proposal is reported to be under consideration with the officials of the Hudson & Manhattan Company, but Oren Root, President of the railway, would not discuss that or any other phase of the matter yesterday.

"It would be manifestly improper for me to say anything at this time," Mr. Root said. "This is the city's plan, and I could not discuss it in advance of its being made public."

Members of the Board of Transportation also declined to talk about the matter, except to say that the plan had not been completed and probably could not be presented before next month.

In his address last night Mayor Hylan announced that his Administration, after seven years' experience, was not prompted "to approve of either continuance or further extension" of elevated transportation. He pointed out that business interests were practically unanimous in their approval of the demolition of the Forty-second Street and Fifty-third Street elevated railroad spurs, both initiated by President Miller. He then said:

"The Board of Transportation is now working on a plan of a subway to provide adequate transit facilities along this avenue, the actual construction of the subway to precede the work of "L" removal.

"The importance of Sixth Avenue as an artery for traffic so apparent now will become more so when the vehicular tunnel, connecting New Jersey with Manhattan, is opened some time in 1926. Adding to the present heavy traffic movement will be the vehicular flow from this tunnel, estimated at some 3,000 vehicles an hour.

"The widening of Sixth Avenue from Fifty-third to Fifty-ninth Street, where the spur was removed, has already been provided for. This will eventually be followed by a widening of the entire avenue. The extension of the avenue to the vicinity of Canal Street, where the vehicular tunnel has its station, has been recommended, so that the completion of the tunnel will not find us entirely unprepared for the very great increase in motor traffic which may logically be expected to follow the opening of the tunnel.

"Most of the steps which are being taken to afford relief," said the Mayor, mentioning further improvements by President Miller, such as street widenings, "are designed primarily for the immediate present. But we must not provide merely for today, but for the years that lie ahead, and at least for the next quarter of a century, when the population of this city is expected to reach 9,000,000."

Fire Chief John Kenlon, the next speaker, said that, due to traffic congestion, it was becoming increasingly difficult to get fire apparatus out, particularly in the Winter time, but that the Fire Department had never failed in its task. Of elevated structures he said not another foot should be built in New York City. He cited depreciations in real estate values on Jerome, White Plains and Roosevelt Avenues in consequence of elevated structures.

CALLS HYLAN PLAN "BUNK."

Harkness Says Mayor's Subway Would Not Relieve Congestion.

Construction of new subway lines, combined with the consolidation of the existing systems, instead of the building of independent, municipally owned and operated routes, is the only logical solution of the city's transportation problem, Transit Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness declared yesterday in commenting upon the plans of Mayor Hylan and the Board of Transportation, made public, unofficially, Tuesday.

Mayor Hylan's plans, the Commissioner said, "would not reduce the number of straphangers nor add a single seat in existing lines. It is a plan conceived in politics and intended primarily to 'bunk' the people in anticipation of a municipal election."

Commissioner Harkness's statement was as follows:

"Advance indications given by Mayor Hylan himself concerning his still nebulous subway plans show that he is still proceeding along the same old line of independent routes which spell disintegration of existing systems. What the city needs to catch up for Mayor Hylan's long delay in subway construction is to build new lines as rapidly as possible and to build them so as to use every existing agency of transportation to the utmost. Expressing it in another way, the Transit Commission's plan of combination and consolidation will get in terms of added service about $1.50 for every dollar spent, while Mayor Hylan's plan for a new independent system will get about 50 cents for each dollar spent.

"A separate municipally owned and operated subway system such as Mayor Hylan proposes would mean three systems instead of two, as there are today, and instead of one, as there should be. It would mean a triple fare instead of a double fare as there is today, and a single fare as there should be. Yet Mayor Hylan attempts to pose as the champion of the 5-cent fare.

"Such a system as Mayor Hylan suggests, but which probably will never be built, would not relieve congestion in present subways. It would not reduce the number of straphangers or add a single new seat in existing lines. It is a plan conceived in politics and intended primarily to bunk the people in anticipation of a municipal election.

"Mayor Hylan's vaporings regarding the city's recapture of existing B. M. T. subways are more buncombe. The city not only hasn't got the money to spend for recapture, but there is no money in sight for this purpose. There isn't enough to build all the new lines needed, much less to use for recapture. The Mayor's plan, in brief, is founded upon the theory of disintegration, and if his lines are ever built they would mean triple subway fares.

"Even if this move were financially possible it would still mean disintegration of the B.-M. T. system, as two of its most important rapid transit lines and all its elevateds are not covered by the recapture provision of the dual contracts. Neither the Brighton Beach nor the Sea Beach rapid transit routes, which connect with the main B.-M. T. subways in Manhattan and Brooklyn, are recapturable."

Commissioner Harkness said that the Transit Commission's unification plan would, on the contrary, stabilize the transit situation and release $220,000,000 of city money now tied up in construction of the dual subway system and make this sum gradually available for new lines."

SAVE THE FORESTS, COOLIDGE PLEADS

He Warns National Conference That the Nation Is Facing Timber Exhaustion.

CUT NOW EXCEEDS GROWTH

Country Must Turn to Growing Wood Like Any Other Crop, He Insists.

WOULD ELIMINATE WASTE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—President Coolidge sounded a note of warning today against the "appalling waste" of the timber resources of the United States, and declared the time had arrived to lay the foundation of a far-reaching and effective effort for forest conservation.

Addressing the National Conference on Utilization of Forest Products, the President expressed the hope that out of its deliberations there would be evolved a program of specific action for timber-saving rather than a mere expression of ideas. He advocated a scientific policy of forest restoration, declaring that the American people, although bred to forest life, had not yet acquired the faculty of treating timber as a crop. He reminded his audience that against the 745,000,000,000 cubic feet of timber still standing in the United States there is an annual drain of 25,000,000,000 cubic feet, while the annual timber growth is only 6,000,000,000 cubic feet.

Nearly 400 delegates, representing every branch of the lumber growing, manufacturing and consuming industries, were assembled when Howard M. Gore, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, called the meeting to order and introduced President Coolidge. The conference is being held under the Department of Agriculture, acting through the Forest Service.

Speaks of "Appalling Waste."

The text of the President's speech follows:

This conference has been called for the purpose of further attempting to deal with the problem of our national timber supply. One of the chief items in that problem is the present appalling waste. Some of this waste may be unavoidable, but to a large extent it is unnecessary. The time is at hand when our country is actually confronted with a timber shortage. That can be remedied in only two ways—by diminishing the present waste and increasing the present supply.

It is significant that this conference was called by the late Secretary of Agriculture, Henry C. Wallace. It was the outcome of a broad forest policy which he was engaged in developing, and to which he contributed so much ability and energy. It was, he hoped, to lead to such a use in the manufacture and use of our forest products that we could greatly lessen the severity of the prolonged timber shortage of which we are entering the first stage. If this conference can carry forward his purpose, there could be no more worthy tribute to his devotion to forest conservation. Others may have equaled him, but American forests have had no better friend than Secretary Wallace.

Busy men and women who drop their personal affairs and lend their counsel to a public conference come with the expectation that they can accomplish some tangible results. The Government is going to ask you to consider definite plans for reducing timber waste. It is going to suggest that out of this conference shall emerge a program of specific action for timber-saving rather than a mere expression of ideas. Containing, as it does, leaders from every branch of forest industry and from many interests closely allied with forest industry, this conference has, I know, the ability and the will to create such a program.

It is not my purpose to discuss these specific measures, but to give as a background for your consideration some of the facts that force us to adopt a drastic program of forest thrift.

Sees End of Wild Timber.

The era of free, wild timber is reaching its end, as the era of free, wild food ended so long ago. We can no longer depend on moving from one primeval forest to another, for already the sound of the axes has penetrated the last of them. We like to think that it took three centuries to harvest these immense forests. It is comfortable to believe that they will last indefinitely still. But in reality we have cut most of our timber, not in the past 300 but in the past 75 years, to serve the great expansion of population and industry, and there is no reason to expect a decline in the rate of cutting as long as the forests last.

What has given us this illusion of permanency? First, our stored timber which could be drawn on with increasing speed and with the appearance of plenty until the last stick of it should be gone. Secondly, a transportation system that has permitted our sawmills to follow the retreating forests and to ship their product to distant buyers. Our markets have been full of timber. Only in the higher cost, the long haul, the near exhaustion of certain kinds of wood, and the sharply falling per capita consumption have we dimly sensed the dwindling of our forests.

We do not know the forest situation down to the last acre and board foot, but we know it well enough to make us think and act. Of the old forest the first explorers met we have in area only one-sixth left, and in bulk of timber less than one-third. From overcutting and fire we have left on our hands something like 80,000,000 acres of denuded forest land, most of it unfit for farming. Then we have about 250,000,000 acres of second growth forest, much of it poor in quality and amount. Three-fourths of our cut is still from virgin forests, difficult and distant of access, so that their products must pay for long freight hauls to reach the chief markets.

Expressed roughly, we have left about 745,000,000,000 cubic feet of timber. From this the annual drain is 25,000,000,000 cubic feet. This total drain is most significant when we reflect that, toward offsetting it, we have an annual timber growth of only 6,000,000,000 cubic feet; and even in our young forests, where this growth is taking place, cutting has already outstripped growth. We must face the situation that at this rate we are not far from timber exhaustion.

Penalties of Neglect Felt.

To bridge this fatal gap between cut and growth we have never taken sufficient action. In fact, our wealth of old-growth timber has made us prone to ignore the gap and to leave our less fortunate descendants to struggle with it. But we cannot escape the penalties of our national neglect. They are already beginning to be felt. Since 1870 lumber prices have risen much more rapidly than the prices of other commodities. Per capita annual consumption of sawed lumber, which in 1906 had reached 525 board feet, has dropped to 285, and in some of the Eastern States to 160 board feet. We are paying a yearly freight bill of $250,000,000, which could be better used for growth of timber than for transporting it.

There is no easy road out of this unprofitable situation. The end of free timber is in sight. World competition for the world supply will leave no large dependable source of imports open to use. The use of substitutes hardly keeps pace with new uses for wood. There is no likelihood that we can become a woodless nation even if we wanted to. When the free timber is gone we must grow our wood from the soil, like any other crop.

Strange as it may seem, the American people, bred for many generations to forest life, drawing no small measure of their wealth from the forest, have not yet acquired the sense of timber as a crop. These immense stretches of cut-over land, mostly too rough or too sterile for tilling, have not awakened us to their vast potential worth as growers of wood.

Fully one-fourth of our land area ought to be kept in forest—not poor, dwindling thickets of scrub, but forests of trees fit for bridges and houses and ships. Handled by the best timber-cropping methods, our present forest lands could be made to grow even more timber each year than we now use.

Land and Industrial Problem.

But much of our cut-over land, lying idle or half productive, is now an immeasurable loss. It pays little or no taxes; it keeps few hands busy; it turns few wheels; it builds no roads. Idle forest land has scrapped schools, factories, railroads and towns; it has dotted the land with abandoned farms; it has created a migratory population. Our forest problem is a land problem of the first magnitude.

It is likewise an industrial problem of great importance. These great industries that depend on the forest for their raw material—industries that, taken together, rank about third in value of output among our chief industrial groups—must be preserved. They employ a very large number of wage-earners; they represent an immense investment of capital; around them are built whole cities; they feed the railroads with a vast flow of traffic. In the long run they depend for their existence on making our forest soils grow timber and on using that timber without waste.

This brief sketch of the forest problem would be incomplete if it did not mention the hopeful progress already made toward a better forest policy. Of our total forest area of 470,000,000 acres, about one-fifth is in public ownership. Most of these public forests are safeguarded from fire and dedicated to timber growing. Of private forest lands—in extent much the most important part of our forests—a little more than half have more or less adequate protection against fire. On the rest fire is free to ravage the young growth and subject the forest to a steady deterioration; but the Clarke-McNary law, passed by the last session of Congress, will, I hope, speedily change the outlook for these neglected forests. It authorizes Congress, in cooperation with the States, to establish systems of protection against fire; and it authorizes, among other things, cooperation in tree planting and a study to develop stable and equitable forest taxation.

Progress in Fire Protection.

Very considerable progress has been made under previous legislation in joint fire protection. Under the Weeks law the Federal Government has purchased about 2,000,000 acres of forest land in the Eastern States as the nucleus of a national forest system for the East. Congress has wisely provided for forest experiment stations in six of our ten or twelve principal forest regions—stations that are destined to become centres of knowledge and guidance toward better forest practice. Much valuable work has been done by various Government agencies in combating forest insects and diseases, and in research in many phases of better utilization of timber.

Among private agencies also there has been promising activity. Associations of timber owners in many regions have established fire protection. Here and there private owners have embarked on timber growing as a profitable investment, and the industries dependent on our forests are taking a keener interest in working out a forest policy. Forestry associations, State factory departments and forest schools are lending invaluable aid to the forestry movement.

These are hopeful signs. Yet we have started too late and are moving too slowly to bridge the gap between cut and growth. We must adjust ourselves to an era of reduced per capita consumption. We must husband our supplies. Granted that we shall get into effect a big-scale program of timber growing, it would be poor business to go to the expense of growing timber if we should persist in losing a large part of the crop by unsatisfactory ways of manufacturing and using it.

Between cutting the timber in the woods and finally putting the product to use, nearly two-thirds of the total volume is lost. A third of this loss, it is estimated, can, under present economic conditions and with tried and tested methods, be saved—yearly saving nearly as great as all the timber our forests grow each year. Saving timber, it is obvious, will not only reduce the amount we must grow, but if started now on an effective scale it will relieve the timber shortage and make less drastic the social and economic readjustments this shortage will force upon us. A tree saved is a tree grown.

Good Management Essential.

In the coming struggle for timber economic survival among the forest industries will depend on economic fitness. Economic fitness will be measured by good management and good technical processes. These qualities come from research and from training; and the forest industries, to reach a high level of skill, must make a full use of both these tools of modern industrial progress. Hitherto the diversity, the geographical isolation and the small average size of our wood-using industries, coupled with abundance of raw material, have kept them from advancing as rapidly in improved methods as some of our more highly concentrated industries.

But timber shortage will force competition in better methods. Much is already known of better methods and the time is already here when this knowledge can be profitably employed. Many companies have, in fact, made notable progress in waste reduction and are furnishing examples of what can be done by careful management and expert planning. It seems possible that the individual industries, by banding together can overcome their handicaps of isolation and collectively employ more experts to work out better processes.

It is to consider joint efforts toward better forest utilization that this conference has been summoned. It is a movement in which the State and national Governments, the industries, the universities, the consumers and the technical experts should join. The various Government agencies equipped to help will, I know, be eager to do what they can to forward this undertaking. So vast an enterprise as the forest-using industries must not be allowed to decline for lack of raw material. We have abundant soil to produce it. We have the energy and the intelligence to learn to use our forests without waste. This conference ought to lay the foundation of a far-reaching and effective effort for forest thrift.

We hold the resources of our country as a trust. They ought to be used for the benefit of the present generation, but they ought neither to be wasted nor destroyed. The generations to come also have a vested interest in them. They ought to be administered for the benefit of the public. No monopoly should be permitted which would result in profiteering, nor, on the other hand, should they be indiscriminately bestowed upon those who will unwisely permit them to be dissipated.

These great natural resources must be administered for the greatest welfare of all the people, both for the present and for the future. There must be both use and restoration. The chief purpose of this conference is to discover policies which will, in the hands of private individuals and of public officers, tend to the further advancement of this already well-defined and securely adopted principle.

On the basis of amounts already paid the cost of scrapping the capital ships will be $25,000,000.

Of the vessels eleven were new ships which, it is estimated, would have cost $426,000,000 had they been completed. The expenditures on them before work was suspended was $153,814,000.

BATTLESHIP READY FOR TEST.

The Washington Reaches Drill Grounds to Be Destroyed as Target.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 19.—The uncompleted battleship Washington, to be scrapped under the disarmament conference agreement, arrived today off the Virginia Capes for the beginning of extensive bombing tests tomorrow. The battleship Texas, which will serve as official observation ship during the experiments, left the naval base here today for the drill grounds, which she reached about noon.

The Washington was forced to seek shelter in the Delaware Breakwater because of bad weather. She will be used as a target during the tests, which are expected to continue for two days under favorable weather conditions, and longer if rough weather is encountered.

COOLIDGE HOST TO BARUCH.

It Is Believed That They Discussed Measures to Relieve Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—President Coolidge had as a dinner guest at the White House last night Bernard M. Baruch of New York, War-time Chairman of the War Industries Board and author of some of the economic clauses of the Treaty of Versailles. In view of Mr. Baruch's intimacy with the late President Wilson and his activities in Democratic national politics, his visit to the White House to dine with the President created more than usual interest when it became known today.

No announcements were made of what might have been discussed by the President with Mr. Baruch. It was probable that the farm relief program was one of the subjects, because the New York financier has been active in working for farm relief measures and recently conceived the idea of having the farmers organize their own grain corporation, which has since been done.

COUZENS COMMITTEE STARTS TAX INQUIRY

Senators Investigating Internal Revenue Bureau Will Make Partial Reports This Winter.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—After reviewing part of the evidence compiled by the investigators, the special Senate Committee investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau decided today to go forward with the investigation and submit several partial reports to the Senate at the short session.

Chairman Couzens said the committee would hold daily hearings until March 4, and that reports bearing on such subjects as the estate tax, the corporation tax and the personal tax would be prepared at various intervals to furnish a basis for legislation.

At today's executive session the committee went over evidence relating to taxes paid by corporations and individuals with incomes over $100,000. The Chairman said the cases examined showed that tax payments had been reduced by borrowing money and by the formation of corporations to divide incomes.

Mr. Couzens formally submitted his recommendation for a prohibition investigation, but the committee did not reach a decision on that phase of the inquiry. It will be taken up tomorrow.

Chairman Couzens called at the White House during the day and discussed the investigation with President Coolidge. He declined to outline the President's views, but declared that the committee would conduct a vigorous and uninterrupted investigation into the Internal Revenue Bureau, pertaining both to the administration of the tax laws and prohibition.

OPIUM SEIZED IN BOSTON.

Around-the-World Steamer Yields 3 Packages and Other Contraband.

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—A varied assortment of contraband, including three packages of opium, a complete opium smoking outfit and an assortment of semi-precious stones, Oriental jewelry, and liquor, was seized today when United States customs agents attached to the special duty squad searched the steamer Van Buren, which arrived here last night from an around-the-world cruise.

The three packages of opium seized had been cleverly concealed in the soil in which three potted plants were growing, in the lounge of the vessel. Behind a bookcase in the social hall fifty beaded bags came to light. The remainder of the seizure included forty-five unset semi-precious stones, twenty aquamarine rings, twenty necklaces and thirty-five bottles of liquor.

DRASTIC PROPOSALS TO END OPIUM EVILS

and the last compact achieved at Geneva—namely, the protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes—are "both distinguished instances of adventure in the realm of the seemingly impossible—adventures of the heart quite as much as of the head. That they are discounted, feared and criticized does not pale the real brilliancy of their respective stars."

He insisted that it was better to live in the freedom of bold experiments than to abide in the doubtful security of self-interest and the stagnant pool of the status quo. The American delegate concluded with an eloquent plea for real achievements at the conference and a realization of the great ideal of emancipation of "countless slaves now in bondage to the ruthless master, the narcotic evil."

MAIN POINTS OF OPIUM PLAN.

Americans Propose to Limit Production and Control Traffic.

The American proposals for the regulation of the production and distribution of opium, presented to the international conference under the auspices of the League of Nations at Geneva, begin with the following statement of principles:

If the purpose of The Hague Opium Convention is to be achieved according to its spirit and true intent, it must be recognized that the use of opium products for other than medicinal and scientific purposes is an abuse and not legitimate.

In order to prevent the abuse of these drugs, it is necessary to exercise the control of the production of raw opium in such a manner that there will be no surplus available for non-medicinal and non-scientific purposes.

The American plan offers its first amendment to The Hague Convention in 1913 by extending the restrictions placed upon raw opium to cover coca leaves also.

Next is submitted one of the most drastic provisions of the proposal, as follows:

The contracting parties shall enact effective laws or regulations for the control of the production and distribution of raw opium and coca leaves so that there will be no surplus available for purposes not strictly medical or scientific.

The foregoing provision shall not operate to prevent the production for exportation, or exportation of raw opium for the purpose of taking prepared opium into those territories where the use of prepared opium is still temporarily permitted, so long as such exportation is in conformity with the provisions of this convention.

"Due regard being had to the differences in their commercial conditions," the American plan continues, "the contracting parties shall limit the number of towns, ports and other localities through which the export or import of raw opium and coca leaves shall be permitted."

Licenses for Export and Import.

The contracting parties shall require that a separate import license must be obtained for each importation of raw opium or coca leaves. The license may allow the importation of the amount for which the license is given in one or more consignments within a period to be specified in the license.

The contracting parties shall require that a separate export license must be obtained for each exportation of raw opium or coca leaves. The contracting party before issuing such license shall require an import certificate issued by the authorities having jurisdiction over the territory into which the importation is made and certifying that the importation is approved, to be presented by the person applying for the license.

The license may allow the exportation of the amounts for which the license is given in one or more consignments within a period to be specified in the license.

Unless a copy of the export license accompanies the consignment, the authorities issuing the export license shall send a copy to the authorities having jurisdiction over the territory into which the importation is made, when the importation has been effected, shall return the export license with an endorsement to that effect to the contracting party issuing such export license.

In the case of an application to export a consignment to any place for the purpose of being placed in a bonded warehouse in that place, the production of a special certificate from the authorities having jurisdiction over that place, certifying that they have approved the introduction of the consignment for the said purpose, may be accepted by the contracting party permitting the export in place of the import certificate provided for above.

The contracting parties shall make regulations requiring that every package containing raw opium or coca leaves intended for export shall be marked in such a way as to indicate its contents.

The plan next deals with prepared opium, including dross and all other regulations remaining when opium has been smoked.

This part of the plan calls for the progressive suppression of the habit of smoking opium within ten years after the signing of the agreement, in those countries where the use of opium is now temporarily permitted. The plan says:

Each contracting party in whose territory the use of prepared opium is now temporarily permitted agrees to reduce its imports of raw opium for the purpose of making prepared opium by 10 per cent. of its present importation each year for a period of ten years beginning with the date of ratification of this convention by it, and further agrees not to supplement the reduction by domestically produced opium; and further agrees that at the end of such period of ten years it will prohibit the importation of raw opium for the purpose of making prepared opium. By "present importation" is understood the importation during the twelve months immediately preceding the date the contracting party ratifies this convention.

Limited to Medical Uses.

The plan then suggests regulations for the production and distribution of "medicinal opium," morphine, cocaine and heroin. It says:

The contracting parties shall enact effective laws or regulations to limit exclusively to medical and scientific purposes the manufacture, sale and use of morphine, cocaine and their respective salts and derivatives. They shall cooperate with one another to prevent the use of these drugs for any other purpose.

The contracting parties shall enact effective laws or regulations prohibiting the manufacture and distribution of heroin.

The contracting parties shall confine the manufacture of morphine, cocaine, and their respective salts and derivatives to those establishments and premises alone which have been licensed for the purpose, or obtain information respecting the establishments and premises in which these drugs are manufactured and keep a register of them; require that all persons engaged in the manufacture, import, sale, distribution, or export of morphine, cocaine, or their respective salts or derivatives shall obtain a license or permit to engage in these operations; require that such persons shall enter in their books the quantities manufactured, imports, sales, and all other distribution, and exports of morphine, cocaine, and their respective sales and derivatives.

The contracting parties shall take measures to prohibit, as regards their internal trade, the delivery of morphine, cocaine, and their respective salts and derivatives to any unauthorized persons.

The contracting parties shall require that a separate import license must be obtained for each importation of morphine, cocaine, or their respective salts or derivatives. The license may allow the importation of the amount for which the license is given in one or more consignments within a period to be specified in the license.

The contracting parties shall require that a separate export license must be obtained for each exportation of morphine, cocaine, or their respective salts or derivatives. The contracting party before issuing such license shall require an import certificate issued by the authorities having jurisdiction over the territory into which the importation is made, and certifying that the importation is approved, to be presented by the person applying for the license.

The license may allow the exportation of the amounts for which the license is given in one or more consignments within a period to be specified in the license.

Unless a copy of the export license accompanies the consignment, the authorities issuing the export license shall send a copy to the authorities having jurisdiction over the territory into which the importation is made.

The authorities having jurisdiction over the territory into which the importation is made, when the importation has been effected, shall return the export license with an endorsement to that effect to the contracting party issuing such export license.

In the case of an application to export a consignment to any place for the purpose of being placed in a bonded warehouse in that place, the production of a special certificate from the authorities having jurisdiction over that place, certifying that they have approved the introduction of the consignment for the said purpose, may be accepted by the contracting party permitting the export in place of the import certificate provided for above.

The American program provides that the laws and regulations respecting the manufacture, import, sale, distribution, delivery or export of morphine, cocaine and their respective salts and derivatives shall apply to medicinal opium; to all preparations, "including the so-called anti-opium remedies," containing morphine, cocaine or their salts or derivatives, and to all new derivatives of morphine or cocaine or their respective salts; to every other alkaloid of opium or coca leaves; and to any habit-forming drug which may be shown by scientific research, generally recognized, to be liable to similar abuse and productive of like ill effects.

"The contracting parties," the plan goes on, "shall enact laws or regulations making it a penal offense to be in illegal possession of any of the substances to which this convention applies."

Central Board's Duties.

Provisions for the execution of the plan by a central board and for the collection of information by this central board as a basis for its activites are included in the following clauses, specified as Article 20-A:

The contracting parties shall furnish annually to the central board hereinafter constituted, not later than April 1 for the calendar year beginning Jan. 1 following, in respect of raw opium, coca leaves, morphine, its salts, derivatives and preparations containing morphine, and cocaine, its salts, derivatives and preparations containing cocaine, estimates of:

1. Their import requirements for medical and scientific purposes, whether for domestic consumption, manufacture or commerce;

2. Their total production and requirements:

(a) For all purposes;

(1) For domestic consumption for all purposes;

(2) For domestic consumption for medical and scientific purposes;

(3) For export for all purposes;

(4) For export for medical and scientific purposes.

Parties to the agreement, the plan goes on, shall prohibit the importation into their territory of any of the substances mentioned in Article 20-A in excess of the quantities specified in the estimates supplied to the Central Board. This, however, does not affect the importation of raw opium for the purpose of making prepared opium in the territories where the use of prepared opium is temporarily permitted.

The plan provides for the selection by the present conference at Geneva of a permanent Central Board including one representative from each of certain nations to be determined by the conference. Continuing, the plan says:

The board shall fix its headquarters, shall determine its procedure, and shall meet at least once annually beginning the first Monday in May. The decision of all questions coming before the board shall be by a majority of vote of those present, but two-thirds of the board shall be necessary to constitute a quorum.

The board may appoint an executive committee of not more than five persons who shall perform such of the board's duties as it may delegate to the committee. The members of the executive committee need not be members of the board.

The expenses of the members of the board shall be defrayed by the parties they represent. The expenses of the executive committee and its clerical staff shall be divided among the contracting parties in proportion to their total imports and exports of raw opium and coca leaves.

Reports to the Central Board.

It is also provided that each nation signing the agreement send to the Central Board the following information:

In respect of each of the substances mentioned in Article 20-A:

(a) Within three months after the end of each quarter statistics of their imports, specifying their source, and of their exports and re-exports, specifying their destination, during that quarter;

(b) If possible, within three months after the end of each half year the wholesale stocks, whether in government or in private hands, at the end of that half year;

In respect of morphine and cocaine and their salts and derivatives, within three months after the end of each half year, the statistics of their manufacture during that half-year;

In respect of raw opium and coca leaves, within three months after the end of each year, the total quantity produced and consumed during that year.

The Central Board is to make periodic reports to all countries involved as to the situation regarding the quantity and destination of all exports and re-exports of the drugs mentioned in Article 20-A. Provisions for investigations by the Central Board are contained in the following paragraphs:

If any contracting party furnishes no estimate of its import requirements in pursuance of Article 20-A or furnishes an estimate which appears to the Central Board upon investigation undertaken on its own motion or on complaint of any of the contracting parties, to be greatly in excess of its reasonable requirements, the board shall immediately ascertain the amount of the reasonable requirements of that contracting party for the calendar year beginning Jan. 1 following, after taking into account its population, climatic and hygienic conditions and all other factors which appear to the board to be relevant as well as any other special circumstances which such contracting party may be at liberty to submit to the board.

The board shall notify to all contracting parties its conclusion as to the amount so ascertained by it. The board shall recommend that each contracting party other than that contracting party the extent of whose import requirements has been ascertained by the board, shall prohibit the exportation from their respective territories to the territory of that contracting party, amounts of substances specified in Article 20-A which, taken in conjunction with other exports thereto, will exceed the amount so ascertained as aforesaid by the board to be the reasonable annual import requirements of such party. Due consideration shall be given to the recommendation of the board.

Each contracting party shall make it a penal offense for any person within its jurisdiction to procure or assist the commission, in any place outside its jurisdiction, of any offense against the laws in force in such place for controlling or regulating the manufacture, sale, delivery, distribution, use, possession, export or import of any of the substance covered by this convention.

The plan says that each nation involved shall prohibit any vessel under its flag, from carrying any substance covered by the agreement unless an official copy of an export license accompanies the shipment. No shipments are to go to any destination not mentioned in the license. Each country is to agree to enforce in free ports and free zones within its territory the same laws, regulation, supervision and control as in other parts of its territory. Transportation of habit-forming drugs through the territory of a nation is to be prohibited unless the contents and destination of the shipment are revealed. Each country is also to make laws to prohibit transhipments within its territory without proper licenses and to prevent the diversion of drugs from their proper destinations. Each country is also to enact laws to prevent the improper removal of drugs from bonded warehouses for diversion to illegal use.

In the case of territory whose Government is not a party to the agreement, the Central Board is to regulate the amount to be exported to such territory as necessary for medical and scientific use.

"The convention," the plan concludes, "shall come into force between the contracting parties who have ratified it as soon as it has been ratified by four of the contracting parties."

PILGRIMS PAY HONOR TO CHAUNCEY DEPEW

Many Prominent Men Attend Luncheon at Which Society Lauds Its President.

ROOT IS THE TOASTMASTER

Chauncey M. Depew, now well along in his 91st year, was the guest of honor and chief speaker at a memorable luncheon of the Pilgrims of the United States in the Hotel Biltmore yesterday afternoon. Mr. Depew is the President of the Pilgrims.

Many of the most prominent men of New York attended the luncheon to congratulate the venerable lawyer on his robust health and to listen to his vigorous address.

Mr. Depew spoke in a strong and clear voice. He smote the air with a series of sturdy right-arm punches to emphasize his optimistic sentences. When he departed from his manuscript he spoke more tellingly and crisply than when he followed it. After the luncheon and before it Mr. Depew held receptions, seizing the hands of old friends in a strong grip and showing the enthusiasm and briskness of a college boy.

The toastmaster, a comparative youth with pink cheeks, iron-gray hair and flashing eyes, was also made much of by the gathering and was welcomed into the 80-year-old class by Mr. Depew, who recently graduated therefrom.

Elihu Root Presents Depew.

The toastmaster was Elihu Root, who, in presenting the chief guest, said:

"Gentlemen of the Pilgrims: There is a contest of longevity now proceeding between the bronze statue at Peekskill and the present President of the Pilgrims' Society. It is not the purpose of the management of this luncheon to enter into this competition as to length of existence. We know that you wish to retire to your cross-word puzzles, to meet your bridge engagements and to take part in the other activities of this great city.

"It is a very peculiar function that we are privileged to engage in here, essentially private and personal, and nevertheless of a broad public significance. So many years, so many active, busy, progressive years we have known him, and at the same time for so many years we have been spectators of a great, influential and beneficient public career.

"I myself have known Chauncey Depew for I don't know how many over fifty years, and I will challenge any man to say that during all that long period he has ever said a mean thing, a bitter thing, a biting thing, a disagreeable or hurtful thing about any living man or woman.

"In this day when the waves from the great war convulsion are still beating on every shore, carrying the disturbed spirit of that dreadful time with intolerance and hateful feelings and denial of personal liberty which demands the right of freedom of action and freedom in words when at times it seems as if the whole world was going to return to the condition of universal hatred and struggle out its life as if men were all children of the dragon's teeth, there has been one man who has exemplified above all others the genius of friendship, kindly consideration, tolerance, a sense of liberty, which meant not liberty for himself, but liberty for others also, which meant not justice for himself alone, but justice for all others also; one man who pre-eminently has exhibited those qualities upon which alone free democratic self-government can exist and endure.

"We have come here because we wish to show our affection for our old and beloved friend. We have come here because we have sought to make an occasion to express to him that kindliness of feeling and that true affection which it would be impossible for each one of us to express individually, but we cannot prevent that this private tribute that we make to him shall have its carriage far abroad among our countrymen as an influence in the true and only true government of the people for the good of mankind—self-control, kindliness of thought and the genuine love for one's fellow-men that our guest, our friend, exemplifies to so high a degree."

Depew Pays Tribute to Root.

The audience rose and applauded for a long time for Mr. Depew, who began by paying a tribute to Elihu Root.

"In ninety days," said Mr. Depew, turning to the toastmaster, "he will enter that wonderful and exclusive class of 90 years. In five months I'll be 91, and it is the first time I have ever led him in anything.

"Many encouraging and significant things have happened to me in the course of my long life, but none of them has given me greater pleasure and encouragement than this cordial greeting by my fellow Pilgrims.

"Your welcome receives a wonderful addition by its being presented through my lifelong friend, Elihu Root. He and I have journeyed together in perfect harmony and close friendship for over half a century. It has been a source of infinite gratification to me to witness his triumphs at the bar until he became its leader, and also his remarkable achievements in public life.

"When President Harrison appointed me Secretary of State in his Cabinet he sent over his Secretary of War, Mr. Elkins, to insure my acceptance. Mr. Elkins led me to the office of the Secretary of State and there pointed at portraits of the long list of the eminent statesmen who had held that office. He said: 'You have the opportunity to have your name and portrait added to that famous group. Its membership is far more distinguished than that of the list of the Presidents of the United States.'

"Mr. Elkins's estimate was correct. Of all that long line of our Ministers of Foreign Affairs, none has won greater reputation or rendered more patriotic service than our friend Mr. Root. In the cordial relations which he brought about between the republics of South America and the United States, and in the difficulties and dangerous controversies between the United States and Great Britain which he settled, and in his triumph in removing all possible causes of dangerous irritation between the United States and Great Britain, he stands among the very first of our great Secretaries of State.

"There are many anniversaries which mark our journey through life. At 21 years of age we are welcomed to manhood and citizenship; at 60 and 70 we do not care to have the dates well known, because we wish to be considered younger; at 80 we begin to brag about our age, and when we enter upon the last lap of the century at 90, then the world rejoices and helps us along. And yet, even at 90, pride can survive.

"Anniversaries have their charm and at the same time lead to strange results. The various marriage anniversaries, with their significance in silver, gold and diamonds, are great milestones in the family life. A lady said to me the other day, 'When we reached our golden jubilee our lives had been so happy that we wished to celebrate it with all honors and all pleasure with our children, grandchildren and our friends. I am a rigid prohibitionist and believe in enforcing the law, but for that anniversary I bootlegged for champagne.'

"I was in London twenty-two years ago when the English Pilgrims' Society was organized. The next season, twenty-one years ago, our society sprang into vigorous life. It did not go through the processes of youth and maturity, but, like the goddess Minerva, it sprang fully equipped for its great mission from the start. It was fortunate in having as its constructive genius that most princely of preachers, most cultivated and charming of gentlemen, most able of diplomats and leader of the movement for more cordial relations among the English-speaking peoples, the late Bishop Henry C. Potter. He was succeeded by the best equipped man for the position in the whole United States, our wonderful and world-famed Joseph H. Choate.

"It is among the proudest satisfactions of my life that I should, for seven years, have been successor to these great gentlemen. The physiologists say that at the end of seven years we have entirely changed, but it is not so with you and me. We are the same friends, only a little more so than we were seven years ago.

"These eventful twenty-one years of our society's life have been distinguished by an interesting friendship and understanding among the English-speaking peoples of the world beyond anything hoped for at the beginning, and the continuing contributors to this happy result are the Pilgrims Societies of America and England.

"The first great issue of the hour for the civilization, restoration and freedom of the world is peace.

"The greatest force for the maintenance of peace is co-operation of the English-speaking peoples of the world. Human nature has not changed and probably never will. The horrors of war are forgotten, and then more wars break out.

"To prevent war and to outlaw it, the English-speaking peoples must first be prepared to prevent the outlaw from making the attack and to bring him within bounds of civilization and reason; they must have that unity of purpose and ideas in which each sovereignty develops according to its genius, but nevertheless all act in unison for the peace of the world, to preserve civilization and promote trade.

"Most people isolate those who are in the nineties and regard them as peculiarly endowed from their experience and longevity to help others. I am appealed to very frequently for many things, but especially for rules for health and long life.

"My friends, let us all believe that all ills can be overcome, all dangers can be passed and all differences healed, let us follow the apostolic injunction of loving one another so that each one adds to the enjoyment, happiness and longevity of the others."

Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, was then called on by Mr. Root.

"I do not know of anything that could give me greater pleasure," said Sir Esme, "than to be here on this occasion to do honor to Chauncey Depew, who has always been a very kind friend to me, and to meet Mr. Root once again. Mr. Depew's name will continue to be honored in both countries for the work he has done to bring us together, and therefore it is with great pleasure and real emotion that I heard the speech that he made this afternoon, which I am sure that none of us will forget."

CITES EDWIN'S TESTIMONY

Asserts Deals in Denver & Rio Grande Stock Were Made Over His Objections.

Improper investments resulting in the loss of several millions of dollars to the $82,000,000 estate of Jay Gould were made by his son and chief executor, the late George J. Gould, it was charged yesterday by Philip L. Miller, counsel for the children of Anna Gould, now the Duchess of Talleyrand, at the trial of the accounting suit before Referee James A. O'Gorman in the offices of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, 165 Broadway.

Mr. Miller criticised George Gould's conduct in the purchase of Denver & Rio Grande and Wabash Railroad stock and his attitude regarding the Missouri Pacific.

Mr. Miller said George was in the habit of consulting his sister Helen, now Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, and his brother Howard, regarding business matters. These three formed a majority of the trustees and executors. After obtaining their approval of various transactions, George, so Mr. Miller said, would go to Edwin for his opinion. Any protest on Edwin's part, Mr. Miller pointed out, was useless.

Testimony given by Edwin was presented by Mr. Miller to show that Edwin had opposed investments in the Rio Grande stock, as he considered it a bad venture. The transaction, Edwin said, involved $3,000,000. At that particular time, Edwin testified, a suit against the Rio Grande by the Western Pacific Railroad was pending and, should the latter road win, it meant a receivership for the Rio Grande, and that was what eventually happened.

George insisted, according to Edwin, that he believed the Rio Grande would win the pending lawsuit and that the road would make a great deal of money. George was strongly desirous, Edwin declared, of retaining control of the Rio Grande.

It was Edwin's idea, as developed in his testimony, that sentiment played a greater part with his co-executors and trustees than with himself when the affairs of the so-called Gould railroad systems were concerned. His sister Helen, Edwin said, regarded them almost as a religion, and it was easy to obtain her consent to almost anything in connection with the Missouri Pacific.

"My father had told us," Edwin said, "that he made his money by taking over the securities of run-down railroads and building them up, and that is the policy which the trustees believed he would have wished us to follow in many of our transactions."

Mr. Miller said the purchase by the estate of $3,000,000 worth of Iron Mountain Railroad stock was another inadvisable investment.

The trial will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock today.

To Direct Hospital Fund.

The Executive Committee of the United Hospital Fund announced yesterday the appointment of Minott A. Osborn, formerly Acting Secretary of Yale University and Secretary of the Yale Alumni Advisory Board, as Director of the United Hospital Fund of New York, which is principally engaged in supporting the free service to the sick poor performed by fifty-seven non-municipal hospitals.

A Correction.

In an account of a fire in Astoria on Sunday it was stated that the fire was discovered in the corset shop of Nat L. Gunzberg, 324 Steinway Avenue. The fire did not originate there, but in another part of the building. The only damage to Mr. Gunzberg's establishment was from smoke.

UNAWARE THEY MET BRITISH ROYALTY

German Women on Liner Orca Had Pleasant Chats With Former "Princess Pat."

IS WIFE OF NAVAL CAPTAIN

Leaves Ship With Husband at Bermuda, His Station—Papal Delegates Here on Way to Peru.

The Royal Mail liner Orca arrived from Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg yesterday twenty-four hours late, because of strong head winds and high seas all the way across.

Lady Patricia Ramsay, cousin of the Prince of Wales and popularly known as "Princess Pat," traveled with her husband, Captain Ramsay, and their five-year-old son as far as Bermuda, where the captain is on the staff of Admiral Sir James Ferguson of the British Navy. Most of the cabin passengers were Germans. They were unaware that the young woman going about the decks with her little boy, who was in a sailor suit, and smilingly talking to them in their native tongue, was a member of British royalty.

When the Admiral's barge came alongside the Orca on Monday morning to take off Captain Ramsay and his party a quartermaster started to carry the little boy down the steep accommodation ladder. The next moment Captain Ramsay ordered the man to put his son down and let him descend himself. This the youngster did while his mother looked on anxiously and the German women, leaning over the rail, ejaculated, "Ach, Himmel!"

Among the passengers who landed here were Pleasant A. Stovall, publisher of the Savannah (Ga.) Press, and Mrs. Stovall. Mr. Stovall said that while he was in London he testified in proceedings for the extradition of John W. De Kay, an American, to this country.

"De Kay in 1917 wrote a book," said Mr. Stovall, "calling on the soldiers to lay down their arms and cease fighting. I then was Minister to Switzerland. I read in The London Times an article which quoted De Kay as stating that the United States Minister in Switzerland had warned him that the United States Government would 'get him' by hook or crook, and put him in prison. On the witness stand I denied having made any such statement."

Mgr. Tito Trecchi, Apostolic Nuncio, headed a party of seven delegates from the Vatican on their way to Lima, at the invitation of the Peruvian Government, to attend the centennial celebration of the battle of Ayacquecho.

Seventeen customs searchers who boarded the Orca at Quarantine and went over her thoroughly looked crestfallen when they left at the pier. Some one is said to have given them a false liquor tip.

FARM AND INDUSTRY LAUNCH AN ALLIANCE

President Barr of Founders' Association Tells of Agreement With Grange.

WILL COMBAT RADICALISM

A Call Also Is Issued at Convention Here to Oppose Unions' Efforts for the Closed Shop.

An alliance between industry and agriculture to combat those who seek to undermine American institutions was announced yesterday at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the National Founders' Association at the Hotel Astor. William H. Barr, President of the organization, in telling of the new movement said:

"During the past few months your President and his associates have been actively engaged, with the assistance of Henry Harrison Lewis of Washington, in perfecting a plan to bring about direct and practical cooperation between all industry and agriculture. Negotiations conducted with farm leaders representing the largest and most influential agricultural organization in the country, the National Grange, have resulted in the inauguration of a movement of vital importance to the entire nation.

"America is not the place for any differences between industry and agriculture. Full development of their joint possibilities, side by side, will make America, above all nations, invincible from within and without. There is no more potent method of bringing this about than by frank, man-to-man discussions of joint problems leading to common understanding. This is the purpose of the movement now inaugurated, defense against political enemies being the first but by no means the ultimate object of the effort now under way.

To Form No New Organization.

"It should be understood that there is no intention of forming another organization to be added to the multitude now existing. We are merely bringing together industrial and farm leaders in conferences when the necessity arises.

"The new movement, which is happily called 'Better Understanding Between Industry and Agriculture,' will, as a part of its activities, provide farm leaders as speakers at industrial conventions, and industrial leaders as speakers at farm meetings, both local, State and national, in addition to the conferences already referred to. There also will be widespread publicity through the usual channels, and in time a development of the national movement into intrastate cooperation in such vital problems as taxation, attacks on the Constitution and the rights of property. Our members will be kept fully informed of progress made, and I urge your enlistment in this tremendously important activity."

The speaker called for a thorough house-cleaning of both parties, insisting that the Republicans carry out their platform and making plain that by house-cleaning he meant particularly the elimination of radicals.

"There are few things more ridiculous," he said, "than to look through the Congressional Directory and find men like La Follette, Brookhart and others listed as Republicans. Before the next session of Congress a definite rule should be established excluding from the party councils those who violate every tradition and every principle of the Republican Party as understood by the rank and file."

Asks Parties to "Clean House."

Mr. Barr also called for a destruction of the "Democratic-radical alliance," saying that "the defeat of the Mellon proposals by that combination was a death blow to election hopes, and many Democrats refused to vote the national ticket because of the action of their party leaders."

Mr. Barr begged for alertness to preserve the Supreme Court in its power, asked for generous support of educational efforts against government ownership propaganda and delivered this plea for maintaining the open shop:

"Closed shop militant unionism has always meant disturbance, and from 1916 to 1923, inclusive, the loss from industrial strikes aggregated over $12,500,000,000. The loss to the employers was $478,500,000. The loss to the employes was $1,740,000,000, and the loss to the public was estimated at over $10,000,000,000. And yet the general public apparently does not seem to realize what unionism and resultant disturbance means to them."

Mr. Barr also attacked the proposed Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution as "communistic."

AMERICAN FARMS OWE 14 BILLIONS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 19.—The farms of the country must be freed from debt and must be made as remunerative as any other industry by equal consideration, according to officers of the National Grange, now holding its fifty-eighth annual meeting here in Haddon Hall.

A statement declares that in 1910 the total mortgage debt on farms in the United States was $1,726,000,000 and that it is now more than $4,000,000,000. Other debts have also increased, according to the statement, to make the total debt standing against American farms $14,000,000,000.

"Efforts to solve this problem," the statement reads, "have brought from Congress many relief measures. At the same time there are many injustices forced upon us by the dual economic system invoked in our nation, into which has crept the idea of special privilege and preferred consideration for certain industries and occupation.

"The law of supply and demand has been bridled and rendered inoperative by artificial measures of protection, by bonus and by direct and indirect price fixing, until the price of the commodities the farmer must buy are fixed and sustained on the basis of high wages, high cost of production, interest on investment and added profit. The farmer must sell his surplus crops in the markets of the world in competition with those produced with cheap labor in every land, and it is the market value of this surplus that determines the domestic price he is compelled to take for his produce."

The Grange announced that a nation-wide campaign to have electric power furnished rural communities at reasonable cost probably would be undertaken. Such power is furnished to farms in Canada, it is said, and can be obtained in this country, despite statements by power companies regarding costs.

To Whip Women Drug Traffickers.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 19.—The flogging of women drug traffickers meets with the approval of Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith of Vancouver, who voted for a resolution, which passed in the Legislature yesterday, to authorize the lash for convicted drug traffickers, declaring: "We can't make the punishment too heavy for men and women who traffic in narcotic drugs."

BOBE HOLD-UP TRIAL JURY IS DISCHARGED

Fail to Reach a Verdict and Feinstein Is Sent Back to the Tombs.

TWO WITNESSES AID ALIBI

Modiste and Companion in Apartment Tell of Robbery of $15,000 Gems by Three Men.

Unable to reach a verdict after three hours' discussion of the evidence, the jury in the trial of John Feinstein in General Sessions, accused of the hold-up last September of Robert L. Hague, formerly marine superintendent of the Standard Oil Company, in the home of Miss Edith Bobe, a modiste, at 158 East Sixty-third Street, was discharged last evening by Judge Collins. Three armed robbers, wearing masks, invaded Miss Bobe's home shortly before midnight and robbed her and Mr. Hague of about $15,000 in gems. Judge Collins remanded Feinstein to the Tombs to await a new trial.

Hague was the first witness called by Assistant District Attorney Mullen. He testified that while the robbery was in progress the mask on the robber who held a pistol against his body slipped. This robber, he said, then suggested to his confederates that he shoot and kill Hague to prevent possible future identification. The robbers had relieved him of his watch and other jewelry and had taken about $10,000 worth of gems from Miss Hague by this time, he testified, and all three ran for the door and escaped.

Hague said that he thought it was a joke when the armed robber confronted him, until Miss Bobe was knocked down by one of the robbers. Feinstein, he said, was not the man who held the pistol against his body. "I could never forget the face of that man," he said.

Miss Bobe testified that the robber who struck her with his fist knocked out one of her teeth. When she fell she said she tried to bury her head in a rug. Neither witness was cross-examined by Moses R. Sachs, counsel for Feinstein.

Marie Capers, negress, a maid in Miss Bobe's employ, positively identified Feinstein as one of the robbers. She said that Feinstein had grabbed her by the throat and said: "Where is that $10,000 necklace?" One of the other robbers, she said, shouted to Feinstein: "Oh, leave her alone."

The defense called Mrs. Mildred Johnston, an actress, of 247 West Forty-seventh Street, who testified that she was with Feinstein in an apartment at 119 West Forty-seventh Street at the time of the robbery. Lawrence Weiner, lessor of the apartment, corroborated her testimony.

WISH DENIED BY ROOSEVELT

Told Garland He Wasn't Recluse Enough to Write Life as President.

Hamlin Garland, the novelist, speaking on "Theodore Roosevelt as an Author," last night at the November meeting of the New York Library Club in Roosevelt House auditorium, declared that he had urged the late Colonel Roosevelt to write the story of his years in the White House.

"Just before he left the White House at the end of his second term," said Mr. Garland, "I called upon him with just one thought in mind, which was to urge him to write a personal record of his life as President. 'Do it at once,' I said, 'before anything else comes in to overlay it.'

"A very thoughtful look came over his face, and he said, 'I am not sufficiently the anchorite to do that work. I am too active, and even if I were to write it as you urge me to do, I could not publish it during my life.'

Speaking of Roosevelt's power of concentration, Mr. Garland said it was this that enabled him to remember not only the facts in a book but its very words. Roosevelt read only to remember, he asserted, while many people today read to forget.

NEW NAVAJO EXHIBITS.

Life-Size Groups at American Museum Show Healing Ceremony.

Two Navajo Indian groups, representing a ceremony held primarily for the healing of the sick, were shown for the first time yesterday afternoon at the American Museum of Natural History. The figures, life size, are the work of Mahonri Young, American sculptor, while the backgrounds were painted by Harold McCormick.

The larger group shows a section of the Cañon de Chelly, with the red sandstone cliffs, where many caves have been formed by the eroding effect of the wind. In the foreground are several figures participating in the ceremial dances and other rites, which last for nine days. The other group shows the interior of a house, where the Indians are singing and where sand pictures are being made on the floor to drive away the evil spirits.

BRITISH ARMY RULER SHOT BY EGYPTIANS

therefrom. It is clearly evident that neither Egypt nor the Egyptian Government can profit from this crime. The Government will adopt even the impossible to discover the authors and will inflict exemplary chastisement. Two days ago I told the editor of a foreign journal how much my Government desired to reassure foreigners, and, believe me, I am surprised to see such a horrible crime committed."

The Minister of the Interior says that the evidence already available inspires great hopes of the discovery of the authors of the crime. That attack on General Stack was premeditated and the details thought out is clearly indicated. The supporters of Government say the crime was committed to embarrass the Zaghlul Cabinet.

Major Gen. Sir Lee Stack, who attained his rank in the British military service, was appointed Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian Army in 1919. For the present, under the Constitution granted to Egypt when it ceased to be a British protectorate in 1922, the defense of the country is reserved to the former protecting power and remains under British control.

Efforts were made only recently by Zaghlul Pasha as Egyptian Premier to negotiate a further agreement with England under which the defense of Egypt might pass into Egyptian hands, but these were without result, the British position being that it was impossible to relinquish control of the Suez Canal defenses.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 20.—The London Times says this morning:

"The Egyptian Government must be taught that the practice of pandering to extremist influence for the sake of political advantage, which they have hitherto pursued, can no longer be tolerated. This is no case for a leisurely exchange of diplomatic notes and replies. It is a case for immediate and energetic action. Apologies and honorary satisfaction will, of course, be demanded and will, of course, be forthcoming, but something more is required in our interests and in the interests of Egypt."

GATES TRAP 3 AUTOS IN PATH OF EXPRESS

Drivers Save 30 Passengers by Skillful Manoeuvring in the Nick of Time.

TRAIN RIPS CORNER OF BUS

Witnesses Say Railroad Watchman Closed the Barriers in Sudden Excitement.

The occupants of two automobiles and a large motor bus—thirty in all—narrowly escaped death last evening at the crossing of the New Jersey Central Railroad at New Brunswick Avenue, Perth Amboy, when the gates closed down, trapping the three vehicles on the rails before the approaching Atlantic City express.

More than twenty persons were in the motor bus, which operates between Lincoln and Carteret, and which was being driven by Michael Olino. Isaac Koch of 200 New Brunswick Avenue, Perth Amboy, was driving one of the cars, in which there were two or three others, and Henry Budney of 382 Prospect Street, Perth Amboy, was driving the second, which had four or five other occupants.

According to witnesses, Pedro Poria, the gateman, had lifted the gates after a slow train had passed, and the three vehicles had just crossed the southbound express rail, when Poria heard the siren of the Atlantic City express, bound from Communipaw to Philadelphia. Poria, according to stories told to the Perth Amboy police by persons who saw the incident, became excited and slammed down the gate, trapping the two automobiles and the motor bus on the rails.

Onlookers frantically shouted to Poria to raise the gates again and let the three vehicles make a dash for safety, but they said he held his hand on the crank of the mechanism for raising the gates. They turned away to avoid witnessing what they feared would be a catastrophe.

People in the three vehicles realized the danger by this time, for they could see the flare from the smokestack and hear the warning blasts.

The three drivers displayed remarkable coolness and set about manoeuvring their vehicles out of danger.

Koch, the driver of the automobile nearest the approaching train, was the first to act. He swerved his steering wheel so that he brought his car parallel to the southbound rail and facing the oncoming express train. Budney, with more room in which to operate, then threw his motor into reverse and shot his car back through the gate behind him and out of danger.

Olino had to wait for these two drivers to move, and then, with a clear passageway to the gate beside while Poria stood, drove his motor bus on a slant through this gate, but not before two or three of his passengers had leaped to the northbound rail and the pilot of the engine on the express had struck the rear of his vehicle. The blow ripped away part of the bus's superstructure, but swung it around so that it escaped being dragged under the flying train.

Olino kept his motor going, however, and get the bus off the crossing before the rear car of the express train had passed. When he took an inventory of his passengers he found that, except for their fright, and a few scratches, inflicted when they were thrown against the side of the superstructure, none was any the worse for his experience.

It was said that when a report of the occurrence was sent to the officials of the railroad they ordered two additional gatemen to go to the crossing and an investigation was started.

600-MILE FLIGHT MADE TO SPEAK IN BROOKLYN

MITCHEL FIELD, L. I., Nov. 19.—Lieutenant Reuben C. Moffat of the army air service, made an airplane flight of 600 miles today from Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., and arrived here this afternoon at 4:25 to fulfill a promise to speak tonight at a Brooklyn club. The elapsed time of the flight, including a stop of 25 minutes at Cleveland for refueling, was four hours and forty minutes, an average of about 140 flying miles an hour.

"I've got only one day leave of absence," said Moffat when he landed at Mitchel Field, "and the only way I could get here in time to keep my engagement was to take to the air. The conditions of the flight were most favorable."

Moffat was to speak at the Neighborhood Club of the Church of the New Jerusalem, 104 Clark Street, Brooklyn, where his father, the late Dr. John L. Moffat, was the pastor. The family home is at 631 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. He went there and was greeted by his surprised grandmother, Mrs. G. M. Rhodes, who had expected his arrival by train.

Lieutenant Moffat will make the return trip to Selfridge Field tomorrow morning, which he must reach not later than 11:45 o'clock, the official time of the ending of his twenty-four-hour leave. His mother, Mrs. John L. Moffat, who lives in the Brooklyn home, is on a visit to Mount Clemens and is awaiting there the return of her son.

At the Neighborhood Club last night Lieutenant Moffat discussed the army aviation service, saying that the value, utility, mobility and necessity of the airplane would be generally recognized and appreciated to a far greater extent than it is today, and that ultimately the need for it as a military factor will lead to a superior force in planes and personnel.

SUGGESTS A MANIAC IN FURNACE DEATH

ities admit they are puzzled by his action in not reporting discovery of his mother's body in the furnace about 5 o'clock. He was the first to learn that she was in the furnace, but instead of sounding an alarm or attempting to put out the fire, he told the authorities he went upstairs, passing through a room where his sisters were. He said he did not tell them because he did not want to worry them, and that he wanted to tell his father first.

The minister explains his son's action by saying that he had always been of a peculiar disposition and "it was like him to keep the secret to himself and not to worry others."

The only motive for suicide, according to Prosecutor King, that has been suggested thus far, is the admittedly nervous state of Mrs. Sheatsley and the statement of the husband that recently they lost about one-third of their savings in a stock venture. She accepted the loss "philosophically," however, her husband said, and seemed to have erased the matter from her mind.

The two daughters were questioned today concerning a visit their mother paid to their room on the morning of the tragedy. "She came to our bed and was crying," they said. "My poor children, will your mother be forgiven for her sins?" The minister said he heard her talking with the children, but did not hear the reference to sin. He could not account for such a statement, he said.

A thorough search for a bottle of poison which disappeared from the medicine cabinet at the Sheatsley home bore its first results today. A tiny bit of glass, triangular in shape, was found in the death furnace by Coroner Murphy. This bit of glass represents the first tangible clue on which police and county officials hope to continue their investigations. Coroner Murphy declared that the finding convinced him more firmly that Mrs. Sheatsley committed suicide.

The profit taking and short sales held the market within reasonable bounds. These developed at the end of the morning period when stocks had broken into new high ground. Such representative issues as General Electric and United States Steel common did not hold the gains made during the early trading and the buying veered in another direction. While profit taking was going on issues which had led the market, the low-priced non-dividend paying railroad shares became more active and closed the day "on top of the market." These included Missouri Pacific, the Erie issues, Rock Island, Missouri, Kansas & Texas and Texas & Pacific.

Encouraging Developments.

In other directions than on the Stock Exchange there were encouraging developments. Extra dividends declared by a number of industrial corporations and increased incoming business was reported in basic industries. The American Woolen Company reported that it was operating at 70 per cent. of capacity and this is about the rate at which the United States Steel Corporation is operating. Summaries of the iron and steel trade were particularly optimistic. Considerable increases have been made in pig iron prices in the last two or three days, looked upon as a barometer of the trade.

Corn was the outstanding feature of the commodity markets yesterday. December corn soared to $1.20 per bushel, as compared with $1.15¾ on the previous day. May corn sold up to $1.25. However profit taking before the close absorbed part of these gains.

In other markets there was a disposition toward dullness. Wheat and rye were under pressure of profit taking, while coffee and copper were irregular. The foreign exchanges were quiet and irregular.

Rumors persist of individuals who have accumulated tremendous fortunes in stocks during the upturn since the election. In the main the beneficiaries have been pools, institutions and individuals who bought stocks during the summer while the general public didn't want stocks.

SYNOD TAKES STAND FOR WORLD COURT

BISHOP STEARLY IS ELECTED

Succeeds Bishop Brent as President —Women of the Province Also Meet at Bronxville.

Over opposition by Colonel William S. Cogswell of Jamaica, L. I., the eleventh annual synod of the Episcopal Province of New York and New Jersey, which opened at Bronxville last evening, adopted a resolution yesterday advocating the participation of the United States in a world court. The synod is meeting in Christ Episcopal Church and the deputies are stopping at the Gramatan Hotel.

The resolution was offered by the Rev. Dr. Charles K. Gilbert of New York City, Secretary of the Commissions on Social Service of the Province and of the Diocese of New York. The resolution was as follows:

"Resolved, That the synod record its approval of participation on the part of the United States in the establishment of a world court after the plan suggested by the late President Harding and as advocated by President Coolidge."

No sooner had Dr. Gilbert read his resolution, which came at the end of his annual report, than Colonel Cogswell jumped up and made a vigorous protest.

"I hope that resolution will not be adopted," declared Colonel Cogswell. "That is wholly political, and we are brought here simply to discuss religious matters, and not to interfere in political matters. And here we are trying to dictate to our Legislature what to do. I submit, with all deference to Dr. Gilbert, that this synod has no right to pass that resolution."

When the resolution was put to a vote the volume of "noes" seemed very nearly equal to that of the "ayes." Colonel Cogswell called for a rising vote, but this was not seconded, and the Chairman ruled that the "ayes" had it.

To Seek a Means to Peace.

The synod adopted a recommendation submitted by Dr. Gilbert "that the clergy during the coming season lead their people in the earnest consideration of world peace and measures for the abolition of war."

Dr. Gilbert had offered a resolution earlier in the day to change the church constitution so that women could be elected as deputies to the Synod. The women connected with the various provincial organizations were holding sessions in other parts of the church.

"We men who are sitting up here are doing nothing while the women who are down stairs are doing all the work of the church," declared Dr. Gilbert. He asked that where it states six clergymen and six laymen shall be elected as deputies to the Synod from each of the eight dioceses the word "laymen" be changed to six "persons."

No action was taken, inasmuch as it was stated that the next Triennial General Convention of the Episcopal Church, to be held at New Orleans in October, 1925, was expected to change the whole status of the provincial synods.

The Right Rev. Wilson R. Stearly, Bishop Coadjutor of Newark, was unanimously elected President of the Synod. He succeeds the Right Rev. Charles S. Brent of Buffalo, N. Y. Bishop Brent, whose term expired with this meeting, has gone abroad to attend the International opium conference as a representative of the United States Government. It is at Geneva, Switzerland.

W. J. Tully Is Re-elected.

Former State Senator William J. Tully of New York City and Locust Valley, was reelected for the sixth successive year as President of the House of Deputies. Canon Roy Farrell Duffield of the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, Long Island, was reelected Secretary. The Rev. George F. Bambach of Brooklyn was elected Assistant Secretary, and Donald Gross of Scarsdale, Treasurer.

The Right Rev. G. Ashton Oldham, Bishop Coadjutor of Albany, reporting as Chairman of the Committee on the State of the Church in the Provinces, said in part:

"The total number of clergy shows an increase over all previous years, and the number of communicants is the largest on record. But in spite of this we find a marked decrease in the number of priests ordained and also a decrease in the number of confirmations, all of which taken together would seem to indicate that we are advancing from accretions from without instead of development growth from within. The increase of church school teachers and officers is ground for encouragement, but why should there be a decrease in pupils? The number of baptisms also shows a decrease as compared with last year, and the number of parishes and missions shows a decrease of 1,000, as compared with 1918, and of 50 as compared with last year. Of course, some of these decreases may be due to more careful and honest tabulations, and the decrease in parishes may simply indicate a regrouping and consolidation such as makes for greater efficiency. At any rate, the larger number of clergy ought to be able with a smaller number of parishes to do better work than formerly. The steady increase in the number of postulants and candidates for holy orders is a distinctly encouraging sign."

Statistics of the Church.

Bishop Oldham stated that up to November this year twenty-one young men had been ordained deacons, and that twenty-three deacons had been advanced to the priesthood, making the whole number of clergy in the province 1,314. He said there were at present eighty-four candidates for holy orders, eighty-two postulants and 534 lay readers.

Bishop Oldham reported there were 798 parishes and 408 missions. During the year 15,007 infants and 2,870 adults were baptised. There were 14,484 confirmations. There are 12,741 Sunday School officers and teachers and 109,787 Sunday School pupils. There are in the province 462,468 baptized persons and 308,677 communicants of the Episcopal Church.

Members of the synod and delegates to the women's organizations were entertained at a tea at the home of Mrs. Samuel Thorne of Harrison, N. Y. Last evening there was a dinner at the Gramatan Hotel. Bishop William T. Manning of New York, the host of the synod, was the toastmaster. The speakers were George W. Wickersham and Dr. John H. Finley of New York City, who spoke on "Practical Peace Proposals."

J. W. DAVIS SAILS FOR REST.

To Spend Winter in France and Italy —Says Democrats Will Fight On.

John W. Davis, lately Democratic candidate for the Presidency, sailed yesterday on the French liner Paris for a three months' rest in the South of France and Italy, accompanied by Mrs. Davis. Before returning Mr. Davis will visit London, where he formerly was Ambassador and has a wide circle of friends. He looked well and said his health was excellent, but was rather tired.

Beyond saying the Democratic Party would go on fighting and would be ready for the next campaign, Mr. Davis had no comments to make on politics.

Among those at the pier to see him away were Clem Shaver, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Jesse [illegible] of the party's Finance Committee; United States Senator [illegible] Chairman of Nevada and George [illegible] leader of Tammany Hall.

WITNESSES CANNOT IDENTIFY SLATTERY

GIRL CLERK ON THE STAND

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 19.—Mrs. Anna L. Whitman of Patchogue, widow of Ernest L. Whitman, bond salesman, who was shot and killed during a hold-up at the First National Bank of Bellmore, L. I., testified today at the trial of John J. Slattery of Astoria, Queens, before County Judge Lewis J. Smith and a jury here on a charge of first degree murder. Slattery is alleged to have been implicated in the preparations of a group to rob the bank. Whitman was entering the bank as the bandits were leaving and he was shot down on the threshold. Mrs. Whitman, who is the mother of two small children, said her husband had no pistol with him when he left their home on the day of the robbery. Counsel for the defense did not cross-question her.

District Attorney Weeks, opening the case for the State, reviewed events leading up to the robbery and shooting and referred to the fact that Ambrose Ross had been convicted on a murder charge as a result of the shooting and was now awaiting execution at Sing Sing. Stanley Klavana is in the county jail here awaiting trial on the same charge.

Mary Umhauer, assistant bookkeeper at the bank, reviewed the testimony she gave at the trial of Ross. She said the bandits entered the bank while she was at the teller's window, and that when she attempted to step on a burglar alarm one of the men, whom she has identified as Ross, pointed a pistol at her. She and Rudolph Kowalke, bookkeeper, the only employes in the bank during the luncheon hour, were compelled to go down into the cellar of the bank. When they returned after the bandits had left, Miss Umhauer said, she saw the body of Whitman lying across the threshold of the front door of the bank.

William F. Dean and his son Ernest, of Bellmore, testified they saw a Buick sedan draw up to the bank shortly after noon of April 4 and that two men got out and walked toward the bank. Neither was able to identify Slattery, nor was any of the six other witnesses called by the State, each of whom testified to having seen the automobile at the bank. George Leyton of Bellmore testified to hearing shots and to seeing the automobile draw away from in front of the bank. The shots, he said, were fired through the rear window of the sedan.

William Smallwood of 712 Madison Avenue, New York, testified that the Buick car which the robbers used had been stolen from in front of his home shortly before the bank hold-up. He said he had identified the car by the motor serial number.

The trial will be resumed today.

Resident of Crystal Garden Section of Astoria Protests.

Mrs. Victoria Citrin of 279 Hoyt Avenue, Astoria, is circulating a petition, asking better police protection for the Crystal Garden section. She said yesterday that although there were now more than 400 families in the district, the police protection was no better than when there were only open lots. Mrs. Citrin, who keeps a specialty shop, said that one of her customers and two nearby residents had been robbed within two weeks.

"Police also are needed to check vandalism," she said. "On election night a small house belonging to an iceman was deliberately set on fire and destroyed. In addition we need protection against careless automobile drivers."

$15,000 FOR DEATH BY AUTO.

Joseph Liebeson Was Crushed by Car Which Was Being Towed.

A jury of the Bronx Supreme Court before Justice Charles D. Donohue awarded $5,000 yesterday to Bessie Liebeson of 66 Post Avenue, the Bronx, against Aldo and Peter Fessia, garage owners, of 230 West Twenty-eighth Street.

The suit was brought by Miss Liebeson as a result of the death of her brother, Joseph Liebeson, 26 years old, who was crushed against a light pole at Broadway and 262d Street on Aug. 14 by an automobile being towed by an employe of the Fessia Brothers. Miss Liebeson was appointed executrix of the estate.

Tru-pe-dic
For Men and Women

WHILE women have their hearts set on the charming slipper styles offered by the fashionable shops, men are wondering where to find a shoe suitable for business wear, yet with the comfort of the fairway.

Tru-pe-dics offer a double solution. Women rest their feet in them during the day, reserving their adorable slippers for evening—an arrangement to which their feet quickly respond. And men have found that Tru-pe-dics draw no odd glances during business hours, and yet do not constantly remind them that their feet are crowded into city styles.

It seems that all human feet are not of the same type. There are three general types. And Tru-pe-dic Shoes are made in three types to correspond. No other shoes in the world are made on this principle. Try on all three types, in your size, in one of the Tru-pe-dic shops mentioned below. You will find your type the most comfortable everyday shoe you ever had on.

SAYS PENNSYLVANIA TOOK HIS HOTEL IDEA

But Soon After, He Charges, the Company Projected 30-Story Building Based on His Work.

A suit for $1,000,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad and several of its subsidiary corporations came before Supreme Court Justice Gavegan yesterday on an application by Edward L. Larkin, an architect and engineer, who filed the suit, for an examination before trial of Samuel Rea, President of the railroad company; Thomas W. Hulme and P. A. Moschzisker, real estate agents, and other employes of the Pennsylvania.

Larkin is suing on the ground that he originally had the idea of a thirty-story hotel on the site of the Pennsylvania Hotel, and imparted it to the officers of the railroad, but was told that the railroad was not interested because its engineers had stated that on account of the tunnels underneath the site a building of more than twelve stories would not be feasible.

Mr. Larkin alleges that he met President Rea and Hulme in Mr. Rea's office in Philadelphia in 1916, when his plans whereby a building of any height could be erected on the site, were returned to him. He asserts that the plans for the Pennsylvania Hotel building were filed not long afterward, and embodied his ideas of a foundation plan. He contends that the use of his plan enhanced the value of the property $1,000,000.

An appraisal filed yesterday of the estate of Hamilton S. Corwin, member of Patterson, Teate & Dennis, public accountants, who died July 16, 1922, shows that he left a gross estate of $226,158, but the net estate was only $111,252, due to debts of $111,599 and other deductions. His interest in the firm was valued at $35,645, which included $18,000 for his interest and goodwill. The agreement between the partners provided that the total value of the good-will was $160,000.

Deyo Estate Valued at $407,719.

LIFE CONVICT'S WIFE CAN'T GET A DIVORCE

Mrs. Mary Kolus Loses Suit at Trenton on Ruling Desertion Was Involuntary.

INFIDELITY IS NOT PROVEN

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 19.—In denying a divorce to Mrs. Mary Kolus of Carteret, N. J., from Paul Kolus, now serving a life sentence in the State prison here for murder, Vice Chancellor Buchanan declared today that an unwilling separation of the couple by the imprisonment of the husband could not be construed under New Jersey law as desertion. An additional charge of infidelity brought against Kolus by his wife was not sufficiently proved, the Court held.

The defendant in the divorce case was sentenced to life imprisonment Oct. 24, 1921, by the late Supreme Court Justice Bergen for the alleged murder of Fred Kunsman, husband of Mrs. Margaret Kunsman, named in the divorce action as the corespondent. Kolus was taken from the prison to the State House today to testify and immediately afterward was sent back to the institution.

It was alleged by the wife that her husband, who delivered orders for a grocery concern, became unduly familiar with Mrs. Kunsman during the Summer of 1921. The killing occurred in August, 1921, when Kolus left the home of Mrs. Kunsman after calling on her and her mother and was confronted by Kunsman. There was a scene between the two men and a shot was fired which pierced Kunsman's shoulder. Kunsman died later.

On the stand today Kolus denied doing the shooting, declaring that Kunsman was facing him, whereas he said the dead man was shot from behind. He asserted that as soon as he heard the shot he ran away.

ARTIST'S WIFE FILES SUIT.

Studio Party Is Made the Basis of Action for Divorce.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A studio party on May 30, last, was the basis of a divorce action that came to trial today before Supreme Court Justice George N. Taylor Jr.

Arthur Brochet, a commercial artist, with a studio at 80 University Place, New York, was the defendant. His wife, Mrs. Ethel Brochet, testified that they were married on Oct. 2, 1918, but that her husband never lived with her after the wedding day. Her chief witness was Joseph Bruno, who told of attending a studio party with Brochet and two young women.

Justice Taylor reserved decision, expressing a desire to have the defendant brought before him.

LAGUARDIA A PROGRESSIVE.

He Asks Clerk of the House to Class Him as Such, Not as a Socialist.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Fiorello H. LaGuardia, representative from the 20th District of New York City, has written to the Clerk of the House asking that he be listed as a Progressive and not a Socialist.

According to the records in the clerk's office and the understanding at the time of the national election, Mr. LaGuardia ran as a Socialist, although he was formerly a Republican. The Secretary of State of New York certified Mr. La Guardia as a member of the Socialist Party, and the candidate's expense accounts filed at the time of primary listed him as such. A later expense account had the word "progressive marked out and "socialist" written in.

WORLD COURT WINS WOMEN VOTERS' AID

State League, at Final Session, Endorses Proposal for Entry of the United States.

SEVERAL OFFICERS CHOSEN

Mrs. Caspar Whitney Heads Vice Presidents—Convention Closes With a Luncheon.

Endorsement of the proposed participation of the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice was voted yesterday by representatives of the 13,500 members of the New York League of Women Voters at the final session of its fifth annual convention at the Hotel Astor.

Other resolutions adopted approved of the expansion of the Bureau of Women in Industry of the New York State Department of Labor; recommended that league members study the question of the length of time for registration for voting in the State; recommended that the league endorse the policy of the National Committee for the Restriction of Outdoor Advertising, and petitioned that at least one well-qualified woman be elected to the Board of Regents of the State of New York.

These officers were elected for two years: Mrs. Caspar Whitney, First Vice Chairman; Mrs. Livingston Farrand, Third Vice Chairman; Mrs. Thomas B. Wells, Treasurer; Mrs. William A. Ansley, Director, Second Region; Mrs. Robert Ford, Fourth Region; Mrs. George M. Diven, Sixth Region; Mrs. Melvi Porter, Eighth Region; Mrs. William Spencer Murray, Tenth Region, and Mrs. Samuel Bens, Twelfth Region.

The other offices will be filled a year hence. The incumbents were elected at Utica last year.

The convention closed with a luncheon. Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, Vice Chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee, described the work done by women in preparing planks for the Republican State platform, and pleaded for cooperation in trying to get laws passed by the next Legislature.

Miss Grace Abbott, Director of the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, said she hoped the women of the country would have as much concern for the children here as they have for those of Russia, Germany, France, Japan and other countries whose pleas for money have been promptly answered. The standards for children's employment in some States, Miss Abbott said, are lower than those of China and Japan.

Miss Belle Sherwin, President of the League of Women Voters, pointed out the necessity for an educational campaign to get more citizens to the polls.

AQUEDUCT RAIDERS CONSIDER ARBITRATING

Assure Prosecutor They Would Not Resist Troops, So He Rushes to Governor to Get Some.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19.—Peace moves to bring about a truce over the aqueduct were set afoot today. The efforts to end the tension, and possibly of armed conflict, resulting from the seizure of the Alabama waste gates of the aqueduct by Owens Valley ranchers, however, were checkmated to some extent by the action of Judge Dehy, of the Inyo County Superior Court, late this afternoon in disqualifying himself to sit in the case.

Judge Dehy's order in disqualifying him... also vacated all orders and injunctions issued by him against the band of raiders in possession of the waste gates.

The peace move came from District Attorney Hession. He obtained the assurance of the band of raiders at the waste gates that they would disband immediately upon the arrival of State troops. Hession then set out for Sacramento to make a personal appeal to Governor Richardson for a skeleton force of guardsmen at the waste gates.

Soon afterward the Inyo County Board of Supervisors, in session at Independence, followed his lead. They called into conference Karl Keough, President of the Owens Valley Ditch Company, and a recognized leader among the ranchers, and asked him if a resolution for a board of arbitration in the aqueduct problem would cause the ranchers to withdraw. Mr. Keough refused to answer the board's query until he had conferred with W. W. Watterson, banker, of Bishop, and other representatives of the ranchers.

The County Supervisors of Inyo County offered to have either Senator Hiram Johnson appoint an arbitration committee or to have the State Railroad Commission sit as an arbitration body in the case if the ranchers and business men would agree to disperse and lay their case before such an arbitration body.

Pittsburgh Publisher Withdraws Political Support From Pinchot.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 19.—Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, now controls the Republican organization in Western Pennsylvania. George S. Oliver, publisher of The Gazette-Times, one of the two morning papers here, and The Chronicle-Telegraph, one of the three afternoon dailies, enlisted unreservedly today with the Mellon group in political affairs.

Oliver has for several years been aligned with the faction dominated by Mayor William A. Magee. His desertion will be a blow to Governor Pinchot, whose stanch supporter he had been. Mr. Oliver has notified the Governor of his withdrawal of support, it was said.

YACHT ROBBER SENTENCED.

Man Pleading Guilty to Thefts on Private Craft Gets Three Years.

Fred Wright, 32 years old, after pleading guilty to robbing yachts belonging to wealthy members of the New Rochelle, Larchmont, Greenwich, American and other yacht clubs, was sentenced by County Judge William F. Bleakley in White Plains to three and one-half to five years in Sing Sing Prison.

According to detectives, Wright robbed sixty-five yachts along the Sound last Summer. When arrested he said he lived in Brooklyn, but he finally admitted that he had a room in a hotel on East Forty-second Street, where a large amount of plunder was recovered.

Workhouse and Fine for Distiller.

Special to The New York Times.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 19.—Convicted of illegal possession and transportation of liquor, John T. Hoover, a contractor and distiller, yesterday was sentenced by Judge Reppert to pay costs and a fine of $2,000, and undergo eighteen months imprisonment in the Allegheny County workhouse. If the fine and costs are paid, the prison sentence will be reduced to nine months. The costs will amount to nearly $2,000. Hoover loses about $100,000 in liquor.

Those Family Reunions

The thought of Thanksgiving Day suggests the family reunion when relatives from far and near will gather at the festive board, over-eat and then stupidly yawn in each other's faces until it is time to go home.

There is a way to overcome the traditional funereal aspect of these formal family gatherings.

Set up in your home before Thanksgiving Day a real honest-to-goodness radio set. One that will bring into your home during the Thanksgiving Dinner orchestral music from the Waldorf and the rest of our best hotels.

Then when the feast is finished, tune in on one of the Grill Rooms of New York, roll up the rugs and dance to the best jazz music the world affords.

That radio set will make for you and your family a new kind of Thanksgiving Day—full of fun and jollity—and make you feel that some of those relatives are regular people.

Could anything be more worth while?

By the Haynes-Griffin Plan, you can purchase a radio set on seven days' free trial, with the understanding that if it fails to give complete satisfaction within that period, you can bring it back and get your money back. Could anything be fairer?

Music with the Turkey; — That's a big idea.

The set illustrated is the Radiola Super VIII, the aristocrat among radio sets. Price complete $436. This and more than twenty other makes and models can be heard in the Haynes-Griffin spacious demonstration rooms.

The price range is complete — from $35.00 upward. And every detail of installation is attended to by us.

BULBS

PLANT NOW

Now that the frost has killed the flowers in your garden, it is a good time to plant Daffodils, Hyacinths, Tulips and Crocuses outdoors. All bulbs are splendid for indoor culture as well.

Our stock of Dutch Bulbs is of the highest quality and most complete in New York City.

Daffodils—for Naturalizing

There is no more useful bulbous plant than the Daffodil for planting around the home grounds. They are equally at home in the shady location of your shrubbery border or planted in clumps in your flower border, and are not subject to any particular rodent or pest.

After next year they will not be allowed entry into our country. Ninety-five per cent of these beautiful bulbous plants are imported every year from Holland. We suggest to our patrons the advisability of planting liberal quantities this year, as bulbs procured from American-produced stocks after this year will be much higher in price.

All Varieties, Mixed, $5 per 100, $45 per 1,000, $400 per 10,000

Scilla nutans cærulea (English Bluebell)

This beautiful Scilla was imported into our country in considerable quantities up to 1919, when the Federal Horticultural Board excluded them. They have permitted their entry during 1924 and 1925, after which they expect again to restrict their importation. We advise our patrons to plant liberal quantities. They are used with excellent effect for edging bulb borders, and are also splendid for naturalizing in the wild garden or planted among your daffodils.

Strong Bulbs, $2 per 100, $16 per 1,000, $150 per 10,000

Matchless Bedding Hyacinths

Few flowers in April give greater charm to the garden border or are prettier for your indoor gardening than Hyacinths. The bulbs offered are unusually large, of full size, and if simple cultural directions are followed should give excellent results.

Pink, White, Blue, $1.50 per doz., $11.00 per 100

Giant Darwin Tulips

The finest of all the Tulip family for outdoor planting. Unusually large blooms borne on stems 2 to 3 feet tall. Excellent for garden decoration or for cutting. Bloom during May. Brilliant effects may be obtained by the planting of our Superb Prize Mixture.

60c per doz., $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1,000

Old English Cottage Tulips

Cottage Tulips—the Tulips grown in old English Gardens—resemble the Giant Darwins in their stately habit and time of blooming. They do not grow quite as tall, but are very graceful and distinct as regards the form of the flower and their delightful color. A select assortment covering almost every conceivable color and shade.

50c per doz., $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1,000

Permanent roads are a good investment —not an expense

The High Cost of Postponing Permanent Highway Building

Poor motor roads stifle industry and agriculture, waste huge sums annually in high maintenance costs, and greatly increase gasoline, tire and repair bills.

There is not a state, not a county, not a community, that isn't paying a heavy price for having too few permanent roads.

There are still many sections of the country — even whole states — that are trying to operate twentieth century traffic over nineteenth century roads.

This is costing millions of dollars every year, and will keep on costing millions until we have well developed permanent highway systems everywhere.

Even what we often call the more progressive communities are far behind the demands of modern highway traffic with its 16,000,000 motor vehicles.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Mexico, we need more Concrete roads—the roads for twentieth century traffic.

Your highway officials want to be of the greatest possible service to you. Get behind them with ways and means that will provide more Concrete roads and streets. Such an investment will pay you big dividends year after year.

URGE APPOINTMENT OF WOMAN REGENTS

Women's Organizations Here Begin Move to Have Two Named on State Board.

CANDIDATES ARE NOMINATED

Six From Brooklyn, Three From Rochester District Suggested for Educational Posts.

Representative women's organizations of the city began a movement yesterday to have the two vacancies on the State Board of Regents filled by women. This board, which supervises education throughout the State of New York, has never had a woman member so far as could be learned.

At the head of the movement is the Women's City Club, which called a meeting at its headquarters at 22 Park Avenue. Cooperating with the representatives of the Women's City Club were delegates from the Civitas Club of Brooklyn, the League of Women Voters, the Public Education Association, the National Consumers' League, Vocational Service for Juniors, Council on Immigrant Education, National Girl Scouts, Junior League, New York State Federation of Teachers and Parents, Women's Trade Union League, New York Federation of Business and Professional Women and Civic Federation Women's Department. It was said that other organizations would join the movement before the Legislature takes up the matter of appointments to the board.

The vacancies on the board are those caused by the deaths of Pliny T. Sexton, Chancellor Emeritus, of Palmyra, N. Y., and Herbert L. Bridgman of Brooklyn. They represented the Seventh and Second Judicial Districts, respectively and their successors must be chosen from these same districts.

While the law does not specify qualifications for members of the Board of Regents, Miss Martha L. Draper, who presided at the meeting, said the candidates supported by the various organizations would be women especially suited for the positions. No single candidate in either district will have the sole support of the organizations. It is their purpose to present to the Legislature the names of several qualified women in both districts.

The Board of Regents consists of twelve members elected on joint ballot of the two houses of the Legislature for a term of twelve years. All the members, except the State Commissioner of Education, serve without salary. Six candidates from Brooklyn were nominated at the meeting: Mrs. Henry Ingraham, Mrs. William H. Good, Miss Kate Claghorn, Mrs. H. Edward Dreier, Mrs. William P. Earle Jr. and Mrs. Seymour Barnard.

For the up-State district, centring in Rochester, three women were nominated: Mrs. Henry Danforth, Mrs. Helen B. Montgomery and Mrs. Rush Rhees.

ACTRESS HURRIES HERE TO DENY WIFE'S CHARGE

Audrey Maple Testifies Allegations in Pincus Divorce Suit Are Unfounded.

Testimony was concluded yesterday in the trial of the divorce action brought against Alexander H. Pincus, real estate operator, by May Graf Pincus. Supreme Court Justice O'Malley announced that the attorneys would sum up today.

Miss Audrey Maple, musical comedy actress, who is named as corespondent in the suit, was the last witness to take the stand. She made known her desire to testify through her attorney, Abraham I. Smolens, who said that his client had learned of the aspersions cast upon her reputation on Tuesday night while playing in Bridgeport, Conn.

Miss Maple denied all charges of misconduct in her testimony, but disclosed that she had planned to open a "speakeasy" in a building owned by Mr. Pincus on West Fifty-first Street.

"I think that's what you call them, isn't it?" she asked Max D. Steuer, attorney for Mrs. Pincus, who was examining her. "You know, the places where cocktails are imbibed."

Mr. Pincus testified that he had intended renting the building at 30 West Fifty-first Street, excluding the basement, to Miss Maple if he could "make terms," and admitted that the total rent then received was $9,000 to $10,000.

HAYS DAMAGE SUIT OPENS.

La Follette's Manager Charges Colliery Company With False Arrest.

The suit of Arthur Garfield Hays, attorney, who was State Chairman of the La Follette Campaign Committee, against the Vinton Colliery Company, Inc., of Vintondale, Pa., for $35,000 damages, alleging false arrest and malicious prosecution, went to trial before Supreme Court Justice Black yesterday.

Mr. Hays also named as defendants Lloyd L. Arbogast, controller of the company, and four of the company's private guards in demanding damages for alleged ill-treatment when he was conducting an inquiry in May, 1922, into the conditions of the striking miners in behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Mr. Hays testified that he was assaulted and dragged from an automobile, and that when he had caused the arrest of some of his assailants he was ejected from the company's property because he was trying to appear against them before a Justice of the Peace. He called two witnesses. The company denied that it had anything to do with the alleged happenings to Mr. Hays, and denials that any overt act was committed were made by the other defendants.

The trial will continue today.

VETERAN FOUND DEAD AT 83.

Door Forced When He Fails to Answer Calls of Housekeeper.

Henry Sliot, veteran of the Franco-German War of 1870, was found dead yesterday morning in his furnished room at 201 Chambers Street. He was 83 years old and was said to have been at one time secretary to the royal family of France.

When Mrs. Kane, the housekeeper, failed to get a response to repeated knocks on Sliot's door she called a patrolman, who forced an entrance to the room and summoned Dr. Lewisohn of Broad Strete Hospital, who said death was due to natural causes.

At the offices of Alfred A. Salsselin, commission merchant, at 202 Chambers Street, where Sliot has been employed as a bookkeeper for seven years, it was said he had been well known in the market district for forty years. Mrs. Kane said Sliot had spent every week end for many years with his daughter, Mrs. John Duckworth of Belmar, N. J., where it is thought his wife, who has been an invalid for nearly a quarter of a century, is living.

IT was back in the days of the 49'ers that Ashley A. Vantine, just returned from the then not easily accessible Pacific Coast, gave New York its first true shop of the Orient.

STARTING in a modest little store on lower Broadway, in a few years Vantine's deservedly earned a nation-wide reputation as "The House of the Orient."

TODAY the Vantine institution is a retail mercantile monument perpetuating the name of the man who visualized a modern Oriental department store—with dimly lighted and incense-scented aisles running between counters laden with rare, useful and unusual merchandise, selected in every mart in the Orient.

AN atmosphere of genuine Oriental charm emphasizes the difference between a mere place to stop and shop and a true place of repose and comfort—with spacious aisles and cozy nooks and a tea room that is a delight to the shopper.

MYSTERY of the Orient fills the air—but there is absolutely no mystery about Vantine's prices! Every article bears a clearly marked price ticket. And you will be pleasantly astonished at the reasonable price markings for merchandise that you may be sure is genuine. Tables are arranged with articles at uniform prices, making gift selections easy.—$5.00, $7.50, $10.00, etc.

GEORGE W. PLUNKITT DIES AT 82 YEARS

DEFENDS "HONEST GRAFT"

Born on Nanny Goat's Hill, He Once Held Four Public Offices at the Same Time.

Former State Senator George W. Plunkitt died yesterday morning in his home at 323 West Fifty-first Street after a long illness of a general breakdown due to advanced age. He reached his eighty-second birthday last Monday. At the time of his death the Senator's son, George Edward Plunkitt, and the latter's wife were at the bedside. He was a widower, his wife having died a year ago.

Senator Plunkitt was known for years as a typical product of old-time Tammany ward politics and in his heyday was as big as any of the biggest district "bosses." For years he ruled the political destinies of the old west side with an iron hand.

Of many incidents in a colorful career, he is probably best known to the public as inventor of the phrase, "honest graft." He frankly admitted he had made money out of politics, and in 1903, when some one attacked Tammany as the home of graft, he replied:

"Everybody is talkin' these days about Tammany men growin' rich on graft, but nobody thinks of drawin' the distinction between honest graft and dishonest graft. There's all the difference in the world between the two. Yes, many of our men have grown rich in politics. I have myself. I've made a big fortune out of the game and I'm gettin' richer every day. But I've not gone in for dishonest graft—blackmailin' gamblers, saloon-keepers, disorderly people and the like—and neither has any of the men who have made big fortunes in politics.

An Example of "Honest Graft."

"There's an honest graft, and I'm an example of how it works. I might sum up the whole thing by sayin': I seen my opportunities and took 'em."

He explained what he meant was mainly the purchase of land, supplies and materials in advance of public improvements which he learned about and their subsequent resale to the city or private purchasers when the improvement came along.

"I don't own a dishonest dollar," he insisted. "If my worst enemy was given the job of writin' my epitaph when I am gone, he couldn't do worse than write: George W. Plunkitt—He Seen His Opportunity and He Took It."

The phrase "honest graft" and his annotation of it received wide publicity at the time, especially since city politics was then seething with charges and counter-charges of official corruption.

Senator Plunkitt was born in 1842 of Irish parentage in the section of New York from which he never got very far away. He once pointed out to a reporter the sit of his birth, which was a hill now just inside the western wall of Central Park near Eighty-fourth Street. It was called Nanny Goat Hill and the cluster of dwelling there at his birth was known as Nigger Village.

He went to school until he was 11 years old. First he worked as a driver and then as a butcher's apprentice, and when he had served his time, his employer set him up in business in Washington Market. He made money for many years there and in 1876 sold out and went into business as a contractor, specializing in harbor construction. He built most of the docks in the Hudson on the upper west side.

He had been in politics for some years when he became a contractor. He was first elected to the Assembly in 1868, was elected again in 1869, and in 1870 became an Alderman and served three terms. He first went to the State Senate in 1883. He became a power there, as well as in the affairs of Tammany Hall and the west side.

In the meantime he had become the recognized "boss" of the Fifteenth Assembly District. The district was then people largely with Irish voters of pronounced likes and dislikes. He kept his grip on the district for something like forty years, always succeeding in crushing the opposition that came along from time to time, both sides fighting with the methods of ward politics of that era.

It was in this period he boasted of being the only New Yorker who had held four public offices at the same time—Assemblyman, Supervisor, Alderman and Police Magistrate. He flourished under many Tammany "bosses," John Kelly, Croker and Murphy, and those who came between, and was the friend of all of them.

Defeated by The McManus.

But the time came when some of the men to whom he had taught west side politics began to know too much for his comfort. One day he heard that the brothers, uncles and cousins, not to mention the female line of relatives, that constituted the clan McManus had decided that The McManus, otherwise "Big Tom," head of the clan, should contest his supremacy. The McManuses swept through from "Hell's Kitchen," and after a primary fight that made history The McManus won the leadership and Plunkitt was put out.

He endeavored to come back, but never succeeded. Finally he seemed to have accepted his defeat philosophically. In the height of his success he maintained his "office" at the bootblack stand in the County Court House, and for years afterward he continued to frequent that spot at the same hour every day, where he maintained his contacts with the people still actively in political life, among whom he knew every one.

Although he had been a prominent figure in the Democratic delegation to national conventions for years, and generally arranged the special train as Chairman of the Committee on Transportation, he was missing for the first time last June, when the Democrats came nearer than they had ever come before to his home for their convention, with the exception of the one convention held in Tammany Hall when it was new.

He was ill at the time and never recovered. He took considerably to heart the failure of Governor Smith to win the nomination. Dr. Thomas Conlan, who had been attending him since he was stricken, notified his family Tuesday night that the end was near. The last rites of the Catholic Church were administered then by the Rev. Thomas Corcoran of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Fiftieth Street, near Tenth Avenue. It was said at the house the funeral would be held in that church Saturday morning. Besides his son, Senator Plunkitt is survived by six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

MALVY SEEKS EXONERATION.

Dissatisfied With Amnesty, He May Move for Revision of His Case.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Louis Malvy is not satisfied with the amnesty voted him by the Senate yesterday, it is declared, and intends to insist upon a complete revision of his case.

Many Senators who sat in the High Court which convicted the former Minister declare that had they been presented with such a certificate of character during the trial as that which former Premier Poincaré gave M. Malvy on the floor of the Senate yesterday they would never have condemned him.

The principal charges against M. Malvy were that he protected the Anarchist Sebastian Faure, and gave money to Miguel Almereyda, editor of the notorious defeatist newspaper Bonnet Rouge. M. Malvy is now represented as declaring he is able to prove that both these steps were taken by others in the face of his opposition.

These and other new facts, which Le Matin says amount to charges against the Government in office at the time of the trial, may be produced in a new case with Malvy as prosecutor.

The same pipe—the same tobacco —yet it tastes entirely different

DID you ever see Burley tobacco as it comes from the farmer's curing barn—a big leaf, dark green-brown in color, "new", unripe? Chew a bit of this leaf, and you'll find it rank, bitter, and unpalatable; smoke it, and you'll get only a hot stinging harshness.

Then open a tin of Velvet, test this same Burley after it has been "aged in wood", and notice the pronounced difference. The green has turned to rich brown, the bitterness has become mellow "body", the bite and harshness have utterly disappeared. What is left is Burley tobacco at its appetizing best —ripe, mild, seasoned, and just right for smoking.

Here, then, are two extremes, green leaf and "aged in wood" tobacco. To make one from the other requires acreage of plant, equipment, and huge sums tied up in tobacco for long unproductive periods—for "ageing in wood" is a tedious and costly process. Countless experiments have therefore been made in the search for a faster, cheaper method of ripening—experiments ranging from greenhouse "forcing" to bacteriological colonizing; and some of these have been part way successful. But even at their best, the "hurry-up" methods fall somewhere in that intermediate ground between green leaf and ripeness, and far short of the mellow perfection gained by ageing in wood. In all our half century as tobacco manufacturers, we have found nothing that equals ageing in wood to ripen and sweeten tobacco for smoking.

Tobacco varies even on the same stalk. It takes expert buying to secure uniform high quality.

Velvet, therefore, is made entirely of tobacco that has been truly aged—aged in wood. It is made of the highest grade of Kentucky Burley that money can buy, and every ounce of it goes through this mellowing process — not can you get such mildness, such cool satisfying goodness, in any other way.

The Man Nobody Knows

A LITTLE BOY sat in Sunday school, thirty years ago, and looked at three pictures on the wall. One of them showed Daniel in the lions' den. The boy liked Daniel. He liked David, too. David was a fighter . . .

But the third picture showed a pale young man, with flabby forearms and a meek, sad expression. The young man had red whiskers.

Sunday was this man's day; it was wrong to feel happy or to laugh on Sunday.

Years went by, and the Sunday school boy grew up and became a business man. He got to wondering about Jesus. He said to himself:

"It is strange that a leader who is represented as such a weakling should have had such an influence. Only strong, magnetic men inspire great enthusiasm and build great organizations. Yet he built the greatest organization of all."

And so the man wiped his mind clean of pictures of Jesus. He began to read what the men who knew Jesus personally said about him. The result is amazing.

Was Jesus a weakling? He pushed a plane, swung an ax. He was a successful carpenter. He slept outdoors whenever he could. He could face a furious mob, and overawe every man in it.

A kill-joy? He was the most popular dinner guest in Jerusalem. He was criticised largely because he spent so much time with publicans and sinners and because he enjoyed society too much.

A failure? He picked up twelve ordinary men and forged them into an organization that conquered the world.

Some day, said the business man to himself, there will be a book about the real Jesus. But no book came. The man grew impatient, and wrote it himself. It begins in the December number of the Woman's Home Companion.

Once in a great while some magazine secures a really great contribution. It cannot always be foreseen. Authors may fail; editors may not recognize greatness in manuscript.

But this contribution, which you can begin reading today, has had an electric effect on everyone who has seen it. People expect much from its author; but now he has excelled himself. People expect much from the Companion. But this time the Companion has secured the most extraordinary book of our day.

Its title is "The Man Nobody Knows." Its appearance in the Woman's Home Companion at this time is one more proof that this magazine is consistently just a little bit ahead.

MRS. DARRELL FIGGIS ENDS LIFE IN TAXICAB

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Nov. 19.—Dublin was shocked today by the news of the death of Mrs. Darrell Figgis, wife of the well-known member of the Dail Eireann. Last night, it appears, Mrs. Figgis hired a taxicab and instructed the driver to take her to a tea room in the neighborhood of the famous ruin known as Hell Fire Club in the Dublin Mountains.

They started about 11 o'clock and on the way Mrs. Figgis spoke to the driver through the window asking him to send the bill for the cab to her husband. Shortly afterward the driver was startled by the sound of two shots in quick succession, and stopping his car discovered his passenger had shot herself through the head. She died at 4 o'clock this morning.

ORPHANS' CASE EXCITES PITY

Settlement Sought for Twelve Children Whose Father Was Killed.

Justice James C. Van Siclen, who is presiding in the Queens Supreme Court, has become interested in the future of the twelve orphaned Dugan children of 97 Robinson Avenue, Flushing, whose father died in August last as the result of an automoblie accident and whose mother died less than a month later from the shock of an operation and the death of her husband.

The children, through their aunt, Margaret Hughes, who is also their guardian, ad litem, has instituted a suit in the Queens Supreme Court for $100,000 damages against Sullivan Brothers, contractors, of Flushing, whose truck fatally injured their father, John Dugan. This suit was tried two weeks ago in the Queens Supreme Court and resulted in a disagreement. It was placed on the calendar of the court for retrial this month.

The case was called yesterday in the Supreme Court before Justice Van Siclen. Prior to convening court Eugene V. Daly, attorney for Mrs. Hughes, and the children had a conference with Justice Van Siclen. Later Mr. Daly went into court and asked that the trial be postponed until next Monday and the request was granted by Justice Van Siclen. To reporters Mr. Daly said:

"There have been rumors that a settlement was offered, but nothing of that kind has come to us from the defendants. I believe that Justice Van Siclen would be ready to talk over this case with representatives of both parties in an effort to get a settlement, provided both sides were willing to meet him. An effort to have such a conference with Justice Van Siclen some time this week will be made. If no such conference is held and no agreement reached, we will certainly go to trial next Monday."

The twelve children are still at their home, where they are being cared for by Elizabeth, 17 years old, the second from the eldest daughter. Mary, the eldest daughter, is working as a telephone operator.

EDITH KELLY IN COURT AGAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The litigation concerning the silk stockings of Edith Kelly, former wife of Frank J. Gould, continues to occupy the Judges of the Paris courts. The former Mrs. Gould used many silk stockings during the years of 1917 and 1918. During the month of October, 1917, alone she purchased seventy-seven pairs from M. Chatelet, storekeeper in Rue Saint Honore, Paris, but she forgot to pay, and M. Chatelet is now claiming the sum due him.

The debt is not denied, but Edith Kelly argues her ex-husband is responsible. Mr. Gould refuses to have anything to do with the matter. Today she asked the Court to suspend judgment until the Versailles Appeal Court had made a final decision concerning her rights to half of Mr. Gould's French properties. That case depends on whether she can prove that she married under the French law providing community interest of husband and wife. Should she win that case, she argues, her former husband would also be responsible for his wife's stockings.

Suppose Nobody Cared?

THINK of the crippled child—if no one tried to help. Think of the aged poor—if there were no tenderness.

Give a thought to the homeless and the jobless. Consider the injured and the sick. Some will recover—some will die, Think if they had no place of peace.

Turn your heart to the widowed mother and her helpless brood. Open it wide to the orphaned babies—thousands with no mother, no father. Think if only the gutter called.

Suppose nobody cared? Then there would be no charity. Only a shameful world of selfishness.

NOW! "ROUND UP" DAY OF THE DRIVE!

As this message is delivered this morning throughout New York City, it is the "zero hour" of "Round Up" Day in Federation's "drive." As you rise from breakfast, the "zero hour" ends.

With no blare of trumpets, no waving banners, with only the call of their own hearts to lead them on, the loyal band of Federation workers will "storm the first line trenches," seeking contributions.

Each worker will give Two Hours today to this special effort. Two hours out of his busy business day—two hours in which important daily duties are put aside that the good work of Federation's 91 charitable organizations may continue in full.

If you have not made a special gift to help meet the deficit, give to the worker when he calls today. His time is brief. He cannot begin to tell you Federation's story. But we can tell you now that when he calls on you he serves humanity and charity; goodness of heart and compassion. He serves crippled and orphaned children, poor, sick, maimed, aged, dying people who need your goodness of heart as well as his. Match a minute of your time against his, and against hours of others' pain.

Give the worker consideration.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Oratorio Society.

Two works of unusual interest made the program of the first concert of the Oratorio Society, Albert Stoessel, conductor, last night in Carnegie Hall. These were the "Hymn to Jesus," after text taken from the Apocryphal Acts of St. John, by Gustav Holst, performed for the first time in America; and Brahms's Requiem, interpreted for an exception in late years with adequate proportions of chorus and orchestra.

It had been announced that Mr. Holst, who has been living unostentatiously for some time in America, and to whom attention was recently drawn as the recipient of the Howland Memorial Prize awarded by Yale University, would be present at the performance of his work. If he was present he was conspicuous by a modesty which caused him to refrain from any appearance before the audience.

The "Hymn to Jesus," of 37, for two choruses and semi-chorus, orchestra, piano and organ, was composed in 1917. The text, according to Vaughan Williams, has probably to do with an early ritual or religious dance. The composition, which is relatively short, is divided in two parts, a prelude and hymn. The composer employs, with other musical material, two plain chants to the words "Vexilla Regis Prodeunt" and "Pange Lingua Gloriosi Praelium Certaminis." These chants, with their texts, are believed to have emanated from a common source—the translation of the relics of the cross of Queen Rhadegund's monastery at Poitiers in the sixth century.

The opening of the hymn is of rare beauty and impressiveness. The two chants are sung antiphonally in free rhythm, and with an aureole of medieval harmony as a background for the recitative of the singers. This evokes the emotion of old religious sculpture that is angular, primitive and very beautiful; and the primitivity is near to paganism. The Oriental influences which entered into old Christian music are felt. They are not represented in a way that is academic or archeological, but as things of the spirit. There is a more rhapsodic note in the archaic dance music, which employs old intervals and rhythms.

The first half of the "Hymn to Jesus" created the atmosphere, half pagan and half mystic, that the subject demands.

Thereafter this reviewer listened with mixed feelings. The music seemed to him to flag in its inspiration. With the line, "What thing ye endure, had not the Father sent you to me as a word," there is a feeling that the motive troubles the composer, and the return to the outburst of the beginning, "Glory to Thee, Holy Spirit," does not restore the sense of unbroken continuity and strength of inspiration.

Another question arises in estimating the value of the "Hymn to Jesus." How did the performance square with the wishes of the composer? A glance at the printed music testified to the fact that the performance ignored its finer shadings. Certainly, if the performance was not better than that of the Brahms Requiem, it did not give the composer his due. For Brahms was treated in a generally sluggish and inexpressive manner. The singing lacked technical precision, as it lacked spirit. Dynamics were frequently ignored or done scant justice. There was an absence of rhythmic life. Doubtless the opportunities of works of such import as those heard last night are not easy to secure. But if that is so, there is only one sensible procedure, which is to produce simpler compositions.

BRAILOWSKY'S HAIR SWEEPS THE KEYBOARD

Alexander Brailowsky, a young Russian pianist who carries the pathetic fallacy of fragile physique to the extreme of a veil of thin, long hair that at moments sweeps mournfully the keyboard as he plays, gave his first concert in America last night at Aeolian Hall. The place was filled, while perhaps 200 persons stood through the "continuous" B-minor sonata of Liszt that began the novel proceedings. There were musicians present—and managers—for the whisper had gone abroad of "success" with fair matinee throngs in Paris and London. More unusual for a début here, the concert was broadcast by radio that bade unseen hearers to a silent share at the board of poetry or romance.

Brailowsky is already reannounced for Dec. 5 in the same hall, when there should be opportunity for further critical consideration of his merits, which are genuine as far as they go. Slight, stoop-shouldered, even sentimental, he yet has a gripping vitality that appeared late last evening in the Russian Moussorgsky's "Scoreless Baba-Jaga" and "The Colossus of the Gates of Kiev," as well as an F-sharp minor study by Stravinsky. His Schumann "Papillons" were clearly, lightly played, as with the composer's own "dancing notes." For the rest, a Chopin group and Liszt rhapsody recalled that the player, in addition to Russian training, has the hallmark of a late famous Viennese teacher.

Clement Haile Plays Artistically.

Clement Haile, pianist, who has appeared in Pennsylvania and elsewhere on the tours of Werrenrath and Schumann-Heink, gave a recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. He played artistically, with an unassuming delicacy and grace, such music as Debussy's "Suite Bergamesque," eschewing thunders of flaming high lights that no part of his deftly chosen program demanded. Besides a familiar Beethoven Sonata, his list ranged from Mozart and Pergolesi to Schumann's "Papillons" and a last group from Chopin.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Cuckoo Club," adapted by Avery Hopwood from the French of Paul Armont and Marcel Gerbidon, will be produced here next season with Irene Bordoni as its star.

"Fool's Gold," by Barry Conners, is soon to be produced by Herman Gantvoort. The cast will include Edmund Breese, Edward Garvie, Lotus Linthicum, Shirley Booth and Violet Dunn.

The role of Solanio in Gemier's production of "The Merchant of Venice," erroneously credited in THE TIMES to Georges Tremor, was acted by Marcel Rousseau.

"The One Way Street," by Lucia Bronder, will be produced by Arthur Hammerstein, with Dorothy Dalton in the leading role. The play will open in Detroit on Dec. 29 and come to New York shortly thereafter.

Gemier will repeat "The Merchant of Venice" at Jolson's on Wednesday night of next week, instead of "The Marriage of Figaro."

Puppet Comedy Brought Alive.

Mrs. Feltz Waterhouse....Beatrice Swanell
Clarence Drummond.....Max Figman
Lady Nina Chandos.....Gypsy O'Brien
Langdon Pomeroy.....Cecil Humphreys
Feltz Waterhouse.....Franklin Pangborn
Joan Millett.....Francine Larrimore
Eliot Phelps.....Clifton Webb
Mrs. Clarence Drummond.....Theresa Maxwell Conover

Cosmo Hamilton's new comedy, "Parasites," at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last night proved to be a puppet comedy of an old type very considerably brought alive by the acting given to it. Or it was something of a novel in the vein of "The House of Mirth," with a slightly jazzed up Lily Bart in it and a house of guests somewhat modernized and simplified, if we put it that way; and in it the presence of living characters on the stage before us took the place of Mrs. Wharton's superior skill and vividness.

In a Bar Harbor house the guests are playing bridge night and day, dancing, and supplying opportunities for the dramatist's discoveries of social facts and conditions, not very fresh or startling. Mrs. Drummond and her husband are fashionably related only, without the springs of love. He at 50 now resolves to see something of life, to love, dance, and, as she says on his exit, make a fool of himself. Meanwhile Mrs. Drummond has a sort of pet, Eliot Phelps 3d, a platonic affair, with kissing of the finger tips and something toward Eliot Phelps's expenses, pearl studs, lodging, bridge money. One of the guests is this newest traditional daughter of a rich man left penniless and trying to make her way playing bridge. A rich man thinks he can buy a honeymoon from her. He slips money into her purse to pay her losses that night. She loves him, asks him to her room. But he has mistaken her character; the scene shows her hurt and wronged and wretched. She refuses to accept the title of parasite that he flings at her. In a month she will pay him the money or the honeymoon. The month passes, they meet again by a friend's arrangement at the Drummond house. And what both of them are now appears. At the same time Mrs. Drummond appears in an orchid colored gown and, instead of her chestnut transformation and rouge and lip stick, her own silver hair and natural bloom. In this resolving scene all the marital problems one after one are attended to and wound up before a happy curtain falls.

Francine Larrimore, in the toils of scenes none too real or fresh or gripping, managed to make her part much more than alive. In the scene where she expects a proposal of love and marriage and meets instead of it only misunderstanding and insult, Miss Larrimore created a real tension and sympathy. She made all through the play a breathing character out of what was pretty much a puppet from a novelette and kept her scenes always going. Clifton Webb played every inch of his lines without missing a shade. He had the silly part of a pet parasite, passionless and quick-witted and gentle, and he had every one in the audience watching this Eliot, with his Tell Elliot, tell Elliot, tell Ellie," and thinking that this Clifton Webb was a very deft and amusing actor in such a part. The plot is contrived like a facile novel or a story from the Red Book Magazine and keeps going after that fictional fashion. The ideas and lines are less capable. More than half of whatever interest "Parasites" arouses, which is not always keen or compelling to be sure, is supplied by Mr. Webb and Miss Larrimore.

After an evening or two of classic English comedy, M. Gemier turned last evening to classic French comedy with Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme." And a dramatic piece which the most learned French savants have never classified satisfactorily as either farce or comedy, became under M. Gemier's direction the broadest and merriest of farces, with a dash of extravaganza in the last two acts. The players did not act from the gallery or the boxes and they did not hang head foremost from the flies; but they carried this "bourgeois gentilhomme" through most of the rest of the theatre, up and down the aisles, on steps before the proscenium arch, and before the lowered curtain. M. Gemier laid on thick the bravura qualities in the part of M. Jourdain, in consequence his "Bourgeois Gentilhomme" became an amusing holiday in a repertory of somewhat serious producing.

If, as the academicians aver, so classic a piece as this skit merits more restrained and traditional a performance, one can only hope that they are wrong and point to the occasion of Moliere's composition of the play. It was written largely to order, to the order of no less a personage than Louis XIV who wanted a burlesque of Turkish ceremony. The obliging playwright got round to that in the last of the play by trumping up a viable sort of plot and dubbing the miserable M. Jourdain "Mamamouchi" at the hands of a mufti and his followers.

M. Gemier's production leads up to this climax with a broadening of treatment from incident to incident. In the first act le maitre de philosophie staggers down the centre aisle of the theatre and mounts the stage spouting sophistry if not true philosophy indiscriminately to the persons of the play and the audience. There ensues a rag, tag and bobtail chase around the stage with the masters of dance, music and philosophy mixing up with the perturbed M. Jourdain, and they escape up the aisle while Jourdain drops into an orchestra chair and shouts passionate reproaches at them.

Other "extra-theatre" divertissements enliven the ensuing moments of the play until the Turkish procession streams up the aisle in Act IV., blowing horns, clashing cymbals, ringing bells and emitting other bobbery. Amid music, shouting, dancing, laughter, and at the merciless hands of a menacing mufti, M. Jourdain achieves the peak of his career in quest of all that is "tout a fait gallant" when he is crowned "Mamamouchi" and buffeted about the stage by a merry throng of fake Turks. The final act for joining the hands of the respective lovers is cut short before the noise of the preceding skirmish has died out of the theatre.

M. Gemier's Jourdain is of a piece with the rest of the production. Somewhat fatuous and bloated upon his first appearance, he becomes more simple and boisterous as his career of gentilmanly pursuits goes on, and he fairly expires from ecstasy when he finds that he has been speaking prose for many years. But, alas, it is a bewildered Jourdain throughout most of the play as confusing complications snatch his life further and further from the true burgher's reality and embroil him in amorous affairs, in fashionable dinners and musicals, with a sharp-tongued harpy forever at his heels pulling him down from the sublime heights of gentility. He is fairly mad in the end, tumbling the pages of a Turkish grammar, mouthing strange words which mean such simple things. Poor Jourdain! M. Gemier spares him no humiliation. "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" becomes a buffoon.

TWO NEW PLAYS COMING.

"The Man in Evening Clothes" and "The Harem" During Dec. 1 Week.

Two new dramatic productions were announced yesterday for presentation here during the week of Dec. 1. On Monday night of that week Henry Miller will be seen at his own theatre in "The Man in Evening Clothes," a comedy from the French of André Picard and Yves Mirande. The supporting cast will include Carlotta Monterey, Marjorie Gateson, Marjorie Wood, Ann Winston, Reginald Mason, John L. Shine and Leonard Mudie.

On the following night David Belasco will bring his second production of the season to the Belasco Theatre. This will be "The Harem," adapted by Avery Hopwood from a play by Ernst Vajda. Lenore Ulric will be starred and the cast will include William Courtenay, Leanox Pawle, Robert Fischer, Virginia Hammond, Marjorie Vonnegut and Arthur Bowyer.

The guild's annual solemn mass of requiem will be celebrated in the Actors' Chapel of St. Malachy's Church, in West Forty-ninth Street, at 11 o'clock on Monday morning.

The newly formed Episcopal Actors' Guild will hold its first benefit performance at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Sunday night. The program will include Marilyn Miller, Ernest Glendinning, Nellie and Sara Kouns Elisabeth Hines, Harland Dixon, Evelyn Law, Mary Eaton, Tom Burke, Valeska Suratt, Christine Norman and Will Rogers. George Arliss is President of the association.

GEORGE LIEBLING APPEARS.

George Liebling of Munich and London made his New York début yesterday afternoon at Town Hall in a program which began with Bach and ended with Liszt. Mr. Liebling evidently felt his composers deeply and played them with all the sincerity and passion there was in him. They had been his life study, part of the air he breathed, responsible for the whole of his musical beliefs.

He interpreted Bach with authority; the Schumann Fantasie was nearer to the intentions of the composer than most pianists succeed in getting; the artist had the rare faculty of recreating the idea as well as the time of his composition.

In the same way Mr. Liebling succeeded in reproducing the refinement of Chopin in the spirit of his period, with rather more of De Musset than most players of the day care or remember to give him. The pianist captured the imagination and won his hearers completely.

The last group, consisting of a piece by Mr. Liebling himself and a Liszt, was an anti-climax; more of Chopin would have preserved the sensitive atmosphere which Mr. Liebling had evoked.

THOMAS H. INCE DIES; PRODUCER OF FILMS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 19.—Thomas H. Ince, one of the foremost moving picture producers in the country, died early this morning from angina pectoris at his home in the Hollywood foothills, according to an announcement from his Culver City studio. His death ended an illness which began Monday while he was en route to San Diego. The suddenness of the attack prompted his friends to take him from a train at Delmar, then to hurry him to Los Angeles in a special car, during which journey he was attended by two specialists and three nurses. From Los Angeles he was taken to his canyon home, where his wife, his two sons and two brothers rushed to his bedside before the end came.

Mr. Ince's ascendency from a Broadway actor to one of the most prominent positions in the cinema industry—that of an independent producer—was rapid, though achieved only through the stubborn fighting qualities which characterized the man.

He was 44 years old, having been born at Newport, R. I., in 1880, the son of parents long identified with the theatre. At 7 he acted his first stage role. For several years he played minor parts in Broadway productions but most of his early theatrical life was confined to repertoire work.

Like most of his colleagues of the legitimate at that time, he condemned the movies as an untried, ephemeral, innovation.

In 1910 he returned to New York from an engagement in Cincinnati with the Chester Park Opera Company. He was out of a job, and Joseph Smiley, one of his best friends, offered him a job with the Imp Studios, on Fifty-sixth Street, at $5 a day.

A short time later one of the studio's directors resigned suddenly and Ince filled the vacancy. He did so well with his first production, "Little Nell's Tobacco," that he was sent to Cuba with Mary Pickford, Owen Moore and other early favorites. When he returned he was sent to California, where he established the first studio on the west coast at Santa Monica. The resulting movie colony here was christened "Inceville." Here the first big "Westerns" were made. Success continued and Mr. Ince later was appointed Director General of the Triangle Film Corporation. This corporation, headed by the Director General, D. W. Griffith and Mack Sennett, soon built studios at Culver City, Cal., now the Metro-Goldwyn Studios.

When his contracts with the Triangle Film Corporation expired Ince became an independent producer. He allied with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation under a three-year contract and during this period delivered some eighty pictures, all of which were successful. He subsequently contracted in 1923 with First National Pictures, Inc., producing for them about eighteen cinemas. The latter included "Civilization," "Hail the Woman," "Lying Lips," "The Hottentot" and "Anna Christie."

Mr. Ince has been known in the motion picture industry as a "maker of stars," and many of the present-day public favorites owe their success in a great measure to him. His chief hobby, boating, was evidenced in several of his later pictures. So potent did his craving for the sea become at one period of his boyhood that he ran away from home and signed up before the mast. This move his parents frustrated, believing, correctly, that a greater career in the drama lay before him.

San Diego Theatre Manager and Press Agent Arrested After Confessing to Planting It.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 19.—Max Brunstein, manager of a local motion picture theatre, his press agent, C. C. Pratt, and William F. Fife, were arrested and locked up here this afternoon, following their confession to planting a fake infernal machine with a smoke fuse in the editorial rooms of the San Diego Union. Brunstein and Pratt admitted to hiring Fife for $2 to place the suitcase containing a clock device, battery and wire connections with what appeared to be six sticks of dynamite as a publicity stunt for a "dynamite" film to show here soon, the police said.

Following the arrests and confessions, the Chief of Police and members of the council announced that the film would not be permitted to be shown here, that the manager and his assistants would be held in jail pending further action and the District Attorney was asked to see if a felony charge could be brought against the three. Action also will be taken to cancel the theatre license and an appeal is contemplated to Will Hays, National Moving Picture Director, against this form of advertising in connection with films, the authorities said.

ELMAN QUARTET CHARMS.

Warmly Applauded at the First of Chamber Music Concerts.

The first of Mischa Elman's three chamber music concerts took place last evening at Town Hall before a large discriminating and enthusiastic audience. The name of Mr. Elman would be sufficient to guarantee the artistic merits of the series, but to make assurance doubly sure he has chosen as his colleagues Edward Bachman, Nicolas Moldovan and Horace Britt. The quartets performed last night were Mozart in B flat major, Schubert's posthumous in D minor and Haydn's Opus 64, No. 5.

Under the brilliant leadership of M. Elman, whose all-compelling tone never lost its distinction, the Mozart quartet received a reading that for fine nuances, exceptional charm and melting tenderness it would be hard to equal. The minuetto and adagio were exceptionally beautiful and complete.

Having achieved a work of art in one period, the musicians turned their powers of elucidation upon another composer, a master craftsman of another kind and of a different degree. Schubert's allegro sounded almost cross-grained after the courtliness of Mozart, but there was no mistaking the mournful loveliness of his Andante with its finale dying away in the distance. It found its enchanting echoes in the listeners. The Hayden quartet fitly closed the program.

The audience applauded throughout the evening with the greatest warmth in the endeavor to assure Mr. Elman and his colleagues how much they appreciated this effort to give the best chamber music works the highest possible interpretation.

PROPER DIET IS ADVISED

Speaker at Education Exposition Sounds Warning—Boys' Band to Play There Tonight.

Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute, speaking last night at the Education Exposition, in the Ninth Regiment Armory, Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, said that the present weak spot in the work of life extension is the young woman between the ages of 17 and 32.

"These young women do not show as good a health record as their brothers," he said. "The death rate at this age period is substantially higher among young women; and they do not show the decrease in the death rate from tuberculosis that is found among young women in this age group. Also the sickness rate is higher among young women.

"The question is raised as to whether the dislocation, as it were, of the young female from the old-time environment is not bringing about a greater strain than she can bear. Whatever may be the real cause, this suggestion of weakness in a group in the population where we can least afford to have it calls for active and rational measures to remedy the situation.

"Young women must study more carefully their habits of living, must avoid such injurious indulgences as cigarette smoking, late hours and loss of sleep; must give attention to exercise, fresh air and properly balanced diet. The periodic physical examination is the best hope for this group, inasmuch as it will reveal the individual's particular weaknesses and point the way to their correction and the upbuilding of health."

"Religious Education and Moral Training" is the subject for today's discussion. Tomorrow will be Physical Education Day, and physical training and dancing demonstrations will be given.

The speakers today will include Rabbi Israel Goldstein of Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, Dr. M. T. Shelford, dean of the National Bible Institute; Dr. David G. Downey of the Methodist Book Concern, Milton Fairchild, director of the Character Education Institute, and Professor W. E. Breckinridge of Columbia University.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 19.—A hot controversy between the two directors of the Vienna Opera House, Richard Strauss and Franz Schalk, occupies much space in the Vienna press. The directors continue to hurl insults at each other.

Schalk, who is still the official director of the opera, has not conducted a performance in the Opera House since the exposure of the backstair quarrel in the press for fear of a demonstration in favor of Strauss, whom Vienna is very loath to lose.

In well informed circles it is thought that the new year will see both conductors back in the Opera House, although it is suggested that a duel may first be necessary. Strauss is building a magnificent palace on the ground given him by the City of Vienna. This, he states, is the only reason he will ever return to Vienna.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Brent Glascock, leader of the Rondout, Ill., mail robbery, sat in a Federal court witness chair today and in five and a half hours of testimony related every detail of the hold-up, from planning it with James Murray and William Fahy to splitting the loot with Murray and giving him Fahy's share for delivery to the postal inspector.

As the slender, sad-faced gunman told his story he sat behind $1,247,000 in cash, jewels and bonds, the part of the loot so far recovered. It reposed in four two-gallon open-mouthed jugs, in quart fruit jars and in a big basket.

Twice, he said, he met with Fahy in planning the Rondout and other robberies, the others unsuccessful, and dozens of times he plotted with Murray. The latter, he said, was his pal. He had broken bread with him a thousand times, but didn't hesitate to testify against him.

Nonchalantly he explained that he turned down a $100,000 hold-up suggested by Fahy as a "piker job." Casually he told of carrying gas to Rondout to suffocate mail clerks, nitro-glycerine to blow open car doors, and then he pictured Murray waving a good-bye as the robbers boarded the train they were to rob.

He told of paying $122,000 in Liberty bonds and cash to Murray at different times as loot split, and later talked of "giving Murray his half of $400,000 commercial bonds," which would make $322,000 altogether.

Glascock quietly admitted shooting a man in Oklahoma and blowing safes in Missouri, using perfect English, except for occasional lapses into gunman vernacular, such as "I made a meet with Fahy" and "for three days I drove the get-away."

The loot identified by Glascock, which he recovered for the Government, was made up of $682,000 in Libert bonds, $500,000 in commercial bonds, $50,000 in jewelry and $35,000 in cash.

PAPER SUBWAYS.

It would be a waste of time to subject to close scrutiny the new $300,000,000 plans for subways proposed, or to be proposed, by the City Administration. They are obviously open to fatal objections. They depend upon a huge scheme of financing without any money to do it with. From the engineering standpoint, they contemplate routes almost impossible of construction. In an operating sense, they would be, as it were, built in the air, without connections with existing systems, and compelling many passengers to pay two or three fares. Moreover, the mere outline of the plans will not be ready for some weeks yet, and it would be years before the work could be completed. But why press these and other criticisms? These are mere dream subways. It is not expected to get them off paper. Their sole purpose is to be "good enough subways" until after the next Mayoralty election. Then they would disappear into the void.

They are, to be sure, an outward symbol of the inner disquiet of the City Administration. It perceives that it must do something to meet the rising storm of protest against the do-nothing attitude which has been maintained for seven years. So it offers these hasty and half-baked plans with a great flourish, as something to meet the popular challenge, something to harangue the public about, something to bombard the Legislature with, but something not now or ever to be thought of as a real addition to our rapid transit facilities. Engineers are studying the question of physical obstacles to the building of new subways. But it is now plain to all citizens where the true obstruction lies. It is in the City Hall. It may require skillful politico-engineers to get around it, or to get rid of it, but that is a piece of work which will have to be undertaken before the city will get anything but the sort of paper subways now dangled before it by a nervous and distraught Mayor.

"STRAIGHT" REPUBLICANISM.

By some mysterious process Senator WADSWORTH is become the "leader" of such New York Republicans as are willing to follow him. After confabulation with divers committeemen, officeholders, candidates elect or deject, he has uttered the ancient word of power:

> From now on we are going to stand on our own feet as a party. We are going to enact a straight party program at Albany which will be constructive and forward-looking, and we are going to have straight Republicanism locally wherever possible.

The straight party program includes, presumably, continuing opposition to the earlier Republican program of reorganization of the State Government, which in the hands of Governor SMITH has come to be an evil thing. This city is to be the field of missionary labors for straight Republicanism. Mr. WADSWORTH was too politic to touch on recent melancholy events, and the wandering of 100,000 Republicans, according to Mr. KOENIG's census, into Governor SMITH's fold. He did take the trouble to deny the pretty fable that up-State Republican leaders have solemnly protested to him against the continuing of Mr. KOENIG and Mr. JACOB LIVINGSTON as masters of the Republican organization in this county and in Kings. As these gentlemen sit, quite freshly re-enthroned while their doting followers watch the steady decrease of Republican enrolment, Mr. WADSWORTH contents himself with a reference to the absurdity of the notion that he has any jurisdiction in their case.

Whatever may be thought of the wisdom of these potentates, they are irremovable save by their subjects; and they may well ask what business it is of Mr. WADSWORTH's and the up-Staters to dictate to the local faithful. Incidentally, it was not their candidate who was nominated for Governor. Chairman MORRIS of the Republican State Committeee, speaking Walrusly, tells us "the time has come when the "hyphen should be taken out of Re-"publicanism in the State of New "York." He and the other Wadsworthians will have no more Republican participation in fusion municipal movements. They want to return to the old futile policy of making straight Republican nominations in this city. Fusion weakens the party. Mr. MORRIS permits himself to scold the multitude of "Al Smith Republicans" here. If he wants to keep the party here straight and small, he has found the right way. If Tammany is ever to be beaten, only fusion can do it. The Republican machine has no real sympathy with fusion except for its own purposes, as in the curious alliance with Mr. HEARST.

Temporary alliances and friendly understandings with Tammany suit the machine well enough. The great and growing number of independent Republicans in this city have no use for the Republican machine any more than for Tammany; "straight" Republicanism is a primitive state of mind which they have long outgrown. Often the city has had to look to Albany for relief from Tammany maladministration. Fancy what the independent Republicans, let alone the independents who are not Republicans, will think of the Republican Party of the State when its leaders virtually say: "Henceforth, so far as lies in our "power, you shall have no Republican "aid in your efforts for a capable and "civilized municipal administration. "Tammany misgovernment shall con-"tinue. The Republicans will 'go it "alone' and the city can go to the "devil."

Do the Republican leaders expect to strengthen their party by preventing it from allying itself with the friends of good government, by making it, in effect, the stool-pigeon of Tammany? The "forward-looking" Wadsworthians must wear their eyes in the back of their heads.

JURISDICTIONS WITHIN LABOR.

Proceedings in the convention of the American Federation of Labor at El Paso indicate a policy of truce as regards the late adventure in partisan politics. Mr. GOMPERS, preparing for his retirement, does not take sides. A hint where his heart lies might be found in his designation to an important chairmanship of one of the New York bolters from LA FOLLETTE to DAVIS. It is a fair guess that Mr. GOMPERS is not utterly prostrated by the results following upon the abandonment of the non-partisan policy with which he has been so closely identified. His is a silent "I-told-you-so" to the leaders who forced his hand. Events multiply to show that Labor is not a political unit. The El Paso convention endorses President LEWIS of the United Mine Workers for the position of Secretary of Labor. Nor is Labor a thoroughly solid economic unit. This same Mr. LEWIS, presumably a conservative in the ranks of Labor, appears as the champion of the mine workers against exploitation by WARREN S. STONE of the Locomotive Engineers, who was active in support of LA FOLLETTE.

The Stone case is significant as illustrating a new phase of an old union problem. As Chairman of the Board of Directors of a coal company operating in Kentucky, Mr. STONE is formally accused of refusing collective bargaining with the miners' union, of stationing armed guards around the company's property, of evicting miners from the company's houses and other practices hitherto the monopoly of the "coal barons." Under a new form this is the old "jurisdictional" quarrel as between separate unions. In the building trades, where such clashes have been frequent as the subdivision of labor has gone forward, this would be a real conflict of interests. It has sometimes needed a metaphysician to distinguish between the rival claims of carpenters and lathers or plumbers and metal workers, but the clash of interests is strongly felt. The new development enters when Labor goes in for "capitalism" through the ownership of industries or banks, a process that has been rapidly advancing of late years. Here we apparently have a conflict of jurisdictions in the sharpest form, with Labor as employer arrayed against Labor as employe.

The Federation has its cross-currents. The proposed resolution against WARREN S. STONE is expected to be opposed by WILLIAM H. JOHNSTON of the machinists' union. At first sight this is a puzzle. Mr. JOHNSTON is perhaps the most prominent of the radical leaders in the Federation, and we should expect all his sympathies to go out to a miners' union as against an exploiting coal company. But it so happens that Mr. JOHNSTON was one of the original La Follette promoters, and for the moment his interests run with WARREN S. STONE, the pro-La Follette coal operator, as against JOHN L. LEWIS of the Mine Workers—who is a Coolidge Republican. Mr. JOHNSTON's avowed purpose is to avoid washing dirty Labor linen in public. But it is less a question of soiled linen than of perfectly respectable differences of opinion.

EXPANDING PANAMA TRAFFIC.

The most significant item in the report of the Governor of the Panama Canal Zone for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, is the increase in traffic from 15,878,826 tons in 1923 to 18,493,700 tons in 1924, exclusive of California oil. If this oil tonnage be added, the total for 1924 is 26,148,878 tons. Owing to the fact that this business is only two years old, and reached its peak in September, 1923, declining steadily since that date, it is conservative to make large allowances for its probable temporary nature. Although it is not likely to disappear so rapidly as it developed, it is too unstable to be considered as a permanent source of revenue, and there is danger of overestimating the growth of the total traffic of the canal if the oil tonnage be taken as a fixed quantity.

The increase in tonnage, excluding the oil, amounts to 16.4 per cent. during the last year. If this rate continues, the canal traffic will exceed 50,000,000 tons a year in a decade. This so far surpasses the dreams of those who planned and built the canal that it raises again the problem of what should be done to meet the expected emergency. General JAY J. MORROW, retiring Governor of the Canal Zone, states in the current number of The Outlook that the size of the present locks is adequate for all traffic that can be anticipated, and adds that the extra water supply which will be needed to enable the canal to work to full capacity can be provided by 1932. He does not believe that it will be either necessary or practicable to create a parallel route, or to accept the suggestion of Colonel BUNAU-VARILLA that the canal be deepened to sea level. General MORROW's exceptional knowledge of the engineering problems of the canal would give special interest to a fuller explanation than he gives in The Outlook of his reasons for thinking that the Panama Straits plan is impracticable. Only if it can be assumed that traffic will never go beyond the 50,000,000-ton mark, which is the estimated total capacity of the canal as designed, and which, at the present rate of increase, should be reached at about the time that the last available waters have been impounded in 1932, is it clear that the present facilities will prove adequate in the long run.

If world trade continues to grow as is generally expected, and if, in particular, there is as great a development of the countries of the West Coast of South America as is now anticipated, it seems inevitable that the annual tonnage seeking to pass through the canal will greatly overtax its existing capacity. The canal is big enough for the immediate present—that is, for the next few years. But it is the task of far-seeing engineers to plan today for work which must proceed slowly, and which must be finished in time to meet the traffic demands of 1935 or 1940.

PLUNKITT OF TAMMANY HALL.

A survivor and a character passed off the stage of Tammany Hall when GEORGE WASHINGTON PLUNKITT died. It could not be denied that he had played a useful part in the organization, but with his displacement from district leadership by The MCMANUS, and with the rise of MARTIN SAXE, whose wit and irony drove him from a State Senatorship which he had held for several terms, PLUNKITT declined to a supernumerary. He belonged to a day when a man's grammar did not matter and all that did was the service he rendered to the "organization." In the evening of life he dispensed philosophy and reminiscence from the bootblack's throne in the County Court House. That was the most picturesque part of his career. He stalked the corridors, known of all, with a nod or a hail for Judge or hanger-on, garrulous, anecdotal, oracle and sage, fallen from his high estate, but of a stout and droll courage.

In his old age it is possible that he suffered from delusions of grandeur. He exaggerated his importance when KELLY, TWEED and CROKER ruled. To take him on faith as he talked of the Orange riots in 1871 was to accept him as a great power in the city.

> Mayor HALL sent for me and gave me a small white flag. He said: "Here's this flag; take charge. Whatever you do, I'll sustain you." The riot was at its height when I arrived. I ordered JIM FISK and the Eighth Regiment off the field of battle. I had the wounded taken to the hospitals and the dead to the police stations. There were sixty-two persons killed that day on Eighth Avenue between Eighty-sixth Street and Twenty-third Street.

In another revelation: "Once I was "slated to be Police Commissioner, "but I belonged to the wrong Church." One could never know where fiction took command of the narrative. It will be for the antiquaries of the Hall to edit Plunkittiana. It was true enough that the leader of the old Seventeenth Assembly District and the new Eighteenth was a very hands man. He was particularly in his element when Tammany was going to a National Convention. Then he was master of transportation, made the arrangements and handled the tickets—as he said, "from start to finish." To his reliability as a Tammany factotum this confidence was a tribute. It was a personal grief for him to miss the hectic convention of 1924. He was ill and feeble, a shadow of the handsome fellow he was in his prime, with his bold profile and his curled mustache—and always that diamond headlight in his shirt front.

PLUNKITT served the State, as well as Tammany Hall, at Albany. It was his boast that neither Governor CLEVELAND nor Governor HILL ever vetoed a bill of his. He was fond of calling the roll of measures that became laws: one "in defense of the Museum of Art in Central Park," another appropriating $400,000 for the Museum of Natural History, others creating the Harlem River Speedway, establishing the Bureau of Factory Inspectors, raising the salaries of school teachers, authorizing West Side and Harlem court houses, extending the Eighth Avenue elevated to the Harlem River, transferring the Ninth Avenue "L" tracks to the middle of the street. "Was the bill debated?" he was asked of one of his pet projects. "Why, no," he rejoined; "I introduced it to be passed, not to be debated." He loathed all reformers—he could not speak of one without profanity. Often he denounced "the curse of civil service reform." TWEED, when asked for his occupation, on passing into durance vile, answered that he was a "statesman." G. W. P. never pretended to be anything but a politician. He rejoiced in the memory that he had always kept within the law. He used to quote FERNANDO WOOD's advice to him: "Never take anything from anybody." Said he: "I've followed "that motto all my life. I never stole "anything but a nigger slave." After the deed, which consisted in persuading a "cullud hand" to desert from a ship from a Southern port, Mr. PLUNKITT found a home for him with a negro woman on the west side. The runaway became a porter, and in course of time amassed a fortune. So at least deposed his rescuer.

No politician was ever more practical than PLUNKITT. Quitting school at 11, he drove a horse and cart for "three shillings" a day, became a butcher's apprentice, attained a stall in Washington Market and graduated into politics and contracting. Out of his new business he made more than a competence. Looking back to the dawn of life on Nanny Goat Hill and the beginning of his career, he was proud of his success. In 1903 he said the thing that made him famous, perhaps will get him into the books on Americana:

> Everybody is talkin' these days about Tammany men growin' rich on "graft," but nobody thinks of drawin' the distinction between honest graft and dishonest graft. There's an honest graft, and I'm an example of how it works. I might sum up the whole thing by sayin': "I seen my opportunities and I took 'em."

One of his aphorisms was, "Never monkey with the Penal Code." He declared with feeling: "I've not "gone in for dishonest graft, black-"mailing, collecting from gamblers "and saloon-keepers." "Neither," he added, "have any of the men who made big fortunes in politics." According to his lights, GEORGE WASHINGTON PLUNKITT was as honest a man as ever played the game of public office under Tammany auspices. It was not in him to be hypocritical. He had troops of friends who admired him for calling a spade a spade and never turning his back to an enemy or on a friend.

THE HAPPY PILGRIM.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW, a few of whose myriad friends gathered about him yesterday to recognize afresh his contribution not only to his own generation but to the several generations which his life spans, and to wish him godspeed on his continuing pilgrimage, was praised, above all else, by his fellow-pilgrim ELIHU ROOT for his kindliness. "Never a disagree-"able word, a bitter word, a biting "word" had he said of another in all the years of his public speech. It is not his specific deeds that have given him wide fame. It is the pervasiveness of his love for his fellow-men, his genius for friendship, the power of his geniality. No living American better incarnates the motto of The Pilgrims, whose President he has been these many years, for he is known "here and everywhere" to many by the endearing possessive "our," and he has cheered on their way unnumbered other pilgrims, both in and out of the society which bears the name.

As he approaches the first milestone in his nineties he still keeps his happy outlook upon life. His gallery grows as he goes from strength to strength. Many of his earlier friends have ended their earthly pilgrimages, but younger men and youth have taken their places in this procession of devotion and acclaim. Dr. JOHNSON was underestimating such a cheerful attitude as Mr. DEPEW's when he said that it was worth a thousand pounds a year to have the habit of looking on the bright side of things. It is worth something beyond computation in the currency in which income taxes are paid. It is, indeed, as THOMAS CARLYLE said, "altogether past calculation." No tax can touch the income of the satisfaction which it both brings and gives.

"Pilgrims are we all." And it is good fortune for those whose journey across the earth between the two mysterious eternities has given them even occasional companionship with this happy pilgrim who, like the knightly pilgrim in the Canterbury Tales, and who told with "right merry cheer" his tale anon.

CLASS INTOXICATION.

One of the services rendered by Judge SOPER's decision in the case of Representative HILL is that it establishes upon a legal basis what has hitherto been only a matter of common knowledge—namely, that the Volstead act is class legislation, setting up one standard of intoxication for the workman who drinks beer and another for the farmer who drinks cider or fermented fruit juice. Congress "used the word 'intoxicating' "in a different sense in one section "from that employed in another. "• • • It is obvious that by the "concluding sentence of Section 29 of "the act Congress intended that per-"sons manufacturing non-intoxicat-"ing cider for use in their homes and "not for sale should be in a class by "themselves." Otherwise, Judge SOPER finds, "the sentence has no meaning or use whatever." The workman is subject to statute, the farmer only to fact. If the workman's beer contains nine-sixteenths of 1 per cent. of alcohol, it is intoxicating; but the farmer's cider may go as far as 8 per cent. or so, his wine well above 11 per cent., and it isn't intoxicating unless it actually intoxicates him and the fact is established before a jury.

That such discrimination defies the spirit of the Constitution is obvious. That it is not literally unconstitutional is a mere accident. For many decades after 1787 what we call welfare legislation was undreamed of. Projects for "the general welfare" are contemplated both in the preamble and in the articles of the Constitution, but only in such material matters as depend on the collection and disbursement of revenues. The welfare is always required to be "general" and the taxes to be "uniform throughout the United States." Any attempt to favor the farmer as against the city man would have been as speedily fatal to the adoption of the Constitution as discrimination based on sectional or religious differences. In one respect, it must be admitted, the Volstead act is strictly constitutional. Prohibition stops short of "prohibiting the free exercise" of any religion. Hence sacramental wine and the sacerdotal bootlegger.

The situation is, of course, comic to the American people as a whole—especially to the thrifty rum-runner. But the life of such jokes, like that of certain diseases, is self-limited. The Constitution is no laughing matter, either the letter or the spirit of it. It may well prove that Judge SOPER has performed a permanent national service in so clearly establishing the fact that the Volstead act convicts itself of dishonesty and hypocrisy.

THE EMOTIONAL GRADUATE.

It was not the President of Harvard but the President of Dartmouth who lately declared that chief among the problems of university administration is the "emotional alumnus." The phrase flashed memories of ragtime bands and acrobatic cheer leaders, of snake dancers, of comic opera commencement costumes, of hand-organs and monkeys and goats. But more than such things, it now appears, proceed from the emotional graduate. In his intellectuals also there is ragtime and motley.

On its financial side the modern university is a huge and multiplex corporation, requiring sound business organization in a mass and flexible administration in every detail. Educationally it confronts a well-nigh insoluble problem, that of teaching modern scientific methods without neglecting the humanities, and of inculcating a liberality of mind that stops short of destructive radicalism. Conceivably, the graduate, in the intervals of carnival rejoicing, might accuse his Alma Mater of sacrificing teachers of might to a balanced budget, of accumulating laboratories while the classics decay, of grinding the face of liberalism beneath the heel of the business man's conservatism. Such things have been. But to upbraid it for including a man of any religion or of none in the administrative board of the corporation—one rubs one's eyes! A "Fellow" is chosen because he is a professional and business man of distinguished ability, because he is a patriotic American and a loyal alumnus. His religion has about as much importance in "establishing a precedent" as the color of his hair. And since when has Harvard been in danger of too much religion of any kind?

They manage these things better at Dartmouth. There they have not only diagnosed the psychic cause of snake dances, commencement masquerading and goats, but have set about removing it even in the midst of bright college years. A psychiatrist attached to the Faculty makes it his business to look into the mental and emotional problems of undergraduates and to treat them with a view to their adjustment. Contrary to expectation, the undergraduates have responded in numbers. This may be set down to the ego's delight in the study of the ego, which is accountable for so much of the vogue of the new psychology. But the authorities at Dartmouth think otherwise. The results of psyching the student, they say, are "of inestimable value"—chiefly, no doubt, as preparing a future in which no graduate will accuse the hard-headed Fellows of the Corporation of lending themselves to propaganda—"De Fide" or other.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Navigation Made More Safe.

With justified pride, GEORGE R. PUTNAM, the Commissioner of Lighthouses under the Department of Commerce, states in his annual report that his service now has twelve radio fog signal stations scattered along our coasts, with three lightships equipped for relief, and is establishing new stations as rapidly as the funds for them are provided.

Fog, of course, creates the most numerous and greatest dangers to which shipping is exposed. Modern steamers, or at any rate the larger ones, have little to fear from storms and high seas, directly, but fogs have for them more rather than less terrors than they had for the sailing ships of other days. During fogs the possibilities of collision on the open sea are real enough, but near shore they rapidly increase, for they are multiplied there in several ways.

The radio signal stations, for the ships properly equipped with radio compasses and otherwise for utilising them, give an increment of safety which navigators deeply appreciate and sea-going landsmen also would do so if they understood better than they do what it means when a ship's lookout can see only a few feet ahead.

Mr. PUTNAM says that the United States leads the world in this form of relief as well as having been the first to give fog signals successfully, and it now has more such stations than all Europe put together. He credits Canada, however, with having made important progress in radio aids to navigation.

But Radio Has Its Limits.

Much as radio can do and much as can be done with it, it would be well for those whom its large potentialities have impressed not to make the mistake of assuming that the new and wonderful facility is superior to all its predecessors in achieving all the purposes for which it can be used.

For instance, it is not without efficiency as an advertising medium or in the distribution of information and in the asking for one or another form of action. Only in particular circumstances, however, is it better than anything else for these purposes, and it shows no signs of displacing or even seriously rivaling the printed word. An assumption often made is that anything broadcast from one station reaches all members of the great army of listeners-in. In no case is this true, and it is not half true even as regards announcements, speeches and the like which have had much preliminary publicity and are deeply interesting to many. Ordinarily, it is only a small part of the radio audience that happens to be tuned in with a particular station at a particular time, most of it is getting something else from somewhere else, while not a few of the set owners are not listening at all just then.

For several nights recently Adjutant General DAVIS has caused to be broadcast an appeal to all veterans with a right to "adjusted compensation" either to send in their applications at once or promptly to let him know that they do not intend to make an application. He does this for the reason that he does not want to prolong unnecessarily the employment of the large force of clerks and investigators in his service. But he would have no trouble at all in getting his appeal into every newspaper in the country, and they all would print it as news without charging him a cent for it. Thus he could reach a far greater fraction of those whom he has in mind than he possibly can reach by radio.

A Museum Would Be Safe.

Americans with the historic sense and an appreciation of historic associations were so articulate and audible that they exerted enough influence on the Government to save the Subtreasury in Wall Street when the destruction of that handsome and venerable building was threatened. Homeless or inadequately housed bureaus or agencies of the Government, however, always are looking for quarters, or better quarters, than they have now, and to several such the old building, since the removal of the Federal Reserve Bank, has been a constant object of desire.

The latest to show eagerness to move in have been the official enforcers of prohibition. They thought that the old structure would make ideal headquarters for them, and for a time there was a chance that permission for them to move in would be given. Strong opposition in several quarters developed at once and now the plan has been abandoned.

To make the old Subtreasury safe it should be put to some use congruous with its associations, and what could be more congruous than, after handing it over to the American Scenic and Historic Society, to let that organization turn it into a museum where could be collected and exhibited relics and memorials of the early events on or near this site? The society gladly would undertake this task, and New York would be assured against the loss of one of the too few material reminders of its past that now are left within its boundaries.

Men of Science Never Talk That Way.

It is for chemists to determine to what extent Dr. GEORGE W. CARVER of Tuskegee is worthy of recognition. Whether eminent or not, he seems to have done useful work in discovering and developing new uses for several common Southern products, and therefore it can be claimed for him that he has shown abilities of a sort not present in many of his race. It therefore is to be regretted, and by none more than by the intelligent members of that race, that Dr. CARVER, in discussing his own achievements, should use language that reveals a complete lack of the scientific spirit.

Real chemists, or at any rate other real chemists, do not scorn books out of which they can learn what other chemists have done, and they do not ascribe their successes, when they have any, to "inspiration." Talk of that sort simply will bring ridicule on an admirable institution and on the race for which it has done and still is doing so much. All who hear it will be inclined to doubt, perhaps unjustly, that Dr. CARVER's chemistry is appreciably different from the astronomy of the once famous Rev. JOHN JASPER, who so firmly maintained that the sun went around a flat earth.

A TRIBUTE TO A JOURNALIST

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That is a graceful tribute which you pay today to the late Mr. Karger, the famous Washington chief of The Cincinnati Times-Star bureau. I should like to join in it.

My reason is that I shall never forget the kindness that I, as a new official in danger of being overwhelmed by his job in the early exigencies of the war time, received from Mr. Karger.

Force of circumstances had placed under my hand in the Council of National Defense a number of great running news stories of the utmost delicacy, full of back-fire possibilities. In the first year of the war the council was about all the war machine there was on the civilian side, yet its position was always charged with dynamite because of its sketchy legal power. Congress suspicioned the dollar-a-year men, and the country as a whole was on the fence as to conditions in Washington.

Consequently whatever flowed from the council to the public had to be most carefully handled. Mr. Karger was one of the seasoned, mellow and generous veteran correspondents who put me on the right track and kept me from making a fool of myself at a time when much half-baked news was on the wires. He saw our difficulties at a glance, gave freely of his counsel, and never in the faintest degree attempted to take advantage of the situation for his own paper. I think that a good outline of what constitutes a gentleman in journalism.

Just a word of the Washington correspondents as a class. During thirty-seven months in office of the immediate pre-war, war and post-war periods I gave some 10,000 interviews to newspaper men, aside from my regular administrative duties. A great deal of the news was of the highest importance. Throughout I adhered to understatement, and therefore to date have not had a single word to retract. It was very often necessary to be absolutely candid with the newspaper men, whether they could print the actual facts or not.

Save in one instance, and that fellow was a maverick, they never once broke faith with me. Bear in mind that the news situation generally in wartime Washington was one to plague the soul of the most patient and forgiving correspondent.

The Hamilton Grange.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Noticing in THE TIMES of today the report of the purchase by the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society of the Hamilton Grange, I, as the granddaughter of Jacob and Hannah Schieffelin, should like to add a few items of interest concerning the matter.

Mr. Jacob Schieffelin owned the property from the Hudson River to the old Bloomingdale Road and in 1800 conveyed a plot of sixteen acres—sold or presented—to General Hamilton. This plot would be today on the southerly side of 143d Street near Convent Avenue.

Mr. Schieffelin's home, Rooka Hall, overlooked the Hudson River at now about 138th Street, and it was destroyed only a few years ago. General Hamilton was an esteemed friend and an almost daily guest at this mansion.

On the grounds was a Summer pavilion, after the "Temple of the Winds" at Athens, with doors open to the four winds of the heavens, and in a grove of trees they erected a monument with this inscription written by Hannah, Mr. Schieffelin's wife:

With pensive awe this hallowed shade explore—
From life's obtrusive cares relaxed, his mind,
Gentle, tho' firm and virtuous, tho' refined.
Here where the stream, soft murmuring as it flows,
Soothes every wayward passion to repose.
Oft hears his accent floating on the breeze,
Where fancy oft the embodied spirit sees.
Reader, like him, thy destined hour improve
In all we reverence, in all we love.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I agree heartily with Miss Susan F. Hunter in regard to the condition of North Carolina, and with the ideas of Mr. Strothers. I know the conditions there, certainly in part, and have written and spoken whenever I felt that any one would listen to me about the shame of it. Not only in North Carolina but in Tennessee and Virginia and other States the schools are a disgrace to the United States. The best schools in many parts of the South are supported by charity, the pupils working their way through. Having been for a portion of my life in a school of that type, and appreciating so thoroughly the opportunity of going there, I have tried in many ways to aid others. One of the best schools, I believe, in the South of this type is the Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn.

But the point that seems to make no impression is the fact that there should be need for charity among people who are the descendants of the first settlers of this country. No one who has not really lived among them can know of the complete isolation of thousands of hamlets in the South. Miss Hunter has the right of it. Their food alone is something terrible. It is not because of lasiness or lack of natural intelligence that things have become as they are. It is due, I think, to the despondent and poor condition of the South after the war. We hear so much now about rebuilding France and Belgium. If only some of these energetic ladies who have done so much for Europe could go and see with their own eyes how many of our own people live! The miserable little one-roomed schoolhouses, where the teacher comes early in the morning to sweep and build a fire in a stove, where there are often not three books alike in the entire school of perhaps ten or twenty pupils.

We hear so much about rebuilding the library at Louvain. These people had none to rebuild. Never have had any. Looks as though they will never have much. We are so torn over the state of Europe. It is so much more interesting than our own common plebeian folks. When one realizes how much we have sent to Europe, and then sees the absolute poverty of our own people, it is positively ludicrous.

THE WORD PUZZLE.

Within the firelit room he sits alone,
The ink-marked puzzle-book upon his knee,
Wrinkling his brow in grave perplexity
Of futile pondering for a word unknown.
Outside, cold gales brawl madly, and the moan
Throbs in a mournful, ceaseless monotone.
But though whole nations fumble in a haze
And dark enigmas brood on midnight skies
Fateful for many a race and creed that dies,
He heeds them not! With undistracted gaze
He plods and labors through the lettered maze—

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to say a few words in reply to the editorial appearing in today's issue (Nov. 11) relative to psychical investigation.

If any one will turn to Volume I. of the S. P. R. Proceedings he will find that "spirit communications," as their study, did not form any part of the original "objects of the society." It was organized to study all sorts of alleged phenomena, all odd facts, such as thought transference, clairvoyance, apparitions, haunted houses, movements of objects, &c. The attention of certain investigators has been more and more directed toward certain types of spiritistic manifestations because of their constant recurrence and the extremely good evidential material which has been obtained from time to time through Mrs. Piper, Mrs. Leonard and other mediums. Let me, however, in order to clarify the problem, state a few facts which are platitudes to the experienced psychical investigator, but which do not seem, even yet, to be appreciated sufficiently by the general public:

1. We desire only facts; theories can follow later. We desire the truth, whether that be the establishment of a phenomenon or the exposure of a fraud.

2. The society, as such, holds no opinion; individuals in it may and do. These opinions differ, as they naturally would.

3. Because psychical researchers investigate these phenomena it does not prove that they are convinced of spiritualism, or of anything at all. It shows merely that they are investigating; no more.

4. Psychic students are not credulous fools, but extremely cautious, careful investigators; far more so than the average man and woman. A study of their publications would prove this.

5. We believe it true that many manifestations may be real, in the sense that they are definitely supernormal; but not necessarily spiritistic. They may be, and probably are, due to hidden and unknown mental and physical powers latent within ourselves. We desire merely to discover these powers.

6. Psychic phenomena are mental, on the one hand, and physical on the other. They often inter-blend, however.

7. They may also be (a) experimental, or (b) spontaneous. The former are obtained through mediums, at seances; the latter may and do happen to any one at any time. Thousands of reported spontaneous cases prove this.

8. Psychical researchers themselves have been the first to unearth and disclose fraud when it exists. They have in fact done more than any others to detect it.

9. There are all sorts of psychic manifestations which obviously have nothing to do with "spirits," but exist nevertheless! These are independent of all mediums, paid or otherwise.

10. The spiritistic hypothesis may be used and applied as a working theory, without any disgrace being attached thereto. It may be tried out, just as we apply a theory of evolution or a theory of gravitation. Again, the facts come first, the theory later.

11. The mere fact that alleged spirit messages do not necessarily come from departed spirits does not prove that the medium is a conscious fraud or a charlatan. He or she may be perfectly honest, but the messages may originate subconsciously. Much work has been done in this field by psychical researchers themselves.

12. Psychical research is merely the scientific investigation of all sorts of odd phenomena not included in any of the orthodox sciences. This investigation may be quite scientific and without emotion. Psychic students are just as well aware of the possible pitfalls as are any "outsiders."

In sum: I have devoted myself for twenty-five years to this subject, because I believe it important, and because I believe that genuine supernormal phenomena occur. I have received neither thanks nor money in return; merely abuse and ridicule. However, that does not matter in the cause of truth. HEREWARD CARRINGTON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The good people who express surprise at the decision in Maryland in the case of Mr. Hill must have short memories. When the Volstead act was before Congress, the section which has been enforced in Maryland was inserted in the bill to get the votes of the representatives of the farmers' districts. The farmers did not want to give up their cider and there were others who did not wish to give up their grape juice. So the definition of intoxicating liquor as "a beverage containing one-half of 1 per cent. or more of alcohol" was by another section, 29, made inapplicable "to a person for manufacturing non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices exclusively for use in his home." The act would never have been passed over President Wilson's veto had it not contained this section.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the promise given by this section has been availed of all over the country. THE TIMES has frequently reported enormous shipments from California of grapes suitable for making wine. There is probably not a State in the Union to which these shipments have not been made. In all of these the grapes have been made into light wine which is not intoxicating. The prosecution against Mr. Hill is the only one of the sort which the Government has ever undertaken, so far as there is any report, and the ruling of the Maryland Judge is in accordance with the strict language of Section 29 of the Volstead act.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the prohibition cases was that Congress had the power to define intoxicating liquors and that it had done so in the section before mentioned. But this definition by Section 29 is not applicable to the case of manufacturers what is not in fact intoxicating for use in a man's own home. It would be a simple matter to amend the Volstead act so that on the one hand persons manufacturing these non-intoxicating beverages should be permitted to sell them under proper regulation and pay a tax to the Government. This would relieve the burdens now pressing upon taxpayers of which the National Grange is complaining bitterly, and it would remove the temptation to make and smuggle the intoxicating liquors which are attractive to those who cannot get the light wine and cider.

The Republican Vote for Smith.

Samuel S. Koenig is endeavoring to evade responsibility. The defeat of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt by Republican voters (assuming Mr. Koenig to be correct in stating that Republican voters elected Governor Smith) is evidence that a large number of voters of this State are voting for the man who, in their opinion, is best qualified to fill the office at stake, regardless of party lines. The defeat of Colonel Roosevelt, therefore, is attributable to the fact that many thousands of Republicans, realizing that Governor Smith was better qualified to act, as the Chief Executive of this State, voted as their convictions dictated, not as their party dictated.

Too long has the general voting public been misled by false issues raised by one party or the other. It is a relief to witness an election, even

ANNE WHELAN WEDS GILBERT W. KAHN

GREAT ARRAY OF SOCIETY

The marriage of Miss Anne Elizabeth Whelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Whelan of East Orange, N. J., to Gilbert W. Kahn, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Frank J. Gould Steadily Improves.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—"Improving steadily" was the word which came today from the residence of Frank Jay Gould at Maisons-Lafitte as to Mr. Gould's condition. He was operated upon on Monday for an abscess in the stomach.

At the private hospital where Mr. Gould is confined the operation was described as a "slight affair of no importance." A newspaper reporter, however, was not allowed to see the patient, although he could hear him laugh when he received one of his business agents during the day. It is expected that Mr. Gould will be out in a short time.

CARDINAL LOGUE DIES IN 84TH YEAR

DEATH DISTRESSES VATICAN

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Cardinal Logue died suddenly today. He had passed his eighty-fourth birthday in October. His health had been failing for some time, but he celebrated mass as usual yesterday morning in Armagh Cathedral and fulfilled his customary duties during the day. He died peacefully at 6 o'clock this morning.

His death will be regretted sincerely by Irishmen of all parties and creeds. Throughout the political struggle of the last half century he was always a moderating influence, and succeeded in retaining not only the affection and confidence of his flock but the respect of his opponents.

During the war he was a firm friend of the allied cause. He was interested particularly in the appointment of Roman Catholic chaplains in the navy, and did much for Irish soldiers who fought in the British Army. He maintained cordial relations with more than one primate of the Church of Ireland, who were his neighbors in Armagh.

Ireland Now Without Cardinal.

BELFAST, Nov. 19 (Associated Press).—Michael Cardinal Logue, Primate of All Ireland, died early this morning, and all Catholic Ireland mourns his demise. He passed away at his residence, Ara Coeli, in Armagh. The funeral of the prelate will be held next Tuesday.

To the very end of his life the eminent prelate exercised his powers as a priest. He said mass Tuesday morning, and Tuesday night, less than twelve hours before he died, he paid his customary visit to the Blessed Sacrament.

Cardinal Logue was born on Oct. 1, 1840, at Raphoe, and therefore was 84 years old. He was created and proclaimed Cardinal in 1893. His last public appearance was in October, when he attended the Catholic Truth Society's annual conference in Dublin, a gathering which he never failed to attend. He said then, however, that he expected to spend the next anniversary of the conference in purgatory.

The death of Cardinal Logue leaves Ireland without a representative in the College of Cardinals. Prior to the bestowal of the red hat on him, St. Patrick's See, Armagh, had been without a Cardinal.

Although one of the most distinguished figures in Ireland for forty years or more, no one was more modest or less pretentious than Cardinal Logue. Although a Prince of the Church and with manifold duties to perform, he had no secretary. He attended personally to all his correspondence.

The home life of the Cardinal was as simple as his official life. When a distinguished English cleric visited him not long ago, the Cardinal met the visitor at the door and carried his bag inside the house.

A few years ago he noticed an American in his cathedral and showed him about. At the end of the tour the visitor reached into his pocket and, turning to his guide, inquired:

"What's your name, my man?"

"Oh," replied his Eminence, "some call me 'Old Michael,' and then some call me 'the Cardinal.'"

The Irish sense of humor was strong in the prelate. In a battle of wits he was seldom known to come off second best; nor was ever averse to telling a good story against himself. One such concerned an examination he conducted in a village, chiefly remarkable for its population of traders, of some adult candidates for confirmation whose education was more practical than theoretical.

The Seventh Commandment was the subject of discussion.

One candidate was a successful dealer in donkeys and mules, as well as being skilled in the repair of pots and pans.

"Suppose you concealed the defects in a donkey you were selling by practices which are known to experts like you?" asked the Cardinal. "Would that be sinful?"

"No, your Eminence," came the reply without a moment's delay.

"Would it not be deceiving the purchaser?" the Cardinal inquired.

"Troth, I am afraid your Eminence would never make your living selling donkeys," the candidate remarked.

Cardinal Logue's successor as Archbishop of Armagh will be Archbishop Patrick O'Donnell, who succeeded him in the Raphoe Bishopric and was appointed his coadjutor in 1922. Archbishop O'Donnell took an active part in the Irish nationalist movement, being Treasurer of the now defunct Irish League.

Death Distresses Vatican.

ROME, Nov. 19 (Associated Press).—The sudden death of Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, has caused a profound impression at the Vatican. Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, communicated the news to the Pope, who had the deepest esteem for Cardinal Logue's piety, loyalty and high character and also for his tact, which permitted him to be a good Catholic and a fervent patriot during the most agitated periods of his country's history.

His death has caused distress in various Irish centres in Rome, especially the Irish College, where Cardinal Logue always stayed when he came here. His last visit was to attend the Conclave which elected the present Pontiff.

First Primate of All Ireland.

Michael Cardinal Logue was 84 years old, having been born at Kilmacrenan, Ireland, on Oct. 1840. He studied at Maynooth and Durbourne and on his graduation from these institutions his scholarship was already so recognized that he was appointed, although not yet a priest, to the professorship of theology and belles lettres in the Irish College of Paris.

He was ordained in 1866, returned to his native diocese of Raphoe in 1874 and was made a Doctor of Divinity. Two years later he became Dean of Maynooth and Professor of Gaelic, which position he surrendered in 1878 for the Chair of Dogmatic and Moral Theology.

At the age of 39, in 1879, he was consecrated Bishop and for eight years labored among the people of Donegal who, at that time, were impoverished by a failure of the crops. In one year he collected for the relief of the people of his diocese nearly $150,000. In 1887 the parish priests of Armagh chose him as coadjutor to their Primate, and Pope Leo XIII., in 1893, elevated him to the Cardinalate. The event filled Armagh with pride, for it was a dignity never before achieved by even the greatest of 114 Primates going back to the days of St. Patrick.

The Cathedral of Armagh, under Cardinal Logue's administration, was enlarged in 1897 and seven years later the Cardinal broke all precedents by having the historic interior redecorated.

In 1908 the Primate visited the United States at the time of the centenary celebration of the founding of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York. He celebrated pontifical mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral and was later entertained by President Roosevelt, whom he greatly admired. Before returning home he placed a wreath on the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon. He also met Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller and in a public statement praised them for their philanthropies.

The long and bitter civil strife in Ireland during and after the establishment of the Irish Free State was a great grief to the Cardinal. From his pulpit he lamented the slaughter and wanton hostilities of all warring factions, and the substance of his many sermons during this period was invariably a fervent appeal for peace and understanding. Last year he advised the Free State Government to clear the prison camps as quickly as possible of all interned persons except those convicted of crime or liable to be tried for a crime.

Despite his kindly attitude, however, the Primate in October of 1922 was hissed by Catholic women in the streets of Dublin after he had attended a reception at the Mansion House, from which several women interrupters had been ejected.

This, however, was only one of many indignities suffered by the Prelate during the fitful period of Ireland's readjustment. In 1922 his automobile was twice halted by Ulster constabulary, who searched the Primate for incriminating documents. In describing his second experience at the hands of the Black and Tan soldiery he said that one of them thrust a rifle under his nose while another covered him with a revolver. He was then searched.

When asked for an opinion regarding the epidemic of strikes which were spreading through Ireland in 1919, the Cardinal recommended some form of copartnership or profit sharing. Socialism, a political creed especially popular in Ireland at that time, he denounced as "a species of Bolshevism, the bloodstained career of which has shocked the sensibilities of Christendom, reviving in the twentieth century in exaggerated form the worst horrors of the French Revolution."

BIG PRICES OFFERED FOR I.R.T. CAR CARDS

Ward Sought New Car Contract to Help the Interborough, Transit Board Is Told.

In a hearing held by the Transit Commission yesterday a contest developed among three prominent advertising corporations for the contract giving control of the car card advertising in the trains of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

To meet the Artemas Ward Corporation's guarantee of more than $43,000,000 revenue for a twenty-year period, a representative of the Shaw Advertising Corporation tendered terms which, he declared, would yield the Interborough profits "nearer to $125,000,000." He also offered $400,000 cash bond "and a greater guarantee than the Ward Company." The Barron G. Collier Company also desired to enter into the competition and pledged "equal service to the public and greater revenues to the I. R. T."

The Ward Company holds the present contract, which runs until December, 1925. It is proposing a new contract for twenty years, to be dated from Jan. 1 last. Ralph Norton, who appeared for the Interborough, told the commission that the Interborough's Board of Directors considered the Ward bid the most favorable that could be obtained. He pointed out that the proposal had been voluntarily made by Mr. Ward, President of the Ward corporation, who, knowing of the Interborough's financial difficulties, had expressed a desire to be of assistance.

The proposed Ward contract not only insures an increase of $2,100,000 for the remaining four years' life of the existing compact, but grants also a $300,000 cash payment. The total figure offered by Mr. Ward for the twenty-year period is $43,145,000.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, the Transit Commissioner presiding at the hearing, asked Mr. Norton upon what he based the conclusion that the Ward offer was the best that could be obtained when it appeared that no other concern had been invited to bid. Mr. Norton replied that, because the existing contract still had four years to run, the Interborough was not in a position at present to execute a contract with any other advertising company.

Mr. Norton admitted that the cash offer, together with the increase in revenue guaranteed for the next four years, in view of the present financial condition of the Interborough, had a great deal to do with the directors' acceptance of the contract.

A representative of the Shaw Advertising Corporation and William L. Ransom, representing the Barron G. Collier Company, were present to oppose the approval of the contract by the Transit Commission.

The Shaw representative declared that his company was prepared to make a bid in which it would demand only "25 per cent. of the gross receipts during the life of the contract," whereas the Ward proposal insures the Ward concern approximately twice that much. He pointed out that, because of the increase in Interborough facilities and the natural growth in business in general, the gross receipts for the next twenty years probably would reach the $200,000,000 mark. Then came his comparison of total guarantees of the two companies and his offer of a $400,000 bond.

Mr. Ransom declared that the Collier company was prepared to offer equal service to the public and greater revenues to the Interborough and that it was eager to bid in competition. He said the Collier company did not want to bid merely to raise the bid of the Ward company, but that it did request an equal opportunity with the Ward company and any other company in submitting sealed bids. Mr. Collier, he added, had repeatedly asked the Interborough to give him an opportunity to bid when the present contract with the Ward company expired. In view of this and of a report by the commission at the time the present contract was granted to the effect that the commission intended to have competition for a future contract, Mr. Ransom urged that the commission disapprove of the Ward company's application.

The hearing was adjourned, subject to the call of the commission.

First Day at Anderson Galleries Brings $5,966 for Quimby Relics.

The first of two sales of early Staffordshire figures and other objects, the collection of the late Thomas Quimby of London, took place at the Anderson Galleries yesterday afternoon, bringing in $5,966.

No. 55 of the catalogue, a rare figure of Benjamin Franklin, titled "Washington," brought $200, and went to Mrs. R. L. Sparks. This is one of the rare Anglo-American statuettes made in the Staffordshire factory and labeled wrong in both the Franklin and Washington figures. No. 135 went to H. M. Coolidge for $140. It is an eighteenth century carved mahogany English lowboy. George Luks paid $350 for No. 143, a four-part Sheraton mahogany dining table. It has two centre sections that can be used for breakfast or dinner en famille, with the ends as console tables; or it can be quickly assembled for a large dinner.

Benjamin Brown paid $110 for No. 147, a pair of eighteenth century circular, inlaid, mahogany, English library tables, and W. E. Cowperthwait paid $170 for No. 150, an American eighteenth century carved and gilt convex mirror. Furniture, glass and other objects as well as Staffordshire-ware will be offered this afternoon.

SEEKS NEW ROGERS DATA.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—No date has been set for hearing the charge against Miss Marjorie Schneider of driving while intoxicated the automobile in which Charles G. Rogers, a nephew of Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, received fatal injuries on the night of Nov. 1.

Prosecutor Ward Church of North Haven, at whose request the hearing was indefinitely postponed on Saturday, admitted today that he has been seeking further evidence against Miss Schneider. He refused to say whether this evidence was of a nature that might lead to prosecution on other charges.

Mr. Church was asked whether he contemplated further action against Miss Schneider with regard to criminal responsibility for Rogers's death. He refused to answer, or to say whether there was any possibility of calling the hearing on the intoxication charge in a few days.

State's Attorney Armon Alling reiterated today his previous statement that his office was satisfied with the findings of Coroner Eli Mix that Rogers's death was accidental, and that so far as he was concerned the case was closed.

MISHAP DARKENS BROOKLYN

Explosion in Electric Conduit Manhole Burns Two Workmen.

A large part of Brooklyn was without electric current for several hours yesterday afternoon as the result of an explosion in an electric conduit manhole at Broadway and Quincy Street in which two workmen were badly burned.

The workmen, Richard Colton of 101 Albany Avenue, Brooklyn, and Albert Witte, 133 Schaeffer Street, Brooklyn, were rescued from the manhole by Policeman Zeuck of the Ralph Avenue Station. At St. Mary's Hospital it was said they would recover.

The explosion was caused by a spark from a cable the men were repairing. The fumes from the burning insulation overpowered Witte. Colton crawled halfway up the manhole ladder and the policeman saw and rescued him. Then Zeuck went below and brought up Witte. Reserves from the Ralph Avenue Station were needed to keep back the crowd that gathered.

The explosion caused a short circuit that threw the lighting system dependent on the main line cable out of use until after nightfall. Numerous stores in the vicinity were forced to use candles until the cable had been repaired. A near-by theatre was dark during a performance, while an emergency circuit was being put into use.

From the Founder's Writings

sits high up in his leafless tower, laughing at the last robins as they take leave of their old haunts among the forest trees to make their long flight southward.

During the Summertime the squirrel frisks and frolics within the foliage of woods, safe from forbidden gunners. When Winter comes he hides and sleeps in his snug storage house of food in the hollow of the tree where he has a goodly store of nuts and grains to last him until the snow and cold have gone.

FEDERATION COLD TO PLEA FOR SOVIET

Convention Hears Without Response British Delegate Urge Friendly Relations.

HE CONDEMNS COMMUNISM

C. T. Cramp Declares the British Extremists Have Failed to Split Labor Party.

ADVOCATES FEWER UNIONS

Bolshevist Doctrines Have Been Rejected by German Workers, Their Representative Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 19.—Fraternal delegates from England, Germany and Canada united today at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in condemning communism and attempts of Bolshevik propagandists to get control of the trades union movement in their respective countries.

The speakers were C. T. Cramp, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the British Labor Party; A. B. Swales, President of the British Trades Union Congress; Peter Grassman, Vice President of the German Federation of Trade Unions, and John Colbert of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress.

Mr. Cramp denounced "communism" and "all its works," and "the mumbo jumbo of Leninism." However, he and Mr. Swales urged that the trade unions of the Western countries consent to friendly relations with Soviet Russia, while insisting on adhering to their own methods and opposing dictatorship from the outside.

Mr. Grassman, the first German delegate to be heard in a convention of the American Federation of Labor, explained that the German trade unions had been a target for Moscow, but that Bolshevism had been rejected, so that communism in Germany today was of no account.

Cold to Soviet Recognition.

The suggestion of the British delegates that American labor agree to friendly relations with Russia was received in silence. The federation has for seven years been strongly opposed to recognition of the Soviet.

The fraternal delegates received a warm welcome, but the Americans refrained from any manifestation when the British speakers made several suggestions that have been bitterly debated and defeated in past conventions of the Federation. These suggestions included amalgamation of small trade unions into large, powerful federated organizations; tolerance for radicals of all kinds within the ranks and refusal to dismiss them from participation in union activities; formation of a labor party and recognition of Soviet Russia.

The present "proud position" of the political labor movement in England, Mr. Swales asserted, was due in no small measure to the trades union movement. "So well were the representatives of the people managing our great national and international problems," he added, "that a combination of political forces of the capitalist class defeated our labor government and a general election had just been completed when we sailed from England."

Labor was not discouraged by its defeat, but was looking forward to the time when it would be the dominant party in British politics, he added.

Mr. Cramp said he had nothing but contempt for those who entered the ranks of the trade unions for selfish interests, seeking notoriety by giving lip service to communism and trying to disrupt the trade unions and the British Labor Party by leading strikes that were doomed to defeat in an effort to embarrass the old leaders. He had no use for those Communists who rose in the unions "to stab better men in the backs."

"These are the tactics of British Communists," he declared. "They have no use for truth telling. If their ideas were brought to fruition, we would have a human menagerie in which the law of tooth and nail would prevail."

Calls German Communism Weak.

"With us the war is over," said President Gompers in presenting Mr. Grassman, representing 6,000,000 organized German workingmen.

"It is obvious that trade union leaders and their point of view are hated to the utmost by the Communists, whose aim is to conquer the unions in order to make them instruments for the political purposes of the dictators in Moscow, to make Germany a Bolshevistic State," said Mr. Grassman.

"With remarkable tenacity, they have agitated within the German trade unions for the last five years. Although they have made trouble for us sometimes, they have never reached their goal. As a real movement, communism in Germany is of no account. It strikes root only where distress and misery make the people desperate and hopeless.

"As to Germany, communism can be looked upon as a mental disease caused by the terrible times we passed through, but it disappears when one can have some hope for a better future.

"Therefore we German workers accepted the Dawes report, despite serious objections, for it will help us to bring our country with normal economic life and sound finance, with the old frontiers, resources and raw materials, then quite another situation would have confronted us.

"In spite of the heavy burden the Dawes plan loads on our country, in which the German worker will have his share, we all hope it will lead to a peaceful development in Europe and to better conditions in Germany."

Robert Haberman informed the delegates that they were invited as guests of the Mexican Confederation of Labor to Mexico City to assist in the inauguration of President Calles on Nov. 30. Special trains will take the delegates from El Paso to Mexico City.

Lewis Not Cabinet Candidate.

"I am not a candidate," was the comment of President Lewis of the United Mine Workers, who arrived here this morning and learned that a resolution had been introduced asking the convention to request President Coolidge to appoint him to the place soon to be vacated through the resignation of James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor.

Mr. Lewis would not further discuss the subject. He has not indicated to his closest friends whether his comment meant that he would decline the position if it were offered to him. Some of the delegates believe that if the President asks Mr. Lewis to take a place in the Cabinet, he will not refuse.

Another man whose name is also mentioned in connection with the vacancy in the Cabinet is John Donlin, until recently President of the Building Trades Department of the Federation.

A Paved Highway Next Year, New York to Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 19.—The State Highway Commission of New Jersey has sanctioned the proposition to pave the New York-Atlantic City road in 1925. The contract, the largest ever given at one time by the State, will involve thirty-five miles of road, from Toms River to the edge of the meadows at Mullica River. This will provide a continuously paved highway from New York to this resort, a project for which local civic organizations have long fought.

LAW ON PRESS CONDEMNED

Speech Indicates Liberals Will Vote Against Fascisti on Internal Policy—Two More Deputies Resign.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 19.—Maintaining that by restricting the liberty of the press Mussolini broke the promise he made to the Senate shortly after the Matteotti murder, when he bound himself to govern only through Parliament, the Liberal Deputy Boeri today brought the first note of criticism into the Chamber's discussion of the Government's internal policy. The measure adopted was unconstitutional, he said, and was rendered even worse by the partisan way in which many prefects applied it. The speech, which was frequently interrupted by Mussolini and by the Minister of Internal Affairs, caused something of a sensation, especially when the orator declared that the press decree was aimed only at the Government's enemies.

Mussolini rose and shouted "No, no. We have applied it also against Fascist papers."

Deputy Boeri then went on to suggest that a new law on the press was being presented to the Chamber as a vote-catching measure to influence Deputies to vote in support of the Government. He was this time interrupted by Federzoni, Minister of Internal Affairs, who said "We will present a new press law to the Chamber after it has voted confidence in the Government."

Deputy Boeri then turned his attention to numerous municipal and provincial councils which have been dissolved by Mussolini and are being administered by Royal Commissioners appointed by him. This, also, he branded as unconstitutional and proof of the fundamentally illegal spirit which guided the Government's actions.

This part of Deputy Boeri's speech was also frequently interrupted by Mussolini, whose voice, however, was drowned by the din raised by the Fascist deputies.

Deputy Boeri closed his speech, amidst lively comments of the whole Chamber, with these words:

"Remember, Deputy Mussolini, that last June you said to the Senate that the majesty of the law must be strengthened and protected. Today it is the whole of Italy that shouts this invocation to you."

This speech is taken to indicate that the Liberals—with the probable exception of the Liberal followers of ex-Premier Salandra—will vote against the Government at the end of the discussion on internal policy.

The Government's position meanwhile was further weakened today by resignation from the Fascist Party of two more Deputies. Though the material loss of strength is insignificant, the moral force of these resignations is considerable.

CITES HIGH BIRTH RATE AS REASON FOR THANKS

Governor Smith's Proclamation Also Points to Lower Death Rate and Prosperity.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 19.—The people of New York State should be grateful at Thanksgiving for the blessings of a high birth rate, constantly decreasing death rate, abundant production in agriculture and manufacturing, and prosperity and general happiness, Governor Smith said in his annual Thanksgiving proclamation, which follows:

Coming close to the time when the year nineteen hundred and twenty-four will have passed into history, by well established custom we should set aside a day when our minds and thoughts may be taken from material things and devoted to a Thanksgiving to the Great Benefactor whose blessings have been showered upon our country and upon our State during all of our history.

We have witnessed these blessings made manifest by a high birth rate, a constantly decreasing death rate, and by an abundant production in agriculture and manufacturing, bringing prosperity and general happiness.

Now, therefore, I, Alfred E. Smith, Governor of the State of New York, do proclaim Thursday, the 27th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, as Thanksgiving Day, and recommend that in our gratitude we gather in our places of worship and offer our prayers to Almighty God in thanksgiving for the blessings he has so freely bestowed upon us in the past, and beg of him the continuance of his watchful care over our great country and our great State.

MOTHER OF 3 KILLED WHEN RUN DOWN BY BUS

Driver Is Arrested and Children Are Taken to the Society in Absence of Father.

Mrs. Grace Forquion, 30 years old, of 429 East Eighty-sixth Street, the mother of three children, was knocked down and killed last night by a municipally controlled motor bus at First Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street. The husband of the victim is a night worker. She was on her way home when the bus, in turning into the avenue from Eighty-sixth Street, knocked her down.

Policeman Campbell of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station arrested the driver, Milton Cohen. When he learned the three children, Robert, 6; William, 8; and Pauline, 3, were alone at home, Campbell took them to the Children's Society for the night.

Information about the accident was withheld at the station under a rule of the Police Department applying to accidents in which the city is involved.

REFUSE TO GIVE UP GERMAN EXPORT TAX

BOTH TREATIES HELD UP

Transfer Committee Will Soon Decide on Repayment to German Exporters Under Recovery Acts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The position reached in the negotiations for a commercial treaty between Great Britain and Germany may be stated as follows:

The British delegates had asked for the most-favored-nation treatment in regard to British exports. The Germans offered to concede this if the following three conditions were accepted: (1) German banks to be allowed to open branch offices in London immediately; (2) employment of German sailors and stewards to be permitted in British ships; (3) the 26 per cent. duty on German exports to be modified. Later the Germans asked for complete abolition of the 26 per cent. duty, arguing that unless it were abolished it would be impossible to obtain ratification of the commercial treaty by the Reichstag.

The attitude of the British Government toward the demands contained under 1 and 2 is on the whole favorable. It is felt there really is no reason why German banks should not be allowed to carry on directly business which is now done through firms well known for their German connections. Certain steamship companies also expressed the view that relaxation of regulations which would permit them to carry German-speaking stewards might be useful, but on the question of the 26 per cent. duty, as matters stand at present it is very unlikely the position will be modified. It is understood British and French views on the subject coincide completely.

French Negotiations Lag.

PARIS, Nov. 19 (Associated Press).—Franco-German commercial negotiations were resumed today after the return of Dr. Trendelenburg, the chief German technical delegate, from Berlin. While the delegates were taking up their task at the point where a snag was struck at the previous meeting, Ambassador von Hoesch called on Jacques Seydoux, Assistant Political Director of the Foreign Office, and discussed the political aspects of the problem.

It is understood that the Germans no longer are insisting on the abandonment of the recovery tax of 26 per cent., although it was made known that persistence in the recovery of this tax might affect the vote in the Reichstag on the ratification of any commercial agreement that may be reached.

It is the impression in official circles here that the Germans are relying on Agent General Gilbert's decision to definitely relieve them from the recovery tax and that this snag in the negotiations has been eliminated. It is still thought, however, that the negotiations will be drawn out, as it is anticipated that the Germans will present other motions in place of the recovery tax on which to bargain for more favorable treatment.

Germans Await New Decision.

BERLIN, Nov. 19 (Associated Press).—German official circles steadfastly decline to comment on the controversy precipitated by Agent General Gilbert's letter to Finance Minister Luther in which the reparations official informed the German Government of his decision to bring the question of auditing and disbursing sums collected on the tax recovery acts within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Transfer Committee.

The German press also has been requested by the Government to refrain from discussing the issue, there being an apparent desire to protect the Agent General against any embarrassment resulting from the German participation in discussions now current in London, Paris and elsewhere regarding the effect of the continued practice of imposing the 26 per cent. levy.

EIGHT ROBBED IN HAT STORE

Within two blocks of the Fifth Street police station three bandits late last night held up George Holstein and seven customers in Holstein's hat store at 123 Second Avenue. The hold-up men escaped in an automobile after taking between $3,000 and $4,000 in jewelry and cash.

The three, according to the police, participated in a hold-up of a Sarnoff-Irving hat store at 119 Second Avenue two weeks ago.

Despite the warning that an outcry would mean death, the eight victims followed the three bandits into the street and set up a cry for help that brought Patrolman Oscar Magnuson of the Fifth Street station in a department automobile. Magnuson gave chase to the bandit car but was quickly outdistanced.

Holstein and a customer, Samuel Polinsky, of 127 Delancey Street were in the front of the store when the three, wearing caps, walked in, drew revolvers and ordered them into a back room. Here Holstein's pockets were rifled of $50. Turning to Polinsky, the bandits took a $600 diamond ring, a $200 diamond stickpin and $250. The number of victims in the back room gradually increased to eight, as customers entered the store. One bandit removed his hat and stood behind the counter in the attitude of a clerk.

PRINCETON STARS ARRESTED

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—Edmund C. Stout, Captain of the Princeton University football team, and Lou Van Gerbick, a former member of the team and a star hokey player at Princeton, were arrested here tonight charged with disorderly conduct. Both were locked up and will have a hearing tomorrow.

The pair were taken into custody outside of a theatre. The manager said they attempted to force their way through the stage entrance and that one struck him with a cane. The students are said to have told the manager they were acquainted with some of the actresses.

Six Bandits Rob Michigan Bank of $19,500; Girl Kicks $97,000 Out of Sight to Safety

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Nov. 19.—Six bank robbers shot their way to liberty after holding up the State Savings Bank at Farmington at noon today, escaping with $9,500 in cash and $10,000 in negotiable securities.

Sixty automobiles, carrying Sheriffs, deputies, farmers and tradesmen armed with shotguns and rifles, halted every car on the road for hours. It is estimated that more than 200 persons are pressing the search. Late in the evening it appeared the gunmen had evaded the net, however.

The car in which the robbers escaped from Farmington was recovered. The robbers abandoned it when it ran out of gasoline and continued their flight in a smaller one which they stole at the point of revolvers from the first passerby. The abandoned machine was riddled with bullets and stained with blood, indicating that one, at least, of the gunmen was wounded in the fire which greeted them as they left the bank.

Four hold-up men entered the bank. They left a fifth on the street outside to act as a lookout and a sixth in their automobile. Walking directly to the directors' room the robbers found the board in conference. Howard Warner, son of former Governor Warner and President of the bank, was struck on the head with a revolver when he rose from his chair. He was knocked unconscious but not injured seriously. Other directors and employes of the bank, including four women, were forced to lie on the floor.

Edgar E. Pierce, cashier, was pushed into the vault and one of the thugs slammed the door shut and ordered him to hand out through a wicket all the money inside. Two guns were kept at the wicket while Pierce obeyed.

While the two robbers were directing Pierce the others kept watch over those lying on the floor. The latter included President Warner and Byron Pierce, the Vice President; Inman Nichols, assistant cashier, and Lucille Harmon, Margaret Moore and Winifred Walling, all tellers. Charles Dredge, a farmer and an unidentified woman patron also were forced to lie prone on the floor. Miss Moore managed to kick $30,000 in currency and $67,000 in bonds out of the bandits' sight and thus save them.

The robbers bundled their loot together and started for their car. Ben Myers, a Special Deputy Sheriff, saw them, grabbed a gun and fired. Others joined in the shooting. The robbers returned the fire.

SPANISH NOVELIST ACCUSES THE KING

SPAIN LIKE CZARIST RUSSIA

In a Pamphlet of 100 Pages Ruler and Military Directory Are Bitterly Assailed.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Vicente Blasco Ibañez's manifesto against King Alfonso of Spain, a pamphlet of 100 pages, published in France, England and the United States today, charges the King with being directly and personally responsible for the Spanish military disaster at Anual, in Morocco, in 1921, in which General Silvestre and several thousand Spanish soldiers were killed and thousands of others made prisoner.

The Spanish author also charges King Alfonso with betraying the French by giving secret information to the Germans during the war.

Blasco Ibañez accuses Alfonso of having written General Silvestre a letter commanding the Moroccan army to "do as I say," and adding: "Don't bother about the instructions of the Minister of War, who is an imbecile."

General Silvestre advanced against the advice of Madrid, says Blasco Ibañez, and was surrounded and his army annihilated.

Concerning the alleged betrayal of the French, Blasco Ibañez charges that King Alfonso, who had boasted of being a Francophile, one day discussed the war situation with the French Military Attaché, and afterward, when the French had discovered the secret of Germany's code, it was found that the German agent had reported verbatim everything the French Attaché had said to the King.

The French Attaché subsequently gave the King, as a test, adds Blasco Ibañez, information which had no foundation, and this was found to have been transmitted within a few hours to Berlin by the German Ambassador.

Queen Victoria, according to Blasco Ibañez, is "mostly a sort of prisoner at the Madrid Court. During the war," he adds, "when one of her brothers, a British officer, died, she lived resigned in isolation amid a court in which everybody, including her husband, was Germanophile. Today this Princess, if only because of her English education, must suffer in seeing Spain, a backward monarchy, tear up her constitution and submit to military tyranny worthy of Czarist Russia, while England, one of the first countries of the world, is governed by civilians, by liberals."

Spain's continual defeats in Morocco, he asserts, are explained by the fact that Alfonso directed operations from Madrid and that he aided the Primo de Rivera movement in advancing the date of the revolt because the Chamber investigation of the Anual disaster had drawn up a report on the responsibilities of this affair, which the Directorate seized and never published.

"Thanks to the Bourbon monarchy," the writer says, "the country of Don Quixote has become the country of Sancho Panza—gluttonous, cowardly, servile, incapable of conceiving an idea which goes beyond the feed-bag."

HERRIOT TO ADOPT POINCARE DEBT STAND

Holds France's Obligations Must Be Cut in Same Proportion as Claims.

PARIS, Nov. 19 (Associated Press).—Premier Herriot's attitude on the war debts of France will be the same as that of Poincaré when he was Premier if the question comes up at the Finance Ministers' conference in December on the division of the German reparation payments, according to information from official circles today.

The French delegate, it is stated, will declare France intends to deal with the debts as a business matter without any appeal to sentiment, and will say that France cannot consent to be treated on a basis different from Germany.

The French debts, it will be held, must be reduced in the same proportion as the French claims. Germany's reparation obligations have been cut down 60 per cent., according to the French figures, and the French will ask a similar reduction when it comes to funding their debts, it is declared. This was always M. Poincaré's contention.

Premier Herriot, who appeared, at the time of the Chequers Court and London conferences, to be inclined to make the question partly a matter of sentiment, now is said to have gone back to the position of his predecessor.

It is thought now that the question of the war debts, if discussed by the forthcoming Finance Ministers' conference, must in any case be made the subject of a separate conference, which may closely follow the meeting held to divide the reparation receipts. There is, however, an inclination in political circles to demand that any final action be postponed until it is seen just what the Dawes plan is going to yield.

FIGHT OVER CARUSO'S NAME.

Friend Asks $300,000 for Negotiating for Its Use in Advertising.

The use of the name of the late Enrico Caruso in advertising a brand of spaghetti was the basis of a suit before Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel yesterday against the Atlantic Macaroni Company for $300,000 by Marziale Sisca, friend of the late tenor.

Sisca asserted Caruso received a large income from the Atlantic Macaroni Company for the use of his name, and that after his death generous royalties were paid to his estate, but that the plaintiff had received nothing for negotiating the contract. The defence is that nothing is due to Sisca.

The trial will continue tomorrow.

SWEARS FIRM PAID SILKWORTH $3,000

TRADED WHILE INSOLVENT

Broker Admits Discussing Financial Difficulties With President of Consolidated Exchange.

DeWitt C. Raynor, senior member of the defunct brokerage firm of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, testified yesterday before Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand and a jury that his firm had made payments totaling $3,000 to William S. Silkworth, former President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Silkworth, three members of the Raynor firm, which failed for nearly $2,000,000, and three other defendants are on trial on charges of conspiracy and use of the mails to defraud.

Raynor was all day on the stand. Just before the adjournment he testified that three audits, including one by the Consolidated Stock Exchange, had disclosed the insolvency of his firm. He further asserted that his firm continued to trade on the Consolidated Stock Exchange after he had talked over the matter of the house's insolvency with Mr. Silkworth. Between the second and the third audits, he said, the debts of the firm increased about $100,000 in ten days.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company issued a statement announcing that one of its employes, C. H. Wentz, mentioned in Raynor's testimony on Tuesday, had refunded $3,000 paid to him by the brokers to facilitate wire connections for the firm, and later had been discharged.

Raynor testified that most of the firm's transactions were handled through the Curb firm of McQuade Bros. and Francis X. Quillan, former Curb and Consolidated stock broker. Some of the transactions, however, were handled through the firm's floor brokers on the Consolidated Stock Exchange.

Paid Silkworth for Favors.

He told of three $500 payments made to Silkworth for "favors." On one occasion, he testified, Silkworth's comment, upon receiving the payment, was that he needed money for "the baby's shoes."

He said that from June, 1921, to January, 1922, he gave Silkworth about $2,500, payment being made by check. He said that in the early part of April, 1922, the tickers were shut off. Raynor became alarmed at the thought of a possible break in the market while the tickers were out. He said he sent Earl H. Truesdell with a check for $560 to Silkworth. Meanwhile he called up Silkworth to explain about the difficulty of having no ticker service. When he returned to the order room, he said, he found the tickers working again. The witness was asked if the $500 was ever refunded to him. He replied in the negative.

"Late in February or early in March I was called on the carpet before the Ways and Means Committee of the Consolidated Stock Exchange," Raynor testified later. "I received a letter. Whether it was addressed to the firm or an individual I don't remember. But I went over."

"Called on the Carpet."

"Did you have a consultation with members of your firm?" asked Assistant United States Attorney Peter J. McCoy.

"Yes, sir."

"Then you went to see Silkworth."

"When I talked it over with Mr. Silkworth he told me substantially that there were certain difficulties and that they were investigating things. Silkworth said they were having trouble with certain factions, but that everything would be all right; he hadn't lost control of the situation.

"Some members of the committee—I think Mr. Cook—asked me if we were short 25 per cent. of our customers' stock. I said no, we were more than 50 per cent. short and that if they didn't help us we'd likely be 100 per cent. short. Silkworth was there, and ordered that part of my testimony stricken from the minutes."

Mr. Raynor then told of a private audit the firm had made. It showed an insolvency to the extent of about $400,000. Referring to the audit of March 14, Assistant Attorney McCoy asked the witness if his firm "after that report continued to receive accounts from your customers?" The witness replied in the affirmative.

"Yes, we did."

"And you knew you were insolvent?"

"Yes, I did."

The witness testified that he talked frequently with Silkworth about the situation, and said specifically that he discussed the firm's insolvency with the former head of the Consolidated Stock Exchange.

SUES FOR £121,000 PAID AS HUSH MONEY

CALLED BLACKMAIL PLOT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—How £150,000 of hush money is alleged to have been paid by an unnamed "Eastern potentate" on account of a liaison with a married woman, how the lawyer for the injured husband kept £121,000 of this and how the wife was deprived of another £10,000 was told today by counsel in a case before Lord Darling and a special jury in the High Court.

The suit was an action of Charles Ernest Robinson for £125,000 against the Midland Bank. It turns on technicalities but behind it is an extraordinary tale of intrigue, according to Lord Halsbury, Robinson's counsel. Robinson is a man of 50 who has been in the butchering business in Australia and was a bookmaker on the English turf.

Mrs. Robinson inherited in 1916 a patent medicine business and from then seems to have been much better off than her husband. The Robinsons, according to Lord Halsbury, frequently quarreled, but lived in the same house on and off till 1919. Then an acquaintance named Montague Noel Newton, whom the counsel described as "one of the biggest scoundrels unhung," represented to Robinson that his wife had been in Paris with the unnamed potentate.

Robinson talked of divorce proceedings and Newton induced him to consult a legal firm called Appleton's, which, according to counsel, consisted of two men named Wilkinson and their managing clerk, William Cooper Hobbs. Hobbs brought Robinson an offer of £250,000 to drop the case, and ultimately, in November, 1920, at an interview with Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, handed Robinson a packet of £25,000 in bank notes. Robinson said the counsel handed the entire package to his wife and left the room.

Lord Halsbury then described transactions which he alleged led up to these divorce proceedings. He told how an acquaintance Mrs. Robinson had with Newton led on in the middle of 1919 to an intimacy and how he then by threatening to tell her husband tried to get possession of her business and when she repulsed him actually, according to counsel, knocked her about. The result was Mrs. Robinson invited a certain Mrs. Bevan to live with her in her London house.

Then on armistice day, 1919, the two women went to the victory ball at Albert Hall and there made the acquaintance of an "Eastern potentate" who was called throughout the trial "Mr. A." and he was at that time only 24 and was accompanied by an English aid and an Indian secretary. The result was the two women, the potentate and the aid met a few weeks later in Paris and occupied the same suite at a hotel. There they were detected by Newton, who at once informed Robinson.

Mrs. Robinson returned to London and a couple of weeks later received by direction of "Mr. A." a packet of £5,000 one-pound notes. Of this sum £4,000, said counsel, went to Hobbs for the Appleton's services, and then on Jan. 17, as Mrs. Robinson was sitting in her room with the money lying on the bed, Newton reappeared and, according to Halsbury, took another £10,000 from the packet, knocking Mrs. Robinson spinning across the room when she tried to prevent him.

Mrs. Robinson till July of last year, went on counsel, that Robinson learned from the English aid of the potentate that the latter had paid £150,000 and not £25,000 to settle his relations with the Robinsons. The money later was traced as having gone to Hobbs, Newton and the aid.

Counsel then outlined certain financing transactions which he alleged were quite irregular, by which he contended £121,000 went to Hobbs, £6,500 to the English aid and £1,000 to Newton.

TROTSKY DENOUNCED IN PARTY RESOLUTION

He Is Accused of "Perverting Bolshevist Ideals" and of Writing Untruths About Lenin.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 19.—A resolution of censure against Trotsky was passed by the conference "activitiest" members of the Communist Party after the report made by Kamenieff on Trotsky's latest literary activities. After last year's controversies in the party, Trotsky, although accepting the internal policy recommended by the Central Committee, put himself virtually out of active party work.

He devoted his time to literary work. His latest book, entitled "1917," in which he tells the story of the preparations for the Bolshevist revolution, and his articles on "The Lesson of the October Revolution," which he published in the Moscow press in connection with the recent anniversary, provoked renewed attacks against him from his Communist colleagues.

They accuse Trotsky of "gross misrepresentation of the history of the Bolsheviki and the October Revolution, and perverting the real relationship between Lenin and the Central Committee of the party on the eve of the Bolshevist Revolution."

The resolution which has now been passed against Trotsky by the conference alleges:

"By misstating the facts of the history of the party and giving an untrue version of events, the Minister of War endeavors to pervert Bolshevist ideals, deluding the party, the Communist International and the whole country regarding the real relations of Lenin to the party during the period of the revolution."

In severe and indignant terms Trotsky is charged with attempting to substitue his own principles, which they term "Trotskism," for Lenin's. This, his opponents allege, is an attempt to plunge the party into another discussion and to renew the campaign against the central institutions of the party.

"Trotsky," says the resolution, "broke his pledge to the party congress to abstain from activities which might imperil party unity. His present activities might engage the party in a renewed controversy, which is not wanted and would be dangerous."

The conference appeals to the Central Committee to take vigorous and decisive measures to prevent "misrepresentation of Bolshevist ideas and to carry on a wide campaign against Trotsky."

Special articles against Trotsky were also written by Stalin, Bokolnikoff and Zinovieff. Referring to the activities of those who will not fall in with the party lines, Zinovieff said "such members of the party should be placed in the position of generals without an army."

MENOMINEE FALLS, Wis., Nov. 19.—Charging that her neighbor, Philip Rudolph, owner of an apiary, "harbors and keeps vicious bees, well knowing them to be of such disposition," Mrs. Augusta Muehl has started suit against Mr. Rudolph for $2,000 damages, saying she had been caused untold agony when one of Mr. Rudolph's bees maliciously stung her on the arm, although she gave it no just cause.

The complaint further states that said bee "did leave home duly incensed because it was recklessly and wantonly abused, harassed, annoyed and pestered by Mr. Rudolph."

QUESTION COUNSEL ON RAIL VALUATION

BOTH SIDES ARE HEARD

Railroads' Attorney Expects Little Change From Tentative Figures—Commission's Lawyers Deny Injury.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Seldom has the Supreme Court demonstrated by queries propounded to counsel keener interest in a case that was shown today during the argument of the appeal of the Delaware & Hudson and other Eastern railroads to have reviewed the tentative valuations placed upon their property by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The steady stream of questions from the bench gave counsel on both sides little time for anything except to answer them.

The court seemed particularly interested in developing whether, in the event it should refuse to examine into the tentative valuations fixed by the commission, the carriers of the country would have an opportunity for a judicial review of the valuations after they had been made final and before the commission used them as the basis in rate-making, in the recapture of excess earnings and in other administrative acts.

The advice to the court was conflicting. H. T. Newcomb, counsel for the railroads, insisted that the carriers should have the protection of the courts in revising the tentative valuations, and that irreparable injury would be done the railroads should the commission be permitted to use, as he alleged it was now doing, the tentative valuations as prima facie evidence. He insisted that the work of the commission in making the valuation had been unlawful in that certain items specified by Congress to be included had been ignored.

Justices of the court, after developing that the railroads bringing the suit had filed protests with the commission, wanted to know why they had not prosecuted them instead of appealing to the courts. Some of the Justices suggested that if objections of the railroads were presented to the commission it might revise its tentative valuations before making them final and remove all grounds for complaint.

Such results were not considered probable by the carriers, Mr. Newcomb told the court. He stated that the action of the commission upon the complaints of the railroads with regard to the items which Congress intended should be included in the valuations had convinced the carriers that no material changes would be made by the commission. It was not only a loss of time in looking to the commission for relief, he said, but it was highly important that the courts should promptly interfere to prevent the commission from continuing to use what he termed the unlawful tentative valuations.

Counsel for the railroads also contended that the commission had failed to furnish the railroads the data which Congress had provided should be given them to enable an intelligent prosecution of a protest before the commission. He explained that the present suit sought to compel the commission to furnish such data.

Government counsel disagreed with Mr. Newcomb in substantially every essential feature of his complaint. Blackburn Esterline, as counsel for the Department of Justice, and P. J. Farrell, for the commission, emphatically denied that the railroads were threatened with injury from the tentative valuation. It was the intention of Congress that the valuation of railroad property used in transportation should be made by the commission, Mr. Esterline contended, while should the railroads succeed in their present effort the work would be done by the courts and not the commission.

Both Government counsel assured the Court that the railroads would have ample opportunity for a judicial review on any final valuation, and that in the meantime the commission was not using the tentative valuations as prima facie evidence in any proceedings.

They denied that the commission had not followed the law in reaching its tentative valuations. In some cases it was impossible, they said, for the commission to obtain data from sources designated by Congress. This was true, Mr. Esterline said, with respect to the original values in the Delaware & Hudson valuation. Due to the age of the company, he explained, it had been impossible for the commission to find such records, but the commission had, he said, obtained the data with reasonable accuracy from other sources.

Taking up categorically the grounds of complaint of the railroads, Mr. Farrell insisted that the commission had followed provisions of the law in its valuation procedure and that in making its final valuations it would correct any errors the railroads could point out in the tentative data.

WOULD LEAVE ROADS ALONE.

Sir Henry W. Thornton Gives Advice on American Railways.

A plea that railroads of the United States be allowed to work out their own destinies was made by Sir Henry W. Thornton, head of the Canadian National Railways, at a dinner given at the Hotel Commodore last night by the National Industrial Traffic League in connection with its annual meeting. Sir Henry, after tracing the history of transportation, said that the present railroad era calls for the greatest degree of cooperation ever needed in that field, and added:

"It seems to me that the finest exposition as well as the most useful effort in the direction of cooperation will come through the united effort on the part of all of you in this country, who love your country and are patriotic, to leave the railways of the United States alone to work out their destinies. Your great arteries of commerce are too important to the people of this nation to be the football of politics, and if the shippers, through the industrial traffic managers, would unite in an effort to prevent ridiculous, hampering and indeed unpatriotic legislation and give your railway executives an opportunity to demonstrate what they can do, then for purely selfish reasons I think you would have served yourselves better than in any other fashion.

"I want to register my opinion that no country has a more honest, capable, patriotic lot of men than those who are charged with the responsibility of administering the railway systems of the United States."

RAILROADS TO SPEND $1,100,000,000 IN 1925

THEY WANT NO NEW LAWS

American Association Announces Planks in Its Legislative and Economic Platform.

TO KEEP PUBLIC INFORMED

Desire All Problems Dealt With as Economic, Not as Political—Promise Greater Efficiency.

Seven planks in the legislative and economic platform of the first-class railroads were drafted at an all-day session of the Association of Railway Executives in annual meeting at the Yale Club yesterday. Estimates by the executives indicated that during 1925 the railroads would expend approximately $1,100,000,000 for new equipment and improvements in addition to the $2,150,446,426 authorized during the last two years.

Several hundred executives, including practically every important railroad official in the country, attended the meeting, which expressed itself as satisfied with the political and the business outlook for the coming year. This is the first large gathering of railroad officials since the election, which was accepted throughout the railroad community as a repudiation of the Government ownership idea.

The executives promised a campaign to improve the equipment and the service of the railroads on the same scale as in 1923 and 1924. They also directed attention to the expenditure of $1,077,207,000 for equipment and improvement in 1924, compared with $1,059,149,000 the previous year. In an official statement they outlined their platform as follows:

"That all railroad problems as they arise should be dealt with and settled as economic questions, which they are, and not as political issues, which they are not.

"That there is no condition existing today which calls for any urgent legislative action by Congress with respect to the railroads, either as to rates, labor relationship or valuation.

EASTERN CAGE BODY DISCARDS ZONE RULE

Barber of Yale Re-elected President and Officials Are Appointed at Annual Meeting.

The Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League has abolished the zone rule for the 1924-25 season. This change, which was made at the annual meeting of the organization at the Pennsylvania Hotel, is not in agreement with the official rules of the game, but was made under a provision that permits the league to change or interpret the rules to suit its own needs.

The purpose of the change is to speed up the league contests and make them more open, or, as one official put it, to bring about more contact among the players and have less whistle-blowing. So far as games in the league are concerned, there should be no difficulty under the new ruling, but there may be some hitch when league teams oppose fives outside the league which are playing under the official rules. The probabilities are that the zone rule will be abolished for these contests also.

Under the zone rule, when a player is fouled in his own goal zone the opposing team receives two free throws for goal. This will not be true under the new league rule, but if a player is fouled in the act of throwing for goal, or immediately after he has thrown for goal from any place on the floor, the opposing team will get two free throws for goal.

In addition to this sweeping change in the rules, the meeting transacted the regular business and called a rules interpretation meeting for Dec. 7.

The following officials were chosen for the coming season:

William M. Barber of Yale was re-elected President and Ellwood W. Kemp Jr. of Columbia again was chosen Secretary and Treasurer. The Executive Committee will include, besides Messrs. Barber and Kemp, Reynolds Benson of Columbia, Rodney Berry and Edward W. Butler of Cornell, H. H. Salmon Jr. of Princeton, J. L. Kilmarx of Dartmouth and Ralph Morgan and Ernest Cosens of Pennsylvania.

The same coaches as last year will be back at Dartmouth, where Lew Wachter, brother of the Harvard coach, will replace George Zahn, who has resigned.

The league schedule, which was adopted at the meeting, follows:

Jan. 3—Yale at Penn.
Jan. 5—Columbia at Penn.
Jan. 10—Princeton at Columbia.
Jan. 16—Yale at Dartmouth.
Jan. 17—Columbia at Dartmouth.
Jan. 17—Cornell at Penn.
Jan. 20—Princeton at Yale.
Jan. 30—Penn at Dartmouth.
Jan. 24—Princeton at Cornell.
Feb. 7—Yale at Columbia.
Feb. 7—Penn at Cornell.
Feb. 12—Penn at Columbia.

Hawes, Kelly and Snowden yesterday joined the New York University basketball squad, having been delayed in starting their work for the court game because of the football season, which now is over for the New York University warriors. Hawes, who is captain of this year's five, Kelly and Snowden are veteran players. Among the others who are back from last season are Mayer, Hillenbach, Handler, Ingram, Nichols, Boecher, Segal and Cohen.

Coach Cann put his squad through a drill in fundamentals yesterday. Two teams went through some stiff practice. In all Coach Cann now has half a dozen teams, but next week will cut this number down to four and later will reduce the number to first and second teams.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Nov. 19.—Middlebury wound up its most successful football season here today, when it overwhelmed Lowell Textile, 65 to 7. Alfonso Third Among Winners During 1924 Racing in Spain

MADRID, Nov. 19.—A review of the 1924 racing season in Spain shows that 293 races were run at Madrid, Seville, Aranjuez, Barcelona and San Sebastian. The purses distributed totaled 1,338,750 pesetas, of which 166,550 went to steeplechases. The horses that participated numbered 1,347. Count Cimera was the largest money winner, with 236,000 pesetas. Marques Llano San Javier was second, with 136,000, and King Alfonso third, with 133,000. The premier jockey was J. B. Forestier, with thirty victories out of fifty-one mounts. Coke was second, with twenty-four victories out of fifty-five mounts.

COLUMBIA ELEVEN DRILLS ON DEFENSE

Settling down to real work for the Syracuse game on Thanksgiving Day, Paul Withington, the Columbia coach, began with his defense yesterday, indicating possibly that the Blue and White mentor will fight a defensive battle against the powerful Orange eleven in the Polo Grounds game. With Columbia showing a sweeping attack against West Point, Withington apparently shares the general feeling that the Lion's defense still leaves something to be desired.

At any rate, Withington and Dr. Brides concentrated their attention on the line, particularly the second and third-string forwards, while the other coaches worked to strengthen other cogs of the machine. In dummy and real scrimmaging the B and C linemen got more of a hauling over than they have received before this season. Brides is working especially to quicken the charge and increase the aggressiveness of the varsity understudies.

Real scrimmaging was still withheld from the varsity eleven, which is not being hurried after its fine exhibition against the Army. It was hinted last night that Coach Withington would stage a light scrimmage today, but with the Baker Field turf as hard as rock and the weather still very cold, the coaches hesitate to take any chances on injuries to a squad which is now at the peak of its condition.

The hardest work yesterday for the varsity was dummy scrimmaging on the defense against the Syracuse attack as put on by John Depler's junior varsity team. Scsit returned to his old place in the backfield, Kirchmeyer going out, and Koppisch, Pease and Empringham completing the quartet. Signal drill and a long session of individual coaching and fundamentals comprised the remainder of the program for the first eleven.

Team B also faced the jayvees in soft scrimmaging. They went through about twenty minutes of the hard varsity, with the line receiving the most intense sort of instruction from Dr. Brides.

Tickets for the big game at the Polo Grounds went on sale at both Columbia and Syracuse yesterday, the Blue and White taking an initial allotment of 9,500 seats for undergraduates and alumni. After watching the sale of tickets and counting up the number of mail applications, Graduate Manager Benson said that this quota would be exhausted before next week. Syracuse has taken another large batch of tickets for disposal in the up-State section, and in addition to this there will be a special sale for alumni of the metropolitan district at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The sale for the general public is being conducted at the offices of the Giants, 15 West Forty-fourth Street.

24 STEVENS PLAYERS GET VARSITY LETTERS

Hudson Named to Lead 1925 Team—Allen Has Injured Skull, Examination Shows.

At the annual football smoker at Stevens Institute of Technology last night the elections for captain and managers and the receivers of varsity letters for the season which closed last Saturday with the Rensselaer game, were announced. Edward J. Hudson of Newark, stellar performer at halfback, was elected captain of the 1925 team. Edward B. Redhead, Brooklyn, is manager for the coming season and Herbert L. Smith of Montclair, N. J., is assistant manager.

Twenty-four men received the varsity block "S" and fourteen received the "SAA." The following earned the varsity letter: D. C. Allen, C. Clauss, F. A. Einbeck, C. J. F. Helberger, M. M. Lawer, F. H. Lewis, H. A. O'Callaghan, Captain; W. R. Ost, W. H. Sherr, C. A. Suhr, P. F. Weiler, H. R. Casson, K. Dehart, E. Finsterbusch, J. H. Hanna, K. F. Hourigan, E. J. Hudson, E. Mylting, H. F. Subeck, W. M. Miller, N. J. Maso, C. Le Rose, P. A. Portman and Manager L. F. Francis.

The first-eleven members are seniors and will be lost to the team by graduation in June. The last three players are freshmen. Miller is the only sophomore and the remainder are juniors.

The first class "SAA" awards are as follows: J. W. Bressheim, T. E. Casselman, S. S. Egert, G. J. Fatt, R. M. Smart, H. A. Phelps and Assistant Managers C. D. Peace Jr. and R. B. Redhead. Second class "SAA" awards to six candidates for assistant managership were made as follows: L. K. Behr, G. H. Grieb, H. E. Helgis, R. Marples, W. D. Relyea and H. L. Smith.

Dud Allen, who was injured in the second quarter of the Rensselaer game, has been laid up since and has been unable to attend classes. He is suffering from injuries to the head, shoulder and the left leg. After an examination by a specialist yesterday, it was disclosed that there may be a slight skull fracture. Allen was ordered to remain in bed for the next two weeks. Captain O'Callaghan is the only other player still suffering from injuries.

BLAIRSTOWN, N. J., Nov. 19.—Blair Academy defeated Peddie Institute in the annual game here this afternoon by the score of 7 to 3. Beck scored the touchdown for Blair near the end of the first half. Lloyd's drop kick in the second half was the only score for Peddie.

4,000 IN NIGHT LINE FOR ARMY TICKETS

MANY ARE DISAPPOINTED

Only 2,000 Admissions Available at Baltimore for Contest in Venable Stadium Nov. 29.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 19.—A long line of football fans that extended six blocks waited all night for the opening of the public sale of tickets for the Army-Navy football game which will be played in the Venable Stadium here on Nov. 29. More than 4,000 persons, one of them a woman, waited for the opening of the City Park Board Office this morning, where the 2,000 tickets remaining of Baltimore's allotment to the service classic were sold in quick order.

Many of those who had stood in the line for many hours necessarily were disappointed and the first to receive his coveted pasteboards had been waiting for thirteen hours and forty-five minutes. Several had waited since 8 o'clock last night.

The throng resembled a world's series gathering, braving the cold winds that swept down the street. These pioneers wore their heaviest clothing for protection against the biting weather. Blankets and auto robes were brought into use and were seen frequently. Fires were built in tin buckets along the line and the only warning incident to their kindling was a plea not to set the building on fire lest the tickets be burned.

The long vigil kept by the thousands was probably the first of its kind in Baltimore, as this city has never staged a world's series, and it is the first time that a football game has attracted to the annual meeting of the Army and Navy elevens has been staged here. The Venable Stadium will seat almost 30,000 persons, but the United States Military and Naval Academies and the athletic associations of the institutions practically exhausted the supply of tickets.

NAVY NAMES BACKS FOR ARMY CONTEST

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 19.—The Navy football team is fast assuming the form it will take for the game against the Army on Nov. 29, and the back field this afternoon was exactly the same, barring something unforeseen, as that which will begin against the soldiers. It was made up of Hamilton, quarterback; Flippin and Albertson, halves, and Shapley, fullback. The combination is a fast and versatile one, with one or more specialists in every phase of back-field work.

Hamilton, who attracted much attention as quarterback of the strong plebe team last year, is a fine passer and a good runner and punter. Shapley, with speed and strength, has great line-breaking and end-running ability and should rise to superior form in the Army game. Flippin is a line hitter and Albertson as a clever runner and open-field man rounds out the strongest back field the Navy team has used this year.

Wellings, who started the season as a regular in the back field and who played so well against Princeton, was on the field this afternoon after an absence of three weeks because of illness. He played on the second team with Lewis, Bailey and Born. This also is a strong outfit, each member being capable understudy to the first-string player. Zuber was placed at centre instead of Osburn this afternoon, the fight between the two being a very close one. Osburn, who has the advantage of seven pounds in weight, may have lost out on account of his absence of three weeks, due to scholastic conditions.

BAXTER IS BACK AT ARMY.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Army worked for two hours today in preparation for the Navy battle. Weather conditions were better and the ground not quite so hard, but the scrimmaging was light. A feature of the drill was the return to the play of Baxter, end, who was hurt in the game with Detroit more than five weeks ago. Since then Baxter, who broke a small bone in his ankle, has been incapacitated. He has met the Navy twice and his return is an encouraging event. It is practically certain that he will play against the Navy.

Head Coach McEwen was the only casualty today. He is still wrestling with the grip and is confined to the hospital. His return, however, is the matter of only a day or two more, it was reported. Of the varsity men, all were in the gridiron work today except Harry Wilson. Trainer Wand let Wilson run about and handle the ball some but his place behind the line went to Hewitt. Trapnell alternated with Gillmore, and Scheiffler was used for Wood for a brief spell. Wood and Yoemans went through a punting drill. Garbisch was replaced by Daly in the centre position after the practice was under way some time. The mentors are not working the varsity men too hard with the Navy game only ten days off.

FORDHAM HAS SCRIMMAGE.

Eleven Sent Through Hard Session Against Freshman Team.

Head Coach Frank Garzan gave his Fordham football team a hard scrimmage yesterday, putting the players against Jack Coffey's freshman aggregation for three-quarters of an hour. Garzan had intended not to scrimmage the team until next week, but he suddenly changed his plans. Graham, Zakssewski and Slane each scored for the varsity, all three scores coming after long runs from midfield. The Maroon coach confined his efforts to the team's running attack, attempting several new plays which he will use against Catholic University and Georgetown.

For the first time in several weeks the forward pass was not included in the day's program, but Garzan will return to it today. Preliminary to the scrimmage, team A went through a snappy signal practice, rehearsing the new plays. The backfield was composed of Graham at quarter, Manning and Slane at the halves and Zakssewski at fullback.

Slane's playing during the scrimmage and in the past few games will probably be enough for Garzan to start him in the Catholic University and Georgetown games. Slane is a speedy back and a good man at open field running, but the Maroon will miss the line smashing of Woerner. Both Woerner and Manning had been used as plunging backs, but the former's injury will leave all the line bucking for Manning.

WILL NOT MAKE COAST TRIP.

Penn State Declines Invitation of Washington University Eleven.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 19.—Penn State will not meet the University of Washington in a post-season football game at Seattle, Hugo Bezdek, director of athletics, announced tonight. The decision to decline the invitation was reached at a conference among President John M. Thomas, Coach Bezdek and the Faculty Athletic Committee.

The fact that Penn State has been to the Coast twice in the last four years made it seem advisable to decline the opportunity for this year, Bezdek said.

Harvard Tickets in Demand Despite 10-3 Odds on Yale

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 19.—Although Harvard's chances of beating Yale in the annual football game in the Bowl at New Haven Saturday are being quoted here at odds as long as 10 to 3 against, tickets for the game were never in greater demand by Harvard men. Three days before the game there is no seat available in official places, and there is a waiting list that is growing hourly of graduates and undergraduates who did not apply and now seek tickets. No one at Harvard will say out loud that he thinks Harvard will win, but in a season of upsets some are finding hope for another reversal.

FOUR BIG TEN TEAMS WORKING FOR TITLE

Excitement Runs High as Leaders Prepare for Deciding Games of Year on Saturday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (Associated Press.)—The unusual spectacle of four Western Conference teams going into their final games buoyed by possibilities of at least joint claims for the championship has served to arouse mid-Western football interest to an unwonted height. Instead of Saturday witnessing ordinary season-ends crowds trooping to Big Ten gridirons because of the lure of the game itself, there will be the added incentive in at least three contests of hope of seeing a king crowned.

The Chicago eleven, with the best chance to take the title, a victory over Wisconsin being the deciding step, has hard at work perfecting its plunging attack to hurt against the Badger forward wall of veterans. The Maroons are not neglecting forward passing, however, in their drills at Stagg Field.

Chicago will lose Gowdy, captain; Harry Thomas, brother of John, who was an all-American back; Pondelik, Barnes and Barto after the Wisconsin game. Their great desire will be to end their collegiate gridiron careers with a Big Ten championship, the first for the Chicago team since 1913.

A capacity crowd will fill Chicago's new municipal stadium, where Northwestern will offer opposition to Notre Dame's national championship aspirations. With every available seat engaged, only 2,000 standing room spaces will be offered before the game. The Purple will have a team keyed to the high pitch and be more confident of itself than at any time during the season, as a result of the showing made in the 9-0 game with Chicago. The Rockwinmen may suffer from the effects of last week's tilt with Nebraska, but a wealth of reserve material always is available at the South Bend institution.

Passes may be Michigan's best offensive against Iowa. The same will play knowing that a victory for either and a Chicago loss would mean the championship. Iowa, whose strong forward wall presents a likelihood of difficulty in gaining through it or skirting its flanks, will present the results of two weeks of practice.

Illinois, not without hopes for the title, despite defeat last week by Minnesota, will be forced to Fullback Earl Britton, usually on the receiving end of the passes of Harold (Red) Grange, as guard against Ohio State to replace Roy Miller, a casual. Grange cannot play because of his badly injured shoulder.

Both Indiana and Purdue will spring special formation in their grudge tilt at LaFayette. Secret practice at both camps will continue until kickoff time.

Minnesota, in the limelight, as the conqueror of Illinois, entertains Vanderbilt of Nashville, Tenn., in the only mid-West intersectional fray, it will have one of the strongest teams in the conference regular in the field for its Southern opponent. Minnesota reached its great pre-season "paper" strength only in the Illinois game after chances for conference honors had been lost while its regulars were grounding to form and the team play which crushed the Illini and Grange was being developed.

ALUMNI TO FOLLOW GAME.

Although the Hawkeyes are not up in their vaunted place at the head of the Big Ten Conference football race this year, former students of the University of Iowa refuse to allow that fact to dampen their enthusiasm. On Saturday, while the Hawkeye eleven is playing the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, the members of the University of Iowa Association, headed by Arlo Wilson, will receive the play-by-play details of the game over a special wire from the Maise and Blue stadium to the Phi Kappa Psi quarters in the Fraternity Clubs Building, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street.

The meeting will be a joint one of Iowa and Michigan alumni, but any one interested is invited to attend. In the event that Chicago wins the title by defeating Wisconsin next Saturday, the winner of the Iowa-Michigan game will share second honors with the University of Illinois should Zuppke's men defeat Ohio State.

CORNELL IN SCRIMMAGE.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 19.—The first real workout of the week, including a mild scrimmage, was on the program on Schoellkopf Field this evening. Coach Dobie had the full strength of the Cornell squad in action and he put the players at work on a few new formations for use in the Penn game. Milder weather permitted outdoor work, and, free from the restrictions of the cage, the varsity punted and passed as well as rushed. Regulars, who had been laid off for a rest, got into the line-up for brief periods.

These included Patterson and Wester, halfbacks, who may be given the first assignment against Penn; Morris, left guard, and Evans, right tackle. Dobie sent Hill in at right tackle also. He is considering starting the heavier man against the Quakers. Henry Reed, first substitute centre for two years, played that position on the varsity with Reynolds, last year's freshman center, opposing him. Reed is considered to have the inside chance for the place. Henderson, Knoen, Fennell and Brigden were at ends; Kearney, Evans, Hill, tackles; Morris, Carr and Trousdell, guards; Reed, centre, and Isley, Hoskelman, Rosenberg, Whetstone, Patterson and Wester in the backfield.

PENN TEAM IN FINE SHAPE.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—In contrast with the situation a year ago, when a number of stars were out due to injuries, the unbeaten Penn team of this season was out on Franklin Field today and, barring accidents that might result in the next three days of scrimmage, is in perfect physical shape to meet Cornell next week.

Young stuck to his prearranged schedule of practice and confined the workout to a thorough signal practice, but he is not letting the players get overconfident. While no definite announcement has been made, it is almost certain that the McGraw-Thomas-Kruse-Leith combination will start in the backfield next Thursday afternoon against the Ithacans. The scrubs today practiced the off-tackle thrusts made famous by Dobie.

Elliott Elected Springfield Captain.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 19.—Robert Elliott of this city was elected captain of the Springfield College football eleven tonight. Elliott is a guard.

FISHER WITHHOLDS HARVARD'S LINE-UP

May Not Name Team to Face Yale on Saturday Until Morning of Game.

HOWE REPLACES HAMMOND

Gehrke and Miller, Now on Injured List, May Play—2,000 at Mass Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 19.—Harvard's football team today went through its signal drill and its defensive scrimmages with the scrubs with the same line-up it had yesterday, except that Howe was at halfback for Jack Hammond, who alternated between the first and second squads, and did little work.

Coach Fisher expected to be able to announce his line-up for Saturday at the close of practice, but at dark said he was not able to do so, and intimated that it might not be until Saturday morning that he would be sure of his team's make-up for the kickoff against Yale. There has been such a spread of pessimism about Harvard Square that the college paper is beginning to cheer things up a little bit, and tonight at the mass meeting at the Union another effort was made by the students to make the players who remain in good trim, and on whose shoulders the burden of Saturday's game will fall, feel that the college is behind them.

The best information of the day is that some of Harvard's cripples, while they will not be sound on Saturday, possibly will be able to get in the game, although they are not counted on to stay in a hammering contest very long.

Miller May Return.

Al Miller expects to be back at halfback, although he has not done a bit of work since the Princeton game. Gehrke also continues to limp, and it may happen that the coaches will use both these payers late in the first half and keep them going as long as possible in the second half. In the meantime there is a growing confidence that Dunker and Theopold are going to hold their own with the Yale guards, and that Harvard's tackles, Coady and Lindner, will be able to match Yale's.

That Beals is to be on one of the wings is taken to mean that Harvard intends to make more of its kicking game possibilities than heretofore.

Jack Hammond has a slightly sore foot, which is preventing him from putting on much speed but is figured on to be all right Saturday and to wind up his football career at Cambridge with a rush as an effective punter.

The first varsity line-up today was Dean and Beals, ends; Coady and Lindner, tackles; Theopold and Dunker, guards; Greenough, centre; McGlone, quarter; Howe, Sales and Maher, backs.

The substitute line-up included Chase and Gamache, ends; Taylor and Cochrane, tackles; Daniel and Hoague, guards; Holder, centre; Akers, quarter-back, and Puffer, Kilgour and Rogers, backs.

Stafford in Uniform.

Jake Stafford, Harvard's regular quarterback, was in playing togs. The injury to his foot is painful, but is not going to keep him out of Saturday's game. Jack Adie was not playing today, but walked about as if in shape. Whether he will start at centre, if available, is a question, but one guess is that he will go to Greenough early, and that Lindner and Coady will not be taken out as tackles unless it is necessary.

The squad rushed to the field without having the customary preliminary meeting in the locker building. Once again the coaches did all in their power to bring speed into the team and to get the offensive assignments running smoothly. The defensive workout against Yale plays was a carefully outlined proceeding, with some of the scouts present to check up.

Harvard has some real consolation from the Brown players, who state that the Crimson line Saturday hit them harder than the Yale line did three weeks or so ago. Three days before the game the outlook for players Zarakov, Cheek and Robb is entirely negative. There is more hope that Daley, Miller, Gehrke and Adie, who have done no work to keep in good trim, will be men on whom some reliance may be placed for substitute work on Saturday.

Tonight 2,000 undergraduates attended the mass meeting at the Union. The football players attended, twenty of the varsity squad instead of the usual eleven men selected to start the Yale game being seated on the platform. Coach Fisher said it is now impossible for him to name his team, but promised that the men who did start would give a good account of themselves.

TRAINS LISTED FOR GAME.

Twenty-four Specials to Run to New Haven on Saturday.

Twenty-four special trains will be run by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to New Haven on Saturday for the Yale-Harvard football game, according to an announcement made by officials of the railroad yesterday. Four of these trains will be Harvard Club specials and one a Yale Club special, while the remaining nineteen will be for use of the general public. In addition, there will be five regularly scheduled trains between this city and New Haven.

The first of the special trains will leave Grand Central Terminal at 7:37 A. M. The others will run at approximately fifteen-minute intervals until 9 o'clock. From then on until about 11 o'clock the specials will be sent away at five-minute intervals. The special train for members of the Harvard Club will leave the Grand Central Terminal at 10:08, 10:20, 10:30 and 10:35. The Yale Club Special will leave at 10:35.

All of the special trains will have no scheduled stops between this city and New Haven. The running time will be two hours and fifteen minutes. On the return trip special trains will leave New Haven beginning at 4:40 P. M. and will stop only at 125th Street on the way to the Grand Central Terminal. The game is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock and about a half hour should be allowed to reach the Bowl from the railroad station in New Haven.

MANHATTAN ELECTS DUNN.

At a meeting of the varsity squad yesterday morning, William J. Dunn of the Class of 1926 was elected captain of the Manhattan College football team for next season. Dunn played right halfback this year and has one more season to play. He is a graduate of Crosby High School of Waterbury, Conn., and transferred to Manhattan from St. Bonaventure College this year. Dunn is one of the honor students of the junior class.

The results of the first football season at Manhattan College in twenty years have been satisfactory to the players, Coach James J. McCarthy and the undergraduate body. Four games were won out of the six played. Thirty-two of the thirty-five players on the squad will be back next Fall. Two regulars will be lost, Captain-Arthur J. Marshall at right tackle and Toth at right guard. Crane, a substitute guard, will also graduate. The schedule for next year is not completed yet, but games are already definitely booked with Fordham and City College of New York, according to the statement of Manager Edward S. Rooney.

Blair 7, Peddie 3.

PRINCETON ELEVEN WILL LOSE 13 MEN

Captain Stout and All Five Who Won Varsity Letters at End to Be Graduated.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 19.—Recovering from the disappointment of the loss to Yale, Princeton's football authorities have begun to take stock of the losses by graduation and of the prospects for next year. Although the team was badly battered in the Yale game, Ted Drews suffering a broken nose, Captain Stout and Williams having wrenched ankles and Gates a number of minor injuries, no one is seriously hurt, and it is expected that all who will be back next Fall will be able to work out this Winter in the gym once or twice a week.

Thirteen of the twenty-five men who played against Harvard or Yale will be lost by graduation, including seven of the eleven who started the big games. Although the line is almost wiped out by the loss of five of the seven regulars and the backfield also is hard hit, there is fair material in sight to replace the gaps among this year's substitutes and the freshmen. The hardest problem will be the development of a pair of good ends, as all five men who won letters at the wings this Fall are lost.

Captain Stout, Drews and Tillson are the guards lost, while Wild Legendre and Dick Shackleford are former scrubs who made the grade in their senior years.

Bob Beattie's graduation deprives the squad of its best tackle, but Gates and Baldwin, both letter men, return, and with Rosengarten and Forrest, who failed to win their letters, and French and Coleman, a promising pair of freshmen, the outlook for the tackles is figured on to be all right Saturday and to wind up his football career at Cambridge with a rush as an effective punter.

The first varsity line-up today was Dean and Beals, ends; Coady and Lindner, tackles; Theopold and Dunker, guards; Greenough, centre; McGlone, quarter; Howe, Sales and Maher, backs.

Stafford in Uniform.

Jake Stafford, Harvard's regular quarterback, was in playing togs. The injury to his foot is painful, but is not going to keep him out of Saturday's game. Jack Adie was not playing today, but walked about as if in shape. Whether he will start at centre, if available, is a question, but one guess is that he will go to Greenough early, and that Lindner and Coady will not be taken out as tackles unless it is necessary.

The squad rushed to the field without having the customary preliminary meeting in the locker building. Once again the coaches did all in their power to bring speed into the team and to get the offensive assignments running smoothly. The defensive workout against Yale plays was a carefully outlined proceeding, with some of the scouts present to check up.

Harvard has some real consolation from the Brown players, who state that the Crimson line Saturday hit them harder than the Yale line did three weeks or so ago. Three days before the game the outlook for players Zarakov, Cheek and Robb is entirely negative. There is more hope that Daley Miller, Gehrke and Adie, who have done no work to keep in good trim, will be men on whom some reliance may be placed for substitute work on Saturday.

Tonight 2,000 undergraduates attended the mass meeting at the Union. The football players attended, twenty of the varsity squad instead of the usual eleven men selected to start the Yale game being seated on the platform. Coach Fisher said it is now impossible for him to name his team, but promised that the men who did start would give a good account of themselves.

LEHIGH STAR IN LINE-UP.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 19.—Scrimmage at Lehigh University in preparation for the Lafayette game wound up this afternoon when Coach Baldwin sent his Brown and White charges through a drill that lasted until after darkness had settled over the field.

With no more rough sessions planned for this week, and the players emerging from the final grueling workout without any disastrous results, the Bethlehem collegians will have available all of the varsity material to pit against Lafayette on Saturday afternoon. The appearance of Cannon, end, at his regular position in scrimmage, paired off with Burke, dispensed all doubt relative to Cannon's physical condition. It was the first scrimmage for Cannon since injuries several weeks ago.

Merrill and Littell were again at the tackle positions and Lewis and Hoffman were the guards. Cheel and Dietrich alternated at centre. Hess today seemed to have first choice at quarterback with Mellinger and Stephens, halfbacks, and Captain Greer fullback. There is much speculation on whether this quartet will start. Greer, whose most brilliant asset is his defensive work, is practically the only certainty at this time.

YALE SQUAD HOLDS SHORT SCRIMMAGE

TEAM DRILLED IN OFFENSE

Coaches Drive Eleven to Speed Up Attack—Bingham Expected to Start Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—For twenty minutes this afternoon the Yale varsity eleven scrimmaged with the scrubs, using eight players who are expected to play against Harvard on Saturday. Chep Bingham, who has been in the hospital for three weeks with water on the knee, might have gone into the scrimmage, but Trainer George Connors thought it best to hold him on the side lines, because his knee is still weak. Connors tonight said there was no doubt of Bingham's ability to start in the Harvard game.

Herbert Sturhahn and Rex Root have developed slight muscle bruises as the result of the Princeton encounter and both were kept from the line-up today, the veteran Dick Eckart and Dick Werlman again performing understudy service. The entire trio, Bingham, Sturnahn and Root, were used in the signal rehearsal of the regulars. Stanley Gill, who played left end in Bingham's place against Princeton was kept on the side lines. It is unlikely that he will be able to play more than a short time Saturday.

The entire scrimmage period was used in perfecting the varsity offense, which the coaches wish to speed up in anticipation of stubborn Harvard defense. The regulars were able to march nearly seventy yards down the field and closed the parade with a 5-yard crash between tackle and guard by Eddie Cottle for the only touchdown of the afternoon. He completed his line plunging success by kicking a goal for the extra point. Phil Bunnell ran the varsity, but Ted Jones's policy in using Bench at the start of the Princeton game and to reserve him for Bennell for a later offensive is likely to be followed against Harvard.

Until this week the coaches had expected to pass the week without scrimmage Friff, today's being the first since the Maryland game. The continued cool, crisp air, however, led them to decide to order actual football for all the perfectly conditioned regulars, who played as follows: Left end, Hart; left tackle, Jones; left guard, Bench; center, Captain Lovejoy; right guard, Wortham; right tackle, Butterworth; right end, Luman; quarterback, Bunnell; left halfback, Cottle; right halfback, Pond; fullback, Allen.

The varsity second team, all of whom probably will receive a playing period or more against Harvard, was limited to signal rehearsal with Bingham used for the dummy tactics and with Bench officiating as field general. Sturnahn and Root ran through signals with the reserve line-up. The visiting coaches included: Ralph Bloomer, All-American tackle in 1905, and Bill Bomer of Fort Worth, Texas, halfback on the 1907 team.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—"Let no Yale man think that we have an easy task ahead of us Saturday," said Ted Jones, Yale's head coach, in his final talk to undergraduates before the Harvard game tonight. "We have an eleven to meet which does not know when it is beaten, and which will always play its best, perhaps overplay itself, against Yale. Our team has given a great account of itself all Fall, but we have a task of magnitude to roll up a winning score Saturday." Jones's talk was the feature of Yale's final rally before the Harvard game.

SILVANI IS STOPPED BY FERRARA IN 4TH

DR. WALKER UPHOLDS CLAIM

Says Examination Later Showed Beaten Boxer Had Been Hit Low by South American.

Miguel Ferrara, South American heavyweight, added Joe Silvani of the Bronx to his list of vanquished rivals last night when he knocked out the Bronx Italian in the fourth round of the scheduled six-round feature bout of the heavyweight carnival at Madison Square Garden. The knockout, however, though recognized by the bout officials, was disputed by the 4,000 fans who witnessed the bout which was the most exciting of a program which held many exciting fistic moments.

Silvani claimed a foul, protesting, as did the crowd which saw the final blow, that a left aimed at the stomach following a hard right to the body had landed low. The crowd broke forth in a wild demonstration in support of Silvani's claim as the Bronx Italian lay doubled up on the ring floor. Referee Magnolia, however, proceeded with the count with Eddie Munson, the knockdown timekeeper, and when he had tolled off ten seconds, Magnolia stooped and, with the assistance of Ferrara and Silvani's handlers, carried the fallen boxer to his corner.

Silvani had to be carried from the ring while the crowd stood about the ringside, shouting its disapproval. Dr. William H. Walker, State Athletic Commission physician, examined Silvani in the latter's dressing room after the bout and announced his examination disclosed unmistakable evidence of a foul blow. Fifteen minutes after the bout ended Dr. Walker still was working over Silvani while Silvani rolled writhed in evident pain as ice packs were applied.

The end of the contest came 2 minutes 21 seconds after the fourth round had started. Up to that time it was a slashing encounter in which Silvani, a youngster, gave a wonderful account of himself.

Through the first round Silvani outboxed and outpointed the wild-swinging, rushing Ferrara and in a sensational rally in the last ten seconds Silvani floored his rival with a right to the jaw and had Ferrara groggy and holding at the bell after being twice knocked to his knees with choppy rights driven to the jaw at close quarters. Ferrara was entirely fresh when he came up for the second round, but through the session Silvani, cool and deliberate in his work, outpointed the South American.

Thrills Come in Third Round.

The thrills came in the third round, when Silvani, discarding his style of the two previous rounds, when he was clipped on the jaw with a grazing right, went in to slug with his rival. The hard-hitting Ferrara twice floored Silvani for counts of nine and as many times sent Silvani down under grazing blows whose effect was shaken off before a count could be started.

Silvani arose on each knockdown and gamely faced his rival, trying to slug with the destructive-hitting South American, but missing most of his blows. Near the end of the round Ferrara sent Silvani down with a succession of blows to the body, and the Bronx lad remained down until seven was counted over him. When he regained his feet Silvani was being battered about the ring until the intervention of the bell.

The fourth was an exciting round while it lasted. In a spirited mix-up Silvani floored the South American with a right to the jaw, but Ferrara quickly jumped to his feet and let fly a volley of blows to the face and body, under which Silvani retreated to the ropes.

In a mix-up in a neutral corner the pair exchanged heavy blows to the body and jaw, and then as they stepped apart Ferrara started a right for the body, followed with a left.

Under the last punch Silvani sank groaning to the floor, where he remained doubled up while Referee Magnolia, despite the protests of the crowd, counted Silvani out. Ferrara weighed 190¾ pounds and Silvani 176½ pounds.

Garvey Displays Punch.

Ed Garvey, South Bend (Ind.), heavyweight who formerly was a Notre Dame football star, made a success of his début when he knocked out Hugo Ducat, Greenwich Village heavyweight, in the second round of his scheduled six-round bout. Ducat succumbed to one of Garvey's powerful right hand smashes to the jaw.

In victory Garvey showed an eagerness to exchange blows and a total disregard for the blows of his rival. He has strength, is powerful and is sturdily built. He outweighed Ducat twenty-seven pounds, weighing 222 pounds, but despite this handicap Ducat gave Garney an interesting time of it in the first round when he out hit the former collegian and had Garvey staggering under a right to the jaw. Ducat substituted for Tom Lazuka.

A great rally through the last half of the bout earned Daniel O'Connell, Raritan batter, a draw with Clemente Savaardo, Chilean, in one of the most exciting battles of the night. Battered and weary under Savaardo's fire in the first three rounds, O'Connell electrified the gathering with a rally through the fourth, fifth and sixth sessions in which he scored two knockdowns and came within an eye-last of knocking out the Chilean.

O'Connell Misses Chance.

Savaardo went down under a right to the jaw in the fourth and in the fifth another right sent the Chilean down again. In the sixth round O'Connell, weary himself from the exertions of the previous rounds, landed several rights and lefts to the jaw which rendered Savaardo groggy, but he did not have the strength to put over a finishing blow and his chance for a knockout disappeared.

Bob Wallit, the fighting policeman, and Sailor Jim Sigmund were the first pair of heavyweights brought into the ring. They went four rounds in the opening preliminary and at the final bell the decision went to Sigmund. In the second bout, which was the first of the six rounders, the début of Elzear Rioux, Canadian lumberjack, was spoiled through an accident which incapacitated the lad from the North country. Rioux drew Gordon Munce, Bayonne boxer, who formerly held the amateur heavyweight title, as an opponent and was beating Munce when in the fourth round, Munce landed a left which opened a severe cut over Rioux's right eye.

The Canadian fought through the round, but during the one-minute intermission after the round the eye swelled so that Referee Lou Magnolia refused to let Rioux respond to the bell for the fifth round. Up to the time of the accident Rioux clearly led in points over his rival.

Referee Magnolia also terminated the next bout, scheduled for six rounds. In this clash Jim Slimmer, former football star, and Dan Leiber were the combatants. The bout was stopped in the fifth round to save Leiber from further punishment.

WEINERT TO MEET ROMERO.

Firpo's Conqueror Signs for 10-Round Bout in Boston Dec. 9.

Charley Weinert, Newark heavyweight who blasted Luis Firpo's hopes of another meeting with Champion Jack Dempsey, will make his first ring appearance under the management of Billy McCarney in a bout against Quintin Romero, Chilean, at Boston, Dec. 9, according to plans announced yesterday by McCarney. Acting for Weinert, McCarney accepted terms for a ten-round bout to a decision.

Among the notes we want to strike hardest in this overture to Winter, is the moderate price of our overcoats.

We never had a finer lot of coats in quality, in variety of fabrics, in ample assortment of styles.

We seldom if ever have been able to offer our quality coats at prices so distinctly under that of the market generally for fine clothing.

One special line of overcoats—the luxurious Montagnacs are $105. All our other Winter coats are from $95 to $45, and in these days when the trade generally is gaily advertising overcoats up to $125 and more the more comparisons our friends make the happier we shall be.

British Tennis Body Warns Players Who Question Rulings

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Council of the Lawn Tennis Association, meeting last night, discussed the recommendations of its committee which recently heard charges of bad court conduct against leading tournament players, and issued a strong warning that the actions complained of must stop. Severe disciplinary action was threatened, including suspension of the offenders from participation in tournament play. The Council also decided to submit to the next general meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association an amendment to the regulations under which any competitor expressing disapproval of an umpire's verdict would be liable to disqualification.

FARRELL AND BLOCH WIN AT PINEHURST

Capture Amateur-Professional Golf Event by Two Strokes With Card of 137.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 19.—Johnny Farrell and Harold Bloch, the Quaker Ridge team, ran off with the amateur-professional golf event at Pinehurst today when they led a select field by two strokes. The Quaker Ridge pair scored 137 for the two eighteen-hole journeys, while their nearest competitors, Jim Barnes, formerly of Pelham, and Frank C. Newton of Brookline, Mass., were just two strokes behind.

Farrell and Bloch got away to a great start this morning when they scored a 67 over the No. 2 course, and last minute drives on the part of three other teams failed to overtake the flying pair from Westchester. Farrell was doing most of the playing both this morning and this afternoon. Bloch, who was a winner last year in this event, paired with Cyril Walker of Englewood, now open champion, was trying hard, but the times when he could help Farrell were few and far between.

One of the prettiest shots of the day was that made by Farrell this morning on the sixteenth green when he ran in a putt from across the green for a birdie 3.

The card of 67 which Farrell and Bloch turned in this morning was good enough to better the next best by four strokes, as Barnes and Newton had a 71. The card of the Quaker Ridge team:

Barnes and Newton nearly equaled the 67 of the winners in the afternoon round when they were making a determined attempt to cut down the lead enjoyed by the metropolitan pair. Their best was a 68, which read as follows:

Out .....4 4 4 3 5 4 2 5 4—35

DUNDEE EMBARKS ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Sails on the Aquitania, Accompanied by Senator Walker and Jimmy Johnston.

To the cheers and well wishes of a host of admirers who journeyed to the dock to wish him bon voyage, Johnny Dundee, veteran Italian boxer who at one time held both the world's featherweight title and the 130-pound championship belt, yesterday sailed on the liner Aquitania for a tour of Europe. Looking forward expectantly to the trip, which will be a new experience for him, Dundee spoke his appreciation of a farewell beefsteak dinner on Tuesday night at which he was the honored guest.

Accompanying Dundee was Jimmy Johnston, manager of the boxer when not engaged as matchmaker for the Cromwell A. C., and Senator James J. Walker, father of the boxing law which re-established the sport in this State and an ardent admirer of Dundee. The Police Department Glee Club also was on hand to sing popular airs.

Dundee's plans while abroad still are in the formative stage. He has under prospect, according to Johnston, a music hall engagement in London, and there is a possibility that the Italian favorite will engage in several matches as he tours England, France, Germany and Italy. One of the prospective matches will be against Edouard Mascart, French boxer, who has just gained the European featherweight title through a victory over Charlie Ledoux. Dundee expected to fight Ledoux abroad if satisfactory arrangements could have been made for the match, but in view of Mascart's victory, efforts now will be directed toward arranging a meeting with the new European champion, according to present plans.

CITY WORKERS BOX TONIGHT

Will Meet in Municipal Tourney in Garden—Other Ring News.

Members of the New York Police and Fire Departments, along with other municipal employees, will forget their civic duties tonight to engage in the annual city employees' boxing championship tournament which will be held in Madison Square Garden under the auspices of the Mayor's Committee on Municipal Athletic Activities, of which William W. Cohen is Chairman. Benny Leonard and Mickey Walker, lightweight and welterweight champion, respectively, are scheduled to referee some of the bouts. In addition to the city employees' contests several special bouts will be conducted and a number of matches in which navy boxers will participate also are scheduled for decision.

Four eight-round bouts are scheduled for tonight at the 102d Medical Regiment Armory. The principals will be: Vincent Sanchez vs. Bobby Anderson, Jackie Marlowe vs. Arnold Ryan, Red Magee vs. Young Jack Sharkey and Bobby Murray vs. Joe Minni.

Matchmaker Mike Valentine has arranged a twelve-round bout between Johnny Rocco and Billy Fitzsimmons as the feature for his weekly show at the Columbus Sporting Club, Yonkers, tonight. Jimmy Kelly and Vincent Pierigione are scheduled for the eight-round semi-final.

U.S. SHOOTER BREAKS WORLD CARTON MARK

Uncle Sam's Riflemen Are First and Second in Every Individual Event After Three Days' Competition.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 19.—Captain Joseph Jackson, United States Marine Corps, and a member of the Pan-American Rifle Team, broke a world's record yesterday, scoring 100 consecutive cartons and 900 points in the Pan-American Master Riflemen's match. His score beat by four cartons the record made by Captain Richard at Camp Perry in 1913, in the first Pan-American matches. At a distance of 828 yards Captain Jackson placed 100 consecutive shots in a sixteen-inch circle, only four of the shots being out of the twelve-inch circle.

Sergeant Morris Fisher, world's rifle champion in the Olympic matches, broke the record by a score of 95 out of 100 from the kneeling position.

There is still a week of shooting, but the crack American riflemen are in the lead in every individual match, not one opposing rifleman holding first or second place after three days' competition.

As the American team had only a few days to get in shape and has as competitors teams that have been some weeks on the ground their showing is considered the more remarkable. Lieutenant Sydney Hinds is considered the probable winner of at least two individual matches unless there should occur some marked change in the line-up.

ELLS HARD PRESSED IN SQUASH RACQUETS

The University Club squash racquets team defeated the representatives of the Rockaway Hunting Club of Cedarhurst, L. I., in the first match of the season played in the Metropolitan Squash Racquets League yesterday on the University Club courts. The score was 6 to 1. Six of the ten ranking players in the metropolitan area took part in the meeting, each club being represented by three.

Arthur E. Ells, holder of the metropolitan championship, played at No. 1 for the University Club and defeated J. H. Harper Jr. of Rockaway, 15—9, 15—5, 9—15, 15—12. Harper ranks sixth in the metropolitan list, while L. McK. Miller, who is third, played at No. 3 for the visiting combination and lost to H. E. Mills, who ranks fourth. The score was 15—12, 12—15, 15—8, 18—15. R. W. Gilmore, A. H. Lockett, E. J. Nightingale and G. M. Bodman were the other winners for the University Club, while Andrew Shiland scored the only victory for Rockaway. He defeated R. N. Pearson at 15—12, 15—7, only two games being played, instead of three.

Although Rockaway won only one match, the play was by no means one-sided, almost all of the matches being closely contested. Lockett was carried to five games by Walton Green of Rockaway before winning, while Nightingale and J. T. Terry Jr. engaged in the hardest-fought match of the series. The victory of the former was unexpected, as Terry is ranked ninth. Nightingale, playing at an easy pace, using a slow service effectively and placing his shots with nice judgment, won at 15—13, 15—12, 15—12, 17—18, 17—16.

The summaries:

Arthur E. Ells, University Club, defeated J. H. Harper Jr., 15—9, 15—5, 9—15, 15—12; R. W. Gilmore, University Club, defeated Leonard Wyeth, 15—9, 15—2, 18—15; H. E. Mills, University Club, defeated L. McK. Miller, 15—12, 12—15, 15—8, 18—15; A. H. Lockett, University Club, defeated Walton Green, 12—15, 15—7, 15—12, 15—13, 15—4; E. J. Nightingale, University Club, defeated John T. Terry Jr., 13—15, 15—12, 15—12, 17—18, 17—16; Andrew Shiland, Rockaway Hunting Club, defeated R. N. Pearson, 15—12, 15—7; G. M. Bodman, University Club, defeated William T. Ketcham, 15—7, 15—5, 15—10.

MISS GERAGHTY WINS BREAST STROKE SWIM

Is Within 2-5 Second of Record for 50 Yards at Opening of Hotel Shelton Pool.

Miss Agnes Geraghty of the Women's Swimming Association came within two-fifths of a second of equaling her own American record for the women's 50-yard breast stroke swim last night when she won that event in 0:38 1-5 at the opening of the new 75-foot indoor swimming pool at the Hotel Shelton, Lexington Avenue and Forty-ninth Street. A capacity crowd of 500 spectators witnessed the series of races, which were held under the auspices of the Women's Swimming Association.

Miss Geraghty got away to a fast start in the 50-yard swim and finished two seconds ahead of Miss Karin Nielson. Miss Dorothy Witcraft was third. HARVARD CLUB WINS IN CLASS A SQUASH

Yale and Princeton Also Score and the Three Still Are Tied for First Place.

COWARD VICTOR OVER FINK

Triumphs After Hard Battle by 15-12, 8-15, 18-14—Cordier Forces Bull to Three Close Games.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

Yale	3	0	Columbia	0	3
Harvard	2	0	Crescent	0	3
Princeton	3	0	Montclair	0	3

By winning their third successive matches since the season started, the Yale, Harvard and Princeton Club Class A squash tennis teams remained tied for first place in the league standing yesterday. It was only by a narrow margin that the Elis kept their record clean against the Crescent A. C., on the latter's courts in Brooklyn, winning by the score of 4 to 3 with the aid of Thomas Coward's victory over R. Earl Fink. This match between the two former national champions was the feature of the day's play, Coward winning in three games at 15—12, 8—15, 18—14.

Harvard, the champion of the league, gained a 6 to 1 victory over the Columbia University Club on the Crimson courts and Princeton defeated the Montclair A. C. on the Orange and Black courts, 5 to 2. The three losing teams have yet to win a match in the tournament and are tied for fourth place.

It was not until the final match of the seven was played that the engagement between Yale and the Crescents was decided. In this one Henry Thorne of the Elis met C. W. Fyfe, and won by a good margin of 15—7, 15—9. Four of the six other matches were decided in three games. Charles M. Bull Jr., No. 2 of the Crescents; Andrew Baxter Jr., No. 3, and George G. Davidson, No. 4, won the three victories for the home team, while Carroll T. Cooney and Arthur Goldburg were the other Yale winners.

Bull is Hard Pressed.

Bull defeated Auguste J. Cordier, former national champion in a bitterly contested three-set match that was even closer than that between Fink and Coward. The score was 15—12, 15—18, 18—16. The triumph of the Crescent star indicated that he is rounding into his best form after his defeat by Gavin Brackenridge in Class A play and by R. H. O'Connor, a Class B player, in the national Fall scratch tournament. Baxter played first class squash and gained an unexpected victory over Otis L. Guernsey, who ranks seventh in the national list. The Yale man came close to capturing the match in two games but Baxter's skillful placing of the ball enabled him to prevail against his opponent's power of stroking at 17—16, 6—15, 15—13. Cooney defeated Donald Bellows and Goldburg was the winner over J. C. Tredwell after dropping the opening game.

It was expected that Fink would be prepared to make a strong fight against Coward, as the Crescent star has been playing beautiful squash in the Fall tournament, in which he meets William Rand Jr. of Harvard tomorrow in the final round. It was a smashing duel all the way, with both men showing the power of stroking for which their game is known. Coward's straight wall drives carried the greater pace in the first set and pulled him through by a close margin. Fink played like a whirlwind in the second chapter, keeping the ball so low that it barely cleared the telltale. His court covering was the last word in thoroughness and he evened the score at 1—all. The final game found the Crescent star going at his best in the early stages and Coward looked to be beaten when the score stood 11—2 against him. The Yale star then squared the game at 12—all and went on to take the match.

Morgan Victor Over Kidde.

Hewitt Morgan returned to the Harvard line-up in the Crimson's match with Columbia, marking his second appearance of the season on the squash courts. He played at No. 2 and defeated Frank Kidde at 14—18, 15—8, 15—4.

Morgan was slow in getting out of the way of the ball in the first game but thereafter he went along in splendid fashion, playing the same brand of squash that brought him to the top last season. P. Van S. Hyde, national champion, again did not play for Harvard. He was expected to arrive from Cincinnai in time to go on the courts but failed to appear. Gerald Henderson, who substituted for him at No. 1, was defeated by R. B. Haines at 15—7, 18—17 in the only match that Columbia won.

OPPERMAN TAKES CENTURY HANDICAP

MAIBEN HAS A BIG DAY

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 19.—Opperman, the Triple Springs Farm's five-year-old gelding by Pstand-Dancing Wave, this afternoon accounted for the Century Handicap, the featured event on the card at Prince George Park. The gelding, in light with 100 pounds up, ran the mile and a sixteenth in the good time of 1:49, besting four others of three years and upward. L. Lang had the mount and the winner paid $41.10 for a $2 ticket.

Johnny Maiben had another excellent day, riding two winners, being second twice and unplaced twice in six mounts. He took the second number with Senalado an., brought Joy Smoke home in front in the fifth. Only one favorite rewarded its followers and that was at odds-on.

In the Century Handicap A. C. Bostwick's Spot Cash was the heavily played favorite. The four-year-old Broomstick colt was unable, however, to give away tons of weight and beat his opposition. He was asked to concede all the way from seventeen to thirty-one pounds, and while he ran well he tired under his heavy impost and just failed to get in the money.

Bonnie Omar set the pace for the field of five. Lang got Opperman away with a rush, but took the gelding back close to the pace. At the turn into the homestretch Burns put Bonnie Omar under a drive, but the colt was beginning to tire from his efforts. Opperman came around him with a challenge and Bonnie Omar stopped to finish last.

Wampee Finishes Second.

Lang went to a mild drive at the end to hold off R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Wampee. Wampee had trailed the field for three-quarters of a mile, Harvey saving ground with him straightening out in the homestretch. He held on well to take the place by half a length from H. G. Bedwell's Prince Hamlet. Stevens made his move with Prince Hamlet nearing the stretch, but the son of King James lost ground and hung at the end, being only half a length in front of Spot Cash.

Maiben rode a nice race to win the Boulevard Purse on R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Senalado. The race was for the juveniles over the course of six and a half furlongs, and nine paraded. W. Stockton's Finland, which made the early pace, went wide on the turn into the homestretch, and Maiben shot Senalado into an opening on the rail, saving more ground and gaining a four-length lead. Senalado, however, tired at the end and just lasted to win by half a length from R. Odom's Sumpter, which finished fast and would have won in a few more jumps. J. F. Richardson's Bruns was up to take third money from G. A. Cochran's Dangerous, the 11-to-10 favorite.

E. F. Whitney's Joy Smoke, the odds-on favorite, was an easy victor in the race for the Capital City Purse. Maiben held Joy Smoke behind the pace under restraint and finished with speed in reserve.

S. Ross's Slats was much the best of the field of thirteen maiden two-year-olds which ran the six furlongs of the opening race. The chestnut son of Trap Rock and Langollen was kept fast under Browning's handling and followed the pace closely. He was forced back on the far turn, came again and won handily by half a length from S. Louis's Taudlane. Mrs. T. J. Donohue's Eyelash was a length back to take third money.

10-to-1 Shot Is Winner.

The dash of six and a half furlongs for all ages brought eleven to the post, the winner being C. W. Foreman's four-year old gelding Eager, a long shot, which paid to $20.60 for a $2 ticket. The son of Fair Play and Arden was outrun to the stretch, where he closed fast on the outside and was going away at the finish to beat W. J. Howard's Maclean by a length.

E. W. Price's Leisch carried off the money in handy fashion in the claiming event over the course of a mile and a sixteenth, beating eight others. The race was confined to the three-year-olds, and the gelded son of Bard of Hope went to the front on the backstretch and was never in serious difficulty thereafter. Benny Marinelli brought him home two lengths in front of J. H. Stotler's Faensa. Although Maiben waited too long with the colt, Suburban held on to take third money.

Rosa Yeta, P. S. P. Randolph's four-year-old filly by Sand Bar-Hannah Louise, beat nine others to win the claiming event over the course of a mile and three-sixteenths. She was not much fancied and paid $18.30 to her backers.

Mrs. Whitney's Cherry Malotte, Famous Jumper, Is Destroyed

Mrs. Payne Whitney has lost her favorite hunter and steeplechaser Cherry Malotte. The mare, the pet of the owner of the Greentree Stable, met with an accident and had to be destroyed, although every effort was made to save her. Cherry Malotte was foaled in 1920, being by Orlando out of Dottie, by Leonatus, and was bred by Walter Buckner. She ran as a hunter at one time, winning many events at the hunt meetings, and later raced through the field on Jockey Club tracks under the Greentree silks. She had been retired for several years. Cherry Pie, holder of the American record for a mile on the flat, was Cherry Malotte's first foal, by Chicle. Cherry Cobbler, by Johren, now a two-year-old, is another of her sons. Of all the flat racers and steeplechasers in the Greentree Stable Cherry Malotte was Mrs. Whitney's favorite. From her winnings in races she made a trophy for her home and had inscribed on it the winnings of her pet. Cherry Malotte's last victory was in the Meadow Brook Steeplechase at Belmont Park in 1918.

16 STAKE NOMINATIONS TO CLOSE HERE TODAY

Belmont Park Fixtures for Seasons of 1925-27 Will Be Worth More Than $200,000.

Nominations for sixteen stakes to be run at the Belmont Park course of the Westchester Racing Association during the seasons of 1925, 1926 and 1927 will close today at the offices of the association, 70 West Fortieth Street. The actual added money in these stakes will be $93,500, but the total values will be far more than $200,000. The Belmont Stakes of 1927 alone will have an estimated value of $30,000.

Among the stakes to be run next season, ten to be run at the Spring meeting will close today. Six are for three-year-olds and upward, these being the Metropolitan Handicap, $5,000 added; the Suburban Handicap, $7,500 added; the Toboggan Handicap, $5,000 added; the Ladies' Handicap for mares, $2,500 added; the Harlem, $2,000 added, and the Hollis, $2,000 added.

Also for the Spring meeting of 1925, four stakes for the two-year-olds, now yearlings, will be closed today. These are the Juvenile, $5,000 added; Keene Memorial, $2,500 added; the Fashion, for fillies, $2,500 added, and the Bouquet, $2,000 added.

The only stake to be run at the Autumn meeting that will close today will be the Jockey Club Gold Cup for mares and entire horses, three-year-olds and upward. The added money $10,000. A gold cup to the value of $2,500 is added by the Jockey Club to the stake.

Nominations for the Withers and the Coaching Club American Oaks to be run at the Spring meeting of 1926 and the Lawrence Realization to be run at the Autumn meeting of the same year, likewise will be closed today.

The Coaching Club American Oaks is for three-year-old fillies in 1926 (now yearlings). The race carries $2,500 in added money. The Lawrence Realization, $7,500 in added money. It is for three-year-olds in 1926 (now yearlings). It should also be noted by owners and breeders that today is the last day for the nomination of weanlings for the Lawrence Realization of 1927. The estimated value of the stake in 1927 is $35,000.

Entries for still one more stake, one of the richest in the whole thoroughbred world, will be closed today. This is the Belmont Stakes to be run at the Spring meeting in 1927. The stake is for three-year-olds in 1927, foals of 1924, now weanlings.

It is expected that nominations for many of the rich stakes will be received from breeders all over the United States and Canada and in England and France. It will be, therefore, many days before the list has been received and the results tabulated.

BRITISH POLO BODY CONSIDERS CHANGE

Hurlingham Committee, in Session This Week, May Shift Game's Administration.

MANY COMPLAINTS MADE

English Arrangements for Matches Here Last September Were Unsatisfactory, Is Charge.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Hurlingham Polo Committee, which holds much the same position in polo as does the Royal and Ancient Club in golf, is meeting this week to consider the future of the game, and it is understood that it will deal especially with the question of international matches.

There have been many complaints that the arrangements for the matches in the United States in September were very unsatisfactory, and the complainants hope that the meeting will evolve a scheme by which selection of the next British team can be made on more practical lines.

The Daily Mail says the administration of international polo will probably be placed in new hands in the future.

A recent London dispatch reported that Lord Wimborne, manager of the British polo squad which visited the United States in September, had decided to retire from polo and sell his ponies. Lord Wimborne's sudden return to England just before the opening of the series at Meadow Brook gave rise at the time to reports of dissension regarding the personnel of the British team.

BOSTON ENTERS TEAMS.

Pittsburgh Has Fourth in Eastern Wheel of U. S. Jockey Body.

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—The Eastern wheel of the United States Amateur Hockey Association this year will consist of four teams, three in this city and one in Pittsburgh, it was announced tonight by Vice President George V. Brown. New York and Philadelphia interests wanted to postpone the schedule-making until they had a chance to develop plans for teams, but this was impracticable, Brown said.

Pittsburgh will have teams in both the Eastern and Western groups, the Eastern team being known as the Pirates and the Western as Yellow Jackets. Herb Drury will captain the Pirates, most of whom will be Canadians. The Boston teams will be the Boston Hockey Club, Boston A. A. and Maple A. A.

SKATERS TO RACE TONIGHT.

Large Field Expected to Start in Feature at Iceland.

Because of the large number of entries received for the pursuit race, the feature event at Iceland tonight, it probably will be necessary to send the skaters away in heats. As many contestants as possible will be placed around the track at 10 to 20 yard intervals, elimination taking place when a skater is passed by any starting behind him. The starters are expected to include Joe Moore, Leslie Boyd, Eddie Meyers and George Pickering.

A one-quarter-mile handicap has been arranged for Class B skaters and a 220-yard race for Class C men. The program will be completed by races for Class B girls and novices. The races will get under way at 11 o'clock.

GARDINI THROWS HESS.

Earns Fall With Headlock—Wladek Zbyszko Beats Linow.

C. at the Fourteenth Street Theatre last night. In the semi-final Wladek Zbyszko, Polish heavyweight, got the decision over Ivan Linow after thirty minutes of struggling.

FIRST ORDER PLACED FOR GOLD CUP ENTRY

Fisher Commissions Purdy to Build Speedboat for Race Here Next Year.

BUFFALO Y. C. ALSO ACTIVE

Chris Smith of Detroit Will Prepare Its Contestant—Twenty Boats May Be Built.

The first order for a speedboat to be built for the Gold Cup race, which will be decided on Manhasset Bay next August, was given yesterday by Carl G. Fisher of Sands Point, whose entry will be made in the name of the Miami Beach Yacht Club. Mr. Fisher challenged for the Gold Cup some time ago, soon after it became known that the race would be held in New York waters.

The order for the Fisher Gold Cup entry went to the Purdy Boat Company of Clinton, Mich., a firm which has made a specialty of express cruisers. It also was learned that the Purdy company would establish a plant at Port Washington on Manhasset Bay next Spring. Motor speedboats and cruisers will be built at this plant, which is expected to have a busy season.

There will be probably from fifteen to twenty speedboats built for the Gold Cup, Dodge Trophy race and other features of the three-day regatta to be held on Manhasset Bay. The motor boat industry should benefit by the revival of racing in the East. It was learned yesterday that the boat to be built for the Gold Cup by the Buffalo Launch Club will be constructed by Chris Smith of Detroit.

HUNTINGTON AT COLGATE.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Ellery Huntington, former Colgate star quarterback, who was head coach here from 1920 to 1922, was in Hamilton today helping Coach Harlow prepare the Colgate team for the game with Syracuse Saturday. For the third straight day the Maroon team had to work out on a snow-covered field, with the thermometer hovering a little above zero. As in the previous drills, only dummy scrimmage and signal work was given the squad. The men are in the best of physical condition for the big game.

SYRACUSE IN FINAL DRILL.

Eleven Has Last Workout for Colgate Behind Closed Gates.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 19.—The Syracuse University football team today had its last hard scrimmage for its game with Colgate Saturday, the twenty-fifth renewal of the upstate football classic. Of the twenty-four games played, Colgate won thirteen, Syracuse nine and two have been ties. Colgate won last year by a score of 16 to 7.

Will Open Three-Cushion Match Against Mundito at Strand.

Mundito, the Cuban three-cushion billiard champion, completed his practice yesterday for his 300-point match against Robert Cannefax, the world's champion, which opens at the Strand this afternoon. The match will be played in six blocks of 50 points each. Cannefax, who has been playing in championship form for the past two weeks, is quoted as a 5 to 4 favorite. Mundito is rated an excellent match player, and in his first test against an American headliner, Johnny Layton, lost by only nine points in a 150-point match played in Havana last Spring.

Galfund to Fight on Coast.

Harry Galfund, Brooklyn welterweight, is the latest of the local boxers to be attracted by boxing on the Pacific Coast. Joe Gould, manager of Galfund, yesterday announced that he had accepted an offer of Tom Kennedy, matchmaker for the Hollywood Stadium, for a series of five bouts to be held during January and February. Galfund is planning to leave for California on Dec. 5.

La Rue and Rodney Gelston tied for second place. Garfunkle went out in forty-six innings. His high run was 4. La Rue's was 5.

In the afternoon Quinn defeated Thomas Hamlin 100 to 70, in thirty innings and made a high run of 27. Kent's high run was 13. In the evening Midway administered the first defeat to O. Laurie the latter has suffered in the tournament. The score was 100 to 76. The game lasted twenty-nine innings and the high run was made by Laurie—37.

LONDON

By Appointment to H.M. King George V

Just What Are BURBERRYS?

THOSE much abused words, "English overcoat" give no adequate description of Burberrys. "English overcoats" may be anything from American made coats patterned wholesale on English designs—with or without English fabrics—to the coat really fashioned and tailored in England from matchless English woolens and imported into this country by houses of unquestioned reputation.

Burberrys are English in every detail—and were the first English overcoats to be imported into America, twenty-one years ago.

A Name Known to Six Continents

Long before the first Burberrys were sold here, they had an international reputation. The name Burberry meant the highest English standard in workmanship, in case and manliness of design, in combined lightness and warmth, in selected wools such as Shetland or Cheviot, and in beauty and color of fabric.

We now have a selection of Burberrys exactly suited to the requirements of the American man who buys with discrimination and judgment. They are coats with inherent distinction backed up by the tradition of the best-known overcoat house in the world. Let us show you our Burberrys today.

The real test of an overcoat

It's when the biting November winds sweep up and down the Avenue that the soft fleecy woolens of Brokaw overcoats seem most desirable. They're always smart and comfortable. But it takes the test of bitter cold to make one realize the reserve of warmth contained in those handsome Brokaw fabrics. The wearing qualities are unusual, too, for the sturdy woolens are tailored with all the traditional Brokaw skill. $30 and up.

HALT $12,000,000 WILL SUIT TRIAL

CASE GOES OVER TO DEC. 22

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Following a conference of lawyers, Surrogate George A. Slater of Westchester County today adjourned the trial of the contest over the will of the late Miss Emily A. Watson of White Plains, who left $12,000,000, until Dec. 22, when it is expected a compromise settlement will be effected.

The will is being contested by five cousins and several infant heirs who are represented by guardians. The principal contestants are Harold Watson Sanders, Mary Watson Foster, Frances Watson Carothers and Tennessee Taylor Watson Owen, cousins.

Thirty-three attorneys filed notices of appearance. It was reported after the conference of attorneys that a fund of $1,000,000 is to be contributed by various heirs under the residuary clause in the will to effect a settlement with the contestants.

Under the terms of the will Miss Watson left $500,000 to hospitals and charitable institutions in Manhattan and Brooklyn. There were eighteen of these institutions named in the special fund and the legacies range from $25,000 to $75,000. This special fund will not be affected by the settlement.

Among the principal beneficiaries under the will is the Countess Pauline Andree de la Mettries of Paris, who drove an ambulance at the front during the World War. Others named in the will are the Countess's brother, George Pratt de Gasquet James, of Dinard, France; Countess Victoir Nell of Paris, John Watson Dwight of Brooklyn and his three sisters, Jean and Lucia King Dwight of Albany and Mrs. Harriet Bailey of Mechanicsville, N. Y.

The estate, since the contest started, has been under the control of Henry R. Barrett of White Plains and Frederick P. Close of Tuckahoe as temporary administrators. Owing to the rise in the stock market during the past few days, the value of the estate, it is said, has increased more than $500,000. As soon as all the settlement papers are signed the objections to the probate of the will will be withdrawn and it will be admitted to probate in the regular way.

Six million members of the Christmas Club, an incorporated organization to promote saving for Christmas, have banked money totaling $243,855,840 so far this year, according to a statement yesterday from headquarters of the Christmas Club at 45 West Forty-fifth Street.

According to detailed figures, members in Manhattan have saved $8,400,000, while those in Brooklyn have saved $9,681,860. Residents of Queens have put $3,900 000 in Christmas money aside in this manner, while the total laid away in the Bronx in this manner is $2,840,000, according to the statement of the club, which said:

"Starting about the middle of next month and before the middle of January, approximately 6,500,000 members will have enrolled in the new Christmas clubs for the calendar year of 1925. These accounts are opened at the bank, trust company or financial institution and the members select the class of payments best suited to their individual requirements and continue the payments in the classes selected for a period of fifty weeks. There are no fines, no dues and all the money is returned by the bank in one lump sum about two weeks before Christmas.

"It has been conservatively estimated that over 2,000,000 new permanent savings accounts have been opened as a direct result of the Christmas Club idea. The plan has encouraged saving on a systematic basis through the unique method that it offers, and while in its early stages it met with considerable criticism on the part of many bankers, there are few, if any, today that do not admit it has been the means of encouraging thrift on a tremendous scale."

WILL OPEN CUT-OFF TODAY.

Railroad and Public Officials to Participate in Celebration.

Ceremonies planned by the New York Central for today include an inspection trip over the twenty-eight miles of double track railroad, the running of the first train over the new high level bridge south of Castleton, N. Y., named the "A. H. Smith Memorial Bridge," and a luncheon at Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany.

WIDOW WINS $35,000 SUIT.

Mrs. Dorothy D. Drisko got a verdict for $35,000 in the Richmond County Supreme Court yesterday for the loss last March of her husband, Ralph Drisko, who was washed off the steamer Lillian Luckenbach of the Luckenbach Steamship Company, which was en route from New York to Panama. The verdict is one of the largest of its kind recalled.

Drisko was second mate. He was ordered forward by Captain William Braun in a high sea to make fast a hawser, according to the plaintiff's case. Mrs. Drisko contended that he should not have been sent without proper provision for his security and also that there was not proper effort to save him after he went overboard. Captain Baum denied that he sent the mate forward, but said he went of his own accord; he also claimed that it was impossible to save him in so high a sea.

FILIPINOS RESOLVE FOR INDEPENDENCE

Legislators, Meeting as a Commission, Want It to Be "Complete and Immediate."

ANSWER SECRETARY WEEKS

Resolution Asserts Government Is Stable and Delay Hurts Americans and Filipinos.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Although the Philippine Legislature adjourned last week without taking action on a resolution providing for the adoption of a Constitution, preliminary to calling on Congress to give independence to the islands without delay, the members of the Legislature who also constitute the Philippine Independence Commission, met yesterday in Manila and adopted a resolution demanding "immediate, absolute and complete independence."

The failure of the Legislature to pass the independence resolution was attributed here to the election of President Coolidge, who opposes Philippine independence in the immediate future.

The action of the Independence Commission appears to have been a reaction to recent press dispatches, quoting Secretary Weeks as indicating that the independence agitation had subsided under assurances that the Coolidge Administration would not undertake any legislation affecting the autonomy or self-government of the islands that was not approved by the Philippine people and their representatives. The cable message from Manila to the Philippine Press Bureau in Washington contained some introductory paragraphs indicating that the adoption of the independence resolution was the outcome of the statements attributed to Secretary Weeks.

The message, as given out by the Philippine Press Bureau, reads:

MANILA, Nov. 19.—The members of the Philippine Legislature, sitting in convention as members of the Philippine Commission of Independence, unanimously adopted a resolution reiterating the demand of the Filipinos for immediate absolute and complete independence, stating that this is the only solution acceptable to the Filipino people.

This resolution is significant, coming as it does immediately after the announcement in Washington that Administration officials did not think that the Philippines will sharply agitate the independence question during the coming short session of Congress and that the Secretary of War had no intimation that the pending Philippine Autonomy bill in Congress would be taken up unless there is an overwhelming public opinion in the Philippines in favor of the measure.

Following is the resolution adopted by the commission in session Nov. 18, 1924:

"Whereas, it has been and it is the desire of the Filipino people as solemnly expressed and reiterated on different occasions to enjoy immediate, absolute and complete independence;

"Whereas, the people and the Government of the United States have formally promised in the Jones law to recognize their independence as soon as a stable government can be established in the Philippines;

"Whereas, this stable Government has existed and does now exist with all the attributes required of old and new nations that have been formed in the course of history, such as capacity and ability to maintain such government, supported by the suffrages of the people and able to maintain order and guarantee the fulfillment of international obligations;

"Whereas, delay in the final solution of the Philippine problem operates to the detriment of the two peoples;

"Therefore, The members of the Philippine Legislature duly assembled in convention as the Philippine Independence Commission resolve to urge once more and hereby they do urge upon the people and the Government of the United States to redeem their formal and solemn pledge by recognizing the immediate, absolute and complete independence of the Philippine Islands since this is the only solution acceptable to the Filipino people;

"Resolved, Further, that the Third Parliamentary mission be instructed to transmit this resolution to the Congress and President of the United State."

AURANIA IN STORM; 4 PASSENGERS HURT

PRAISE CAPTAIN AND CREW

The 374 passengers who arrived yesterday from Liverpool and Queenstown on the new Cunarder Aurania got a double thrill on the voyage. On Nov. 12 the liner passed through the centre of a cyclone, and during the storm it escaped what appeared to be a danger of being rammed by another liner. Four passengers were hurt when the vessel swerved to starboard and came broadside on to the forty-five-foot waves to avoid risk of collision.

Captain George Taylor of 660 Sedgwick Place, Brooklyn, was walking on the deck at the time and fell into the lee scuppers. He got a sprained ankle. Michael McHugh of Chicago was sitting in his deck chair, which was securely lashed to an iron stanchion, and was thrown out of it by the lurching with the heavy sea. His nose was fractured. A similar accident happened to Mrs. A. W. Woodman, 60 years old, also of Chicago. Miss Alice Michelson was thrown to the deck and got a scalp wound. The injured had nearly recovered from their injuries when the liner docked yesterday morning, thirty-six hours late, except Captain Taylor, who had to be assisted down the gangplank to the pier.

The Aurania encountered rough weather from the time of leaving Queenstown, and early Wednesday morning she ran into a cyclone. Captain Reginald V. Peel, R. N. R., master of the ship, kept her steadily on her course. Shortly after 9 A. M., when most of the cabin passengers were at breakfast, the America of the United States Lines hove in sight on the port quarter and was gaining about three KLOTS on the Aurania. According to the passengers who were on deck, the two ships appeared to be less than a mile apart at the time they sighted each other, but the officers said the distance was greater.

The rule of the sea, officers explained, is that the ship that is overtaken must keep her course and the other vessel must keep clear of her, but in the weather that the two vessels were going through Captain Peel did not think it wise to take any risks of the vessels drifting too near each other. He blew one blast, signifying that he was altering his course to starboard, and in addition to putting the helm over he went full speed ahead on the port engine and dead slow on the starboard one, which brought the Aurania around quickly and left her for a minute or two broadside on to the seas, causing her to roll violently until the proper course was resumed.

The officers on the bridge of the America, it was said, would not be likely to have heard the blast of the Aurania's whistle, but they evidently saw the manoeuvre made, and altered the course of their ship to port so that all risk of collision in case of the weather getting thicker was avoided. The America was soon out of sight.

The storm lasted until Thursday morning, and the passengers were assisted in getting up and down the companionways by the bell-boys, who were formed into a "courtesy squad" by the gymnasium instructor and stood by on duty until the weather moderated.

The passengers spoke in the highest terms of Captain Peel and his officers and crew for the way in which the vessel was handled in the storm and signed a testimonial to be sent to the head office of the Cunard Line in Liverpool.

THE QUESTION OF IMPROVEMENTS

Expect much improvement in radio sets this year. Buy with eye and ear anticipating new standards. There has been constant improvement in construction, in results and in method of operation. For example:

The Sleeper Monotrol has turned a complicated instrument into an everyday family convenience by eliminating the customary and confusing multiplicity of tuning dials.

The Sleeper Monotrol has made good reception possible in all localities, using either loop or aerial and either dry or wet cell tubes and batteries.

To our best knowledge the MONOTROL Type 54 embodies more improvements than ever have been added to a single set at any stage of previous development.

Type 54

The New Sleeper MONOTROL

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

THE MOST Perfect RADIO SET IN AMERICA

Twenty-four important improvements have been added to the Sleeper Monotrol Type 54.

A new type of tuning dial is calibrated in wave lengths. Simply turn to an indicated wave length and you get your station.

The advantages of tuned radio frequency have been added to advantages of the Inverse Duplex System. The noisy detector tube has been eliminated—replaced by the Sleeper Rectiformer.

In fact, so much that is good has been added that we cannot tell you all in this space. Write for booklet mentioned above and, by all means, see, hear and operate the Monotrol before you buy a set of any kind. Downward Reaction on Stock Exchange, Largest Transactions Since Election Period.

A further advance in stock market prices at the opening yesterday, under buying orders coming both from Wall Street and from outside quarters, invited the largely increased realising sales which always appear when the pace of an advance has grown rapid, and a general reaction in prices followed. The day's total transactions slightly exceeded the largest business done on any other day this month. On the Stock Exchange, any violent advance is watched, with a view to such change of position, by two separate groups; the speculative holders of stocks who had bought at prices well below those now prevalent, the professional speculators who wish to grasp the moment for selling stocks at the top and buying them in at lower prices. Both groups had a hand in yesterday's reaction.

The principle governing such sales is simple; it is based on recognition of the fact that, to the extent that buying of stocks for speculative purposes was a factor in the advance, the purchasers intend at some point to realize on their holdings, and that the experienced observer may discover, by test or observation, when that decision is likely to be taken and whether it will not be accelerated by a check to the rising prices. It hardly need be said that such quick reversal of form is the first of safeguards to such a market as this month's. It is the surest preventive to an "inside" or "outside" speculation which might otherwise (as it has done in some years of Wall Street infatuation) break all reasonable bounds.

At the present time Wall Street is not infatuated. It has not lost its head; neither, to all appearances, has the general public. A halt like yesterday's in a fair, continuous movement which has put up even "average prices" 7 per cent. in three weeks and 10 or 12 per cent. in a month, always gives opportunity for cool reconsideration of the whole position. That makes it possible to learn how much of the buying orders came from people who meant to keep their stocks and how far, therefore, the orders themselves were based on a longer view of the general situation.

Yesterday's early advances on the Stock Exchange ran from one-half point to two or three; most of them were cancelled under the heavy selling pressure of the afternoon, and numerous active shares ended at net declines of a point or more. Yet the day's changes were extremely irregular; some stocks gained ground substantially while others lost, and the final differences in the "averages" were less than a third of 1 per cent. Today's market will measure the influence, on the recent buying movement, of the mere sight of rising prices. The bond market held steady yesterday, with a fair recovery even in United States Government bonds. Money rates went no higher.

It is to the steel trade that watchers for signs of general trade expansion habitually look. To what extent that trade had or had not, before election day, realized the hopes of midsummer, most people know. October's output was 60 per cent. above July's, but was still 28½ per cent. below last March and 13 per cent. under October, 1923. This was recovery, but not resumption of large activity. Even a week ago The Iron Age ascribed the smallness of the Steel Corporation's October gain in orders mostly to "the decline in buying just before election" and to "the loss of business in the effort to advance prices."

Yesterday's mid-week reports from the industry, however, show visible speeding-up. The past week's continuance of the very large orders for iron has brought the three-weeks' total purchases to the unusual figure of a million tons—enough to engage the furnaces, at the present rate of output, up to April 1. In finished steel also, the buying movement "gathered momentum last week," with orders for 1925 delivery increasing. This is a wholly satisfactory picture; it indicates expansion beginning in a normal and wholesome way, not with an inrush of speculative orders. Presumably it points the way to the movement of other industries.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 19, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money was firm at 2½ per cent. all day. There was only a small supply of city funds in the market, out-of-town funds alone being responsible for filling the bids. Time money was quiet and without variation from earlier quotations, though there was also especially keen inquiry for the longer dates. Acceptances hardened ⅛ @¼ for short and long periods, and call loans advanced ¼ to 2¼ per cent. Demand had been very light, dealers stated, and in order to move bills which have been coming in much faster than the demand more attractive discounts had to be offered purchasers.

TREASURY PLANNING BIG REFUNDING DEAL

Government in Next Six Months to Take Up $1,500,000,000 in Certificates.

Some Bankers Think New Bonds May Be Issued to Take Care of Maturities.

The United States Treasury Department is at work on plans for refunding within the next six months about $1,500,000,000 of Treasury certificates, and of this operation about $500,000,000 to $700,000,000 will be done through New York institutions. The program will be the largest undertaken by the Treasury Department in many months.

The first peg to which this financing will be tied is Dec. 15 next and the second is March 15, on each of which dates the Treasury will receive income tax instalments and, in addition, will receive on Dec. 15 nearly $100,000,000 from foreign countries in payment of interest and amortization of their debts to the United States Government.

In the past Secretary Mellon has financed the meeting of maturing certificates through the issuance of new certificates at steadily lowering rates of interest, such issues taking up part of the maturing issues and the rest being made up out of other Treasury revenues. Similar action probably will be taken in the present instance, according to most bankers, although some reported the likelihood of a new long-term bond issue of as much as $2,000,000,000, proceeds of which would take care of early maturities and would also be available for taking up maturing Third Liberty 4¼s, due in 1928.

The Government's maturities on Dec. 15 consist of $214,000,000 of 4¼ per cent. certificates and $193,000,000 of 2¾ per cent. certificates. On the same date it will receive $91,655,000 from Great Britain, of which $23,000,000 will represent amortization and $68,655,000 interest on its debt; $179,325 from Finland; $38,903 from Hungary, and $80,450 from Lithuania, all in keeping with their debt funding programs.

On March 15, the next big financing day, the Treasury will have to meet nearly a billion dollars of maturities, consisting of $807,000,000 of 4¼ per cent. notes and $400,000,000 of 4 per cent. certificates.

In the meantime the Treasury Department is buying up its Third Liberty 4¼s at a rate of $250,000,000 a year or more, recently having reduced the total outstanding to below $3,000,000,000, and, at the present rate, will have scaled down the issue to $1,000,000,000 or less by 1928, when the issue is made finally payable.

BAVARIAN CITIES PLAN LOAN.

Consolidated Bond Issue May Be Floated in New York.

A consolidated city loan to be obtained in New York is the aim of sevepal cities in Bavaria, according to advices received yesterday in the financial district. The plan was said to be similar to that under which the Associated Municipalities of Finland obtained $3,000,000. To make the plan successful, it was understood that approval would be sought first from the German Central Government, which is exercising a close watch over German municipal financing, before asking New York bankers to underwrite the proposed issue.

Among the cities mentioned as part of the plan were Munich, Augsburg, Nuremberg, Wuersburg and Regensburg.

CITIES SERVICE EARNINGS.

Gross earnings of the Cities Service Company for the year ended Oct. 31 were $17,289,853, compared with $16,592,772 in the previous year, while net earnings were $16,650,044, compared with $16,077,141. Net to stock and reserves was $14,600,646, which is 2.87 times the preferred dividends, compared with $13,453,399 for the previous year, or 2.70 times the preferred dividends.

The company's net to common stock and reserves was $9,514,435, equivalent to $20.65 a share on the average amount of common stock outstanding, compared with $8,477,409, or $18.23 a share, in the preceding twelve months.

PRICES FOR PIG IRON AND STEEL ADVANCE

MILL OPERATIONS EXPAND

Roads Give Heavy Orders for Rails and Freight Cars—Shipyards' Activity Grows.

Increased demand for pig iron and heavy forms of finished steel were the outstanding developments in the iron and steel markets of the last week, according to the leading trade reviews. This situation resulted in a general upward price movement, according to the Iron Age. Advances of from 50 cents to $2 a ton were reported in pig iron, $2 in plates, structural steel and steel bars, and $3 in strips and other forms of steel. Approximately 1,000,000 tons of pig iron have been reported sold since Nov. 1, 450,000 tons of it during the week. Furnace operators, it is said, show a determination not to sell their product at the recent low prices. In view of the advances in pig iron, more attention is being paid to foreign iron, and, unless prices are advanced abroad, it is predicted that heavy importations of foreign pig iron may develop.

"The bulk of the bookings in steel was also in prices ruling before the advances, and 1924 requirements are now pretty well satisfied," says the paper. Limited purchases were also made for delivery early in 1925. Demand for first quarter protection is increasing and there is some mill maneuvering to accept contracts as matters of business expediency, but only for three months. The situation is making for strength in the new price levels.

"Mill operations are expanding. Ingot output in Pittsburgh and nearby districts is 65 per cent. of capacity, against 60 per cent. a week ago. Three more blast furnaces were blown in in the Chicago district.

"Steady expansion in railroad buying continues a feature. The Santa Fe program for 1925 will require 100,000 tons of rails and 25,000 tons of bridge work. The Nickel Plate is in the market for 20,000 tons of rails. Rail bookings of the week totaled 40,000 tons.'

The Iron Trade Review says:

"So far as finished steel is concerned, considerable tonnage has been driven in by the mills prior to raising prices, but it is apparently the strength of expectations of future business, rather than orders immediately at hand, that has been the predominating influence. A possible exception to this condition is furnished by Chicago, where mill capacity now is well booked in heavy materials for several months ahead. Steel works operations show betterment this week, after a more or less static condition for the last month. Chicago is 5 per cent. higher. Keen competition for nails and wire products between the Steel Corporation and independent mills has developed in the Western markets.

"Railroad car orders in the first two weeks of November exceeded 10,000, or more than double the total for all October. Orders of the last week have totaled more than 6,000. Shipbuilding exhibits more activity. The Isthmian Line, a subsidiary of the Steel Corporation, is negotiating for five large tank ships and the Matson Line for a passenger boat. One lake ore freighter has been placed and two others, one of which is for the Steel Corporation, are being figured on. The composite this week on fourteen representative iron and steel products is $39.21. This compares with $38.79 last week and $38.56 the preceding week."

THESE BONDS ARE LISTED ON THE CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE

The following information is summarized by Mr. M. W. Stroud, President, from his letter to us, and from auditors' and appraisers' reports and other reliable sources:

BUSINESS: Central Iowa Power and Light Company will own and operate the electric and gas properties now owned and operated by the Citizens Gas and Electric Company, Cedar Valley Electric Company and Northern Iowa Gas and Electric Company, now furnishing, without competition, electric light and power in forty-seven communities in central and north central Iowa, including the cities of Waterloo, Hampton, Charles City, Eagle Grove, Clarion and Humboldt. The Company will also manufacture gas in Waterloo and Eagle Grove, and will distribute it in these cities and in Cedar Falls. The total population of the territory to be served by the Company is estimated at approximately 200,000, and the aggregate number of gas and electric customers is in excess of 35,000.

SECURITY: These Bonds will be secured by a direct mortgage on all the fixed property to be owned by the Company, subject only to the First Mortgage Gold Bonds (now outstanding in the amount of $6,500,000), to bonds hereafter issued under the conservative restrictions of the first mortgage, to purchase money liens and to liens existing on after acquired property. The total funded debt to be presently outstanding, including these Bonds, will be $7,500,000. The reproduction cost new, less accrued depreciation, of the property to be owned by the Company, as recently determined by independent public utility engineers and appraisers, is $14,189,857.

EARNINGS: The earnings of the properties to be owned by Central Iowa Power and Light Company, for the twelve months ended August 31, 1924, were as follows:

Gross Earnings	$1,912,386
Operating Expenses (including current maintenance and taxes other than Federal Income Taxes)	1,130,660
Net Earnings	$ 781,726
Annual Interest Charges on outstanding First Mortgage Bonds	$ 390,000
Balance	$ 391,726
Annual Interest Charges on 7% General Mortgage Gold Bonds (this issue)	70,000

The balance of Net Earnings as shown above is thus more than FIVE AND ONE-HALF TIMES the annual interest requirements on all outstanding Bonds of this issue.

MANAGEMENT: The Company will be controlled by The American Gas Company, which has had a long and successful experience in the operation of public utility properties. The American Gas Company controls and operates electric light and power and gas properties located in seven states, serving a population estimated at 1,000,000, including The Philadelphia Suburban Gas and Electric Company; The Luzerne County (Pennsylvania) Gas and Electric Company; the Rockford (Illinois) Gas Light and Coke Company, and the Burlington (Vermont) Light and Power Company. The Central Iowa Power and Light Company is thus assured of efficient management of its properties.

These bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us, and subject to the approval of all legal details by our counsel. It is expected that interim receipts of the Trustee, exchangeable for definitive bonds when prepared, will be ready for delivery about November 25, 1924.

All legal details in connection with this issue are subject to the approval of Messrs. Pam & Hurd, Chicago, for the Bankers, and Messrs. Townsend, Elliott & Munson, Philadelphia, for the Company. All properties have been reported upon and valued by Day & Zimmermann, Inc., Engineers, Philadelphia.

Books and accounts have been audited by Arthur Andersen & Co., Chicago, as to the properties owned by the Northern Iowa Gas and Electric Company, and by John Heins & Co., Philadelphia, as to the properties now owned by the Citizens Gas and Electric Company and the Cedar Valley Electric Company.

Hubbard, Eldredge & Miller, Inc.

First Mortgage Fifteen-Year 7% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

To be dated Nov. 1, 1924. To mature Nov. 1, 1939.

Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, registerable as to principal only. Authorized $1,000,000. To be presently outstanding $850,000. Interest payable May 1 and November 1, without deduction for normal Federal Income Tax not in excess of 2%. Redeemable in whole or in part on any interest payment date upon thirty days' notice at 105 and accrued interest. The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, Trustee.

The mortgage will provide for a sinking fund requiring payment to the Trustee annually, commencing on May 1, 1926, of an amount equal to 10% of the net earnings (as defined in the mortgage) of the Company for the preceding fiscal year up to $100,000, plus 20% of the balance of such net earnings; provided, however, that in no year shall such annual sinking fund payment be less than $25,000, nor shall the Company be obligated to pay in any one year more than $50,000. Based upon average earnings during the past five years, it is expected that the sinking fund payments will be sufficient to retire all of the bonds presently to be issued before maturity.

Mr. L. D. Eldredge, who is to become President of the new company, has summarized his letter in part as follows:

Business: Hubbard, Eldredge & Miller, Inc., is to be incorporated for the purpose of effecting a consolidation, through the acquisition of their principal assets, of the businesses of Hubbard, Eldredge & Miller of Rochester, New York; the Binghamton Chair Company of Binghamton, New York; the Parkersburg Chair Company of Parkersburg, West Virginia and the Peru Chair Works of Peru, Indiana. These four companies have been engaged for a long period of years in the manufacture of chairs, couches, day beds, etc., generally known to the trade as furniture seatings. The products of these companies enjoy an excellent standing in the trade and are sold throughout the United States to leading furniture retailers. Hubbard, Eldredge & Miller, of Rochester, whose management will direct the affairs of the new company, have been in business for over forty years and hold a leading position in the production of high grade seatings.

Security: The bonds will be secured by a direct first mortgage on all the fixed assets of the Company, comprising four manufacturing plants and their equipment, which, on the basis of the appraisal made by Manufacturers Appraisal Company, have a reproduction value less depreciation as of October 1, 1924, of $1,473,451. The consolidated balance sheet as of October 1, 1924, certified to by Messrs. Seidman & Seidman, after giving effect to the sale of these bonds and the appraisal of the fixed assets as set forth above, shows tangible assets, after deducting all indebtedness other than these bonds, of $2,602,206, which is equivalent to more than $3,060 for each $1,000 bond presently to be outstanding.

Earnings: The average earnings after depreciation and before Federal Income taxes, of the four companies, the assets of which will be acquired by the new company, for the five years from 1919 to 1923, inclusive, as reported by Messrs. Seidman & Seidman amounted to $299,669 or 5.03 times interest requirements on this issue of First Mortgage Bonds.

STOCK SPECULATION UNCHECKED BY BANK

RISE HAD BEEN RUMORED

Money Situation, Bankers Say, Has Changed but Little Since the Election.

Stock traders were deeply interested yesterday in a rumor that the Federal Reserve Bank of New York planned through the medium of its rediscount rate to take instant action designed to check speculation in securities. The board of Directors of the bank met yesterday afternoon, but it adjourned after a brief session with the information that no action of any kind had been taken.

No retarding influence has been experienced by stock trading since the election which swept away many uncertainties away and gave the market clear sailing ahead. But early this week Wall Street began to hear vague rumors of the Federal Reserve Bank increasing the rediscount rate and, by yesterday nearly every brokerage house in the financial district was concerned. Bankers, however, seemed to be little interested. The money situation, they said, had not changed appreciably, and the use of the rediscount rate to meet every little outburst of speculation was not generally expected by them.

As described by bankers, the money condition had undergone only slight change since election day. There has been only a moderate increase in commercial demand, the weekly total of bills discounted in this district being still about one-quarter of the corresponding total for the same week of last year, and increased brokerage loans were said to be insufficient to do more than take up some of the money slack.

The surplus of money over actual needs in the New York money centre was estimated as high as $700,000,000, as of Nov. 8. Increased requirements since then were said to have only a part of this, and business both in a commercial way and in security dealings could be financed for some time to come, it was stated, without causing any great change in money rates. In the market yesterday, money appeared to be a shade softer. Six months' money was quoted at 3½ per cent. bid, as against 3¾ per cent. the day before, and business in commercial loans and in other classifications was said to be dull.

Great importance is attached by Wall Street to the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate, which now is accepted as a barometer of credit conditions. Bankers said yesterday that the central institution would not be obliged to try to stop speculation. The institution's problem, it was explained, was one of measuring credit conditions in a broad way and of fixing its rediscount rate in accordance. A fairly general increase in business, it was said, would be necessary before the bank's directors would find it necessary to take action, and such action would be designed not for the purpose of checking speculation but of bringing the Reserve Bank quotation in line with open money market rates.

RUMORS OF BUYING BY VAN SWERINGENS

With the arrival of O. P. Sweringen in New York yesterday to continue work on the leases which have been holding up the proposed Nickel Plate merger, rumors of the buying of minority holdings were rife. It was reported that the buying of the stocks of the roads interested in the merger during the last few days had been by sources which bought for the Van Sweringen interests several months ago.

Several railroad financiers stated that the Van Sweringens, finding difficulty in putting the leases through, were trying to get possession of as much of the minority stock as possible. It is definitely known that representatives of the Cleveland interests were in New York this week trying to obtain more proxies. Although the prices the Van Sweringens would have to pay in the open market are said to be above what they paid for their original holdings in the various railroads, it is pointed out that such a policy might be the best for them in the long run.

So far as could be learned yesterday, the conferences of counsel for the various roads during the last three or four weeks have failed to result in a plan which would be agreeable to all of the railroads interested. The difficulty in the case of the Erie is said to be even greater than that of the Père Marquette, and efforts to arrive at some agreement has shifted from the Père Marquette to the Erie. It is now believed that in case a satisfactory lease for the Erie is obtained it will most likely meet with the approval of the Père Marquette.

Late yesterday afternoon O. P. Van Sweringen conferred with E. N. Brown, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Père Marquette. This was interpreted in the financial district as an indication that another revised plan might be submitted to the Père Marquette soon.

F. J. Lisman, railroad banker, in a statement issued yesterday, predicted that the Van Sweringen merger of the Nickel Plate System would not be consummated within a year. "With reference to the much discussed Nickel Plate consolidation, hearings must cover much new ground, develop new precedents and drag over a very long period," he said. "We doubt whether a final decision may reasonably be expected within a year."

This statement was made in a discussion of the railroad situation as a whole.

CUT LIGHT AND POWER COST

Michigan Company Goes Back to Pre-War Rates.

Prices for electric light and power provided by the Consumers' Power Company of Michigan will be returned to their pre-war levels under the terms of the 18 to 20 per cent. reduction announced yesterday by the company at Battle Creek, Mich.

Reduction in power and light rates in the last two years have been effected by numerous utility companies principally as the result of increasing consumption which has brought with it an "automatic" reduction in costs of production. The reductions have been further made possible by higher plant efficiency per unit of production with corresponding fuel conservation and lower operating expenses.

DELAY ACTION ON DIVIDEND.

St. Louis & San Francisco Payment to Come Up Dec. 3.

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway considered the question of a dividend on the common stock yesterday, but took no definite action. Chairman E. N. Brown of the board of directors, said that action had been deferred until a meeting of the entire board, Dec. 3.

Dividends on the preferred stock were inaugurated on Oct. 1 last, at the rate of 6 per cent.

Canada Exports Less Wood Pulp.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19.—Canada's exports of wood pulp totaled $40,170,357 during the year ended October, 1924, compared with $47,159,892 in 1923, according to a Government report today.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Market Dull, Rates Only Slightly Changed—Argentine and Uruguay at New Highs.

Business in the foreign exchanges dropped into a quiet and uninteresting session yesterday, fluctuations in rates, on the limited volume, being evidence that bankers and dealers had taken a breathing spell from the furious pace which had marked the trading of the last month. The tone of the market was firm, nevertheless, and the demand strong enough to offset the liquidating sales and commercial paper offered.

Sterling, from a point fractionally up from Tuesday, dropped 9-16 cent, to $4.62 7-16, with a small recovery at the close. French francs gained one-half point at 5.24 cents, as did Italian lire and Spanish pesetas, but the Swiss, Belgian and Holland remittances were uniformly firm and without change. The Chinese currencies advanced ¾ to ⅞ cent, while the Indian and Japanese rates were firm.

South Americans continued strong, importers' requirements lifting Argentine and Uruguay to new highs for the year, the Montevideo bill coming within a narrow margin of par. The Canadian dollar went to a premium of 1-64 of one per cent.

LIQUIDATION OF BONDS.

Liquidation of bonds as a result of the quickening in demand for money was said yesterday by the National Bank of Commerce already to be in evidence. In its monthly discussion of market conditions, the bank said:

"In line with our expectations bonds held for temporary employment of funds have gradually come on the market. Current and prospective increases in money rates have been reflected in sharp declines in the prices of short-term Government securities, and Liberty bonds have declined because of liquidation of temporary holdings. High-grade bonds scarcely held their own, but the prices of the more speculative issues advanced moderately during the month, largely under the influence of recent active trading in securities.

Four New Red Bank Oil Directors.

Four new directors were elected to the board of the Red Bank Oil Company, at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday, when the board was increased from five to nine members. The new directors are J. F. Shaw of the firm of Abbott, Hoppin & Co., A. W. Blumenthal of Hallgarten & Co., Judge J. D. Thrift of Sapulpa, Okla. and F. J. Ott of this city. The other directors are H. T. Lamb, F. J. Fohs, T. F. Cole, F. de C. Sullivan and I. D. Moseley, all of whom were re-elected yesterday.

Series D, 5s due 1954

Dated December 1, 1919 Due December 1, 1954

Interest payable June 1 and December 1 in New York. Callable at 105 and interest through December 1, 1940; thereafter at a premium decreasing each year to 100½ and interest during the last year of life. Bankers Trust Company, New York, Trustee.

TAX PROVISIONS: To be free of the present Pennsylvania Four Mills Tax. The Company will agree to pay interest without deduction for any Federal Income Tax not exceeding 2% which it or the Trustee may be required or permitted to pay thereon or retain therefrom and to reimburse the holders of these Bonds resident in Connecticut for the Connecticut Personal Property Tax not exceeding four mills per $1.00 per annum.

All information contained herein is furnished us by Mr. F. T. Hepburn, the President of the Company:

Penn Public Service Corporation owns and operates a comprehensive electric light and power system which, including that of its subsidiary, Erie Lighting Company, now serves over 65 communities located in nine counties of Western Pennsylvania. The territory served embraces over 5,700 square miles extending from the Maryland boundary to Lake Erie and the New York State boundary and includes the cities of Johnstown, Erie, Warren and Clearfield. The electric light and power business produces over 84% of the consolidated gross earnings. The present estimated population of the territory served is in excess of 600,000.

The First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds, of which $15,750,000 will be outstanding, are secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage upon the Seward and Rockwood power plants (present aggregate generating capacity 66,500 hp.) together with a substantial amount of other important property. The Bonds also cover the balance of the physical property owned by Penn Public Service Corporation subject to underlying bonds, of which a substantial part are deposited with the Trustee and $7,959,000 are outstanding with the public.

The large investment in the properties over and above the bonded debt is represented by over $15,000,000 face value of debentures and dividend-paying stocks.

Gross Earnings	$7,684,232
Operating Expenses, Current Maintenance and Taxes	4,002,340
Net Earnings	$3,681,892
Annual Mortgage Bond Interest (including this issue) and Miscellaneous Fixed Charges	1,425,827
Balance for Debenture Interest, etc.	$2,256,065

The proceeds of this issue of 5% Bonds will be used in part to refund $2,350,000 Series "B" 7½% Bonds which are to be called for payment on January 1, 1925, and to reimburse the Company in part for expenditures already made for property additions. The Supplemental Indenture creating the Series D Bonds will contain certain modifications of the mortgage effective as soon as all Series A, B and C Bonds are retired.

We have been identified with the bond financing of this Company and its principal predecessor for the past fifteen years.

We recommend these bonds for investment

FOREIGN DEMAND FOR OUR OIL GROWS

Fear That Higher Prices Will Result From Decreased Production Spurs Buyers.

GASOLINE STEADILY RISING

Jobbers Are Paying 10 Cents a Gallon and Finding It Hard to Fill Their Needs.

The recent sharp decline in the production of crude oil in the United States approximating 120,000 barrels in the daily average output for the last ten weeks and being 360,000 barrels daily less than the peak production of 1923, has resulted in an enormous increase in inquiries for crude and refined oil products from foreign countries, according to statements made in local trade circles yesterday. Foreign countries have been unusually heavy buyers of oil products for a year. The renewed demand has resulted from fear that higher prices will prevail for both crude and refined oil before the demand for the Summer of 1925 develops.

One jobber who does a big export business pointed out that he sold several large shipments of Navy specification gasoline Tuesday at 9½ cents a gallon, against 9 cents, the prevailing price about ten days ago. Yesterday, he added, he was forced to bid 10 cents a gallon for the same product to meet his current requirements, and found the product scarce even at this price. One large producer of gasoline in the Southwest admitted that he had orders for his entire output for the next two months. Most of this is being sold for export, which is unusual at this time of the year.

Further evidence of the continued downward trend in the production of crude oil in the United States was furnished yesterday when The Oil City Derrick made public figures covering production for the week ended Nov. 15. The publication estimated the daily average production at 1,931,240 gallons for that week, a decrease of 5,876 barrels, despite an increase of 12,000 barrels in Oklahoma's output from new wells.

Ninety small refiners in the mid-continent and Southwest territory are operating at full capacity compared with 50 per cent. operations a few months ago. These refiners have a capacity of 329,000 barrels of crude oil daily. They reduced their surplus stocks of gasoline 1,000,000 barrels in the week ended Nov. 8, when these stocks aggregated 37,690,632 gallons, or twelve days' supply.

Trade leaders explained that the unseasonal activity was due in part to the dry weather during October and thus far in November and to the unusually active demand for export gasoline.

In Northwest Pennsylvania, a "wild market" prevails for petroleum products, both crude and refined, due to the attitude of producers in refusing to sell their output at current prices. The producers expect that it will be only a question of a short time before Pennsylvania crude goes from 25 to 30 cents a barrel, and they are awaiting the advance. In the meantime the small refiners and the jobbers are forced to raise their bids from day to day in order to obtain oil to meet current requirements.

WEATHER CONDITIONS PROMOTE THE CROPS

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued at Washington yesterday in part follows:

"The week was rather warm and there was again no rainfall in the cotton growing States, except in the extreme Northern and Northwestern portions of the belt. The picking of cotton that remained in the fields made good progress quite generally, except for delay in Southern Illinois and Arkansas by rainfall and work made only fairly good progress in Oklahoma, where there was also some interruption by wet weather.

"The husking and cribbing of corn made good progress during the week under favorable weather conditions, although there was slight interruption by rain in a few sections. It was especially favorable for shredding in the upper Ohio Valley, where the dry weather had been somewhat unfavorable for this work. There was some delay in harvest in Illinois and Arkansas by rather frequent rains, but progress was rapid in the Great Plains States and the upper Mississippi Valley.

"Winter wheat was benefited by rainfall in much of the principal producing area, particularly in the lower Great Plains, the lower Missouri, middle Mississippi and Ohio Valleys, although more rain is needed in parts of the latter area. The crop showed improvement in Oklahoma and is in satisfactory condition in Kansas, except in the north-central portion where it is too dry. Rain was needed also in Nebraska and Iowa, but the plant grew well in Missouri. Rain in the middle Atlantic area favorably affected wheat and the crop did well generally in the more Western and Northwestern districts. It continued much too dry for winter grain crops, however, in the Southern States especially in the central and west Gulf areas, where plowing is difficult, and, where seeding has been done, germination is slow."

SEES PERILS IN INFLATION.

According to a business forecast made public yesterday by Dr. Lewis H. Haney, Director of the Bureau of Business Research of New York University, inflation is creating a dangerous spirit of optimism in all parts of the country and the public is participating in this inflation to an increased extent.

"Although business recovery is certain until next Spring, the outlook beyond that time is doubtful," Dr. Haney says. "Because of the condition mentioned. The only conditions which would make possible a sustained advance in commodity prices would be a further development of inflation, "resulting in continued advance in commodity prices," he said, ading that "it is to inflation that we must look for justification of the hopes of those who anticipate a prolonged business boom."

Evidences of the inflation, he points out, are to be found in the increasing per capita circulation of money, the continued increase in the expansion of bank credit, the fact that demand deposits are the highest of record, that total resources of national banks on Oct. 10 were the largest since November, 1920, and that there has been a rising trend in Federal Reserve note circulation.

CLEAR SKIES FOR ROADS.

Companies Now May Work Out Own Salvation, Says a Local Bank.

During the next two years at least, the railroads apparently will be free to work out their own salvation under the Transportation act, says the current number of The Index, issued by the New York Trust Company. The composition of the Congress just elected is such as to encourage this belief, the bank says.

"An attempt, it adds, "will doubtless be made to revive the Howell-Barkley bill, which failed by only a very small margin to pass the last Congress. There is, moreover, alight prospect of success for such an attempt. The attack by organized labor on the opponents of this bill met with very little success."

Erie Railroad Surplus.

Surplus of the Erie Railroad for the quarter ended Sept. 30 was $1,392,780, compared with $1,636,433 in the same period of last year. Surplus for the first nine months was $6,425,409, against $7,752,217 in the same period of 1923.

COTTON ESTIMATES AGAIN HIT PRICES

LOSS IS 11 TO 18 POINTS

A possibility that the Government report tomorrow would again follow the drift of private crop estimates and raise the indicated figures of this year's production operated against the cotton market yesterday. With steady liquidation of December contracts by holders who do not intend to take up the actual cotton now aggregating 200,000 bales in New York, all Tuesday's recovery disappeared and several positions sold at lowest figures of the week. New Orleans houses continued the purchase of December here against sales on that Exchange owing to a spread of 20 points between the two markets. Instead of being under New Orleans, as at present, normal relations based on the cost of transportation would call for half a cent premium on contracts in New York. Prices lost 11 to 18 points on the day.

Steadiness in Liverpool and the fact that December contracts in New Orleans continued above New York brought an initial advance of 10 to 15 points. A further gain abroad the first half hour took contracts from the market and a 16 to 20 point improvement over previous closing levels developed the first hour. This recovery attracted not only an increasing quantity of December liquidation but steady hedging operations by the South. With a crop estimate of 13,016,000 bales from a private agency in Memphis and increased figures from a sufficient number of private sources to make a further increase in the Government estimate tomorrow probable, reselling of cotton bought on Monday's decline became a feature of the session. With the exception of December, which touched 24.02, compared with 23.96 on Tuesday's opening, all months worked below previous low figures of the week. Each slight upturn found cotton for sale, and a spread of 90 points between December and May represented an extremely heavy premium on distant positions.

The weekly weather report showed picking still going on in various parts of the belt, but the protracted drought has injured vegetation and prevented plowing for Spring crops over a vast region of the Southern States. Lower temperatures prevailed yesterday, with killing frosts extending as far South as the Florida State line.

3 BRITISH CONCERNS IN COPPER MERGER

New Company Formed With $7,500,000 Capital to Take Over Plants, Says Trade Paper.

The merger of three large British copper manufacturers into one large organization, with a capitalization of $7,500,000, has been announced, according to The Daily Metal Reporter of this city. A new company has been organized to take over the three companies, to be known as the British Copper Manufacturers. The three companies are Vivian & Sons, Ltd.; Williams, Foster & Co., and Pascoe, Grenfell & Sons and Grice, Grice & Son, Ltd., which is affiliated with Williams, Foster & Co. The consolidation is expected to bring about economies in operation.

According to The Daily Metal Reporter, Vivian & Sons, Ltd., are large smelters of copper, lead and zinc and manufacturers of semi-finished metal products. The company controls several plants and was registered in December, 1914, with a capital of £850,000.

Williams, Foster & Co., and Pascoe, Grenfell & Sons, Ltd., of London, also are manufacturers of metal products. It was registered in 1892, with a capital of £400,000.

Grice, Grice & Son, Ltd., of Birmingham, are metal rollers. Registered in 1904 with a capital of £50,000.

FISHER BODY RESIGNATIONS.

Three Brothers Will Devote Their Time to General Motors.

Fred J. Fisher, Charles T. Fisher and Lawrence P. Fisher resigned from the directorate of the Fisher Body Corporation yesterday after a meeting of the board. A statement issued by the company said:

"William A. Fisher was elected President and Edward F. Fisher and Alfred J. Fisher were elected Vice Presidents. To fill the vacancies on the board, H. J. Eckenrode, President of National Plate Glass Company; Paul W. Seller, President of Ternstedt Manufacturing Company, subsidiary of Fisher Body Corporation, and Clarence R. Bitting, Assistant to President, Fisher Body Corporation, were elected Directors.

"As now constituted the officers of the Fisher Body Corporation are: President, W. A. Fisher; Vice President, E. F. Fisher; Vice President, A. J. Fisher; Treasurer and Chairman of Board, Louis Mendelssohn; Secretary, A. Mendelson.

"Fred J. Fisher, after the meeting, after pointing out that he and two of his brothers would give most of their time to the General Motors Corporation, said "the change in no way is indicative of any change in his or his brothers' interest in Fisher Body, their stock holdings being retained."

RAIL MERGER CONFERENCE.

Smaller Roads Are Not Invited to Meeting Here Tomorrow.

Heads of the smaller railroads have not been invited to attend the consolidation conference here tomorrow to consider the Eastern railroads. The New York Central, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania and the Nickel Plate will have representatives at the meeting, the location of which has not been made public.

All the smaller railroads, especially those in the East are interested in the outcome of this conference. One representative of a small railroad system suggested yesterday that his railroad had not been invited to participate in the meetings for fear that they would complicate a situation that was already very precarious.

"We would only add new problems," he said. "There are already enough questions for the "Big Four" to thresh out at the meeting."

Among the railroads which probably will be represented at the consolidation conference are the Delaware & Hudson, the Lehigh Valley, the Central of New Jersey, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the Reading.

BUYS ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT.

Illinois Central Railroad Places Contract Worth $3,000,000.

Equipment orders aggregating $3,400,000 have been placed with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The Illinois Central Railroad has contracted with the company for motor and control equipment to be used in connection with the electrification of the suburban service in Chicago which approximates $3,000,000. Orders for electric motor cars and trailers are expected to follow.

The W. S. Barstow Management Corporation of New York, has ordered a 15,000 kilowatt turbine and frequency changer for the Broad River Power Company. It will cost about $400,000 and it will be used at the new power station at Parr Shoals, near Spartanburg, S. C.

CUBA CANE SUGAR'S EARNINGS INCREASE

THE COMMON EARNS $8.92

The Cuba Cane Sugar Company's report for the year ended Sept. 30 makes a favorable comparison with that of 1922-23. The balance sheet indicates that the financial reverses of 1920 and 1921 have been overcome.

Gross receipts were $55,003,160, against $50,931,401 in the previous year, and net income was $7,961,427, against $7,586,276. The net was equal to $15.92 a share earned on the 500,000 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, against $15.17 reported earned a year ago. After allowing for the regular dividends on the preferred, which, however, were not paid during the last year, the company showed a balance equal to $8.92 a share for the 500,000 shares of no par value common stock, against $8.17 in 1922-23.

The balance sheet shows current assets of $23,704,440, against $22,220,370, and net current assets of $3,162,145, against $5,367,267. The profit and loss surplus on Sept. 30, after the setting aside of more than $4,500,000 for reserves, was $13,282,196, against $10,234,630 a year ago.

The consolidated profit and loss account for the last few years compare as follows:

Commenting upon trade conditions in his statement to stockholders, W. E. Ogilvie, the President, said:

"The 1924-25 world crop estimate of cane and beet sugar of Willett & Gray and other authorities is now placed at 21,700,000 tons. While this denotes an increase of 2,000,000 tons over 1923-24, everything indicates that this crop, like its predecessors, will be fully absorbed during the calendar year 1925.

"The World War greatly curtailed production in Europe, and the countries affected are only now in a position to restore their industries to a pre-war basis. This is the cause of the Continental increase of production. The counter-balancing factor, too often lost sight of, is that consumption suffered even to a greater extent than did production. World consumption in 1904 was 11,500,000 tons, which had increased in 1914 to 18,000,000 tons. On that basis of increase a world consumption of 25,000,000 tons would now have been reached but for the economic conditions prevailing during and after the great war.

"Increased production is necessarily slow. Consumption, on the other hand, is, to a great extent, limited only by supply and by the ability to purchase. With world conditions rapidly on the mend, consumption in a comparatively short time may well make up for years of enforced abstinence, and world consumption may attain the figures which natural growth of population and the increasing uses of sugar would indicate as possible. It may well be that the promise of increase for the coming year will not prove in excess of world requirements."

Rail Stock Oversubscribed.

Spencer, Trask & Co. of New York and the Canal-Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of New Orleans and Eustis & Jones of New Orleans announced that the $1,160,000 of Alabama & Vicksburg Railway Company capital stock offered yesterday at $120 had been oversubscribed. This stock represents 55¼ per cent. of the outstanding capital stock of the Alabama & Vicksburg Railway Company and comprises part of the holdings recently acquired by Spencer, Trask & Co. from the Sterling Trust, Limited, of London.

CORN IS STRONGER AS WHEAT WEAKENS

CORN REACHES HIGH POINT

Futures in Rye Are Easy to Lower —Oats Go Down and Then Up.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—The wheat market made a poor response to the strength in corn and its advance to a new high on the crop, and, while rallying at one time, closed about the bottom, with net losses of 1⅛@1¾ cents. Heavy profit-taking was in evidence and there was a lack of aggressive buying except by shorts. Sentiment among local traders has become more bearish, due to the failure of an active foreign demand to develop.

Export cali during the day was fairly good, with sales of 650,000 to 750,000 bushels, mainly to Greece. Kansas City handlers sold 750,000 bushels of hard Winter at the Gulf at 4 cents over the May and 200,000 bushels of Duluth Springs were taken, c. i. f. Buffalo. Bulges above $1.60 for May ran into selling orders and around $1.59 there was good support.

Closing of spreads between here and Winnipeg weakened the latter, the close there being 1¼@2½ cents lower. Minneapolis reported 225,000 bushels of cash wheat sold for shipment with the basis steady to 1 cent lower.

Late reports from the Canadian Northwest claimed that 70 to 75 per cent. of the Saskatchewan and Alberta crops have already left farmers' hands and that a large percentage of the balance is low grade and in bad condition. In view of the relatively light movement it is generally believed that the estimate is rather large. However, the movement this side of the international line promises to fall off materially after the close of navigation.

Primary arrivals today were 1,021,000 bushels; week ago, 3,810,000; last year, 3,026,000. Shipments were 1,881,000 bushels; week ago, 3,612,000; last year, 865,000.

Another wave of short covering and general commission house buying swept over the corn market and advanced the May to $1.25 and July to $1.25¾, a new high figure for the season. Found in the top figures there was an excellent class of profit-taking and the finish was on a strong reaction, with net gains of ⅝ to 2¼ cents, December leading. There is a fair sized short interest in the latter, and it is the opinion tonight that an Eastern line was to be covered tomorrow. December closed about 5 cents under the May, against 6¾ cents at the finish yesterday. Cash lots were ¾ to 1 cent lower as compared with December and new No. 4 white and yellow were booked to arrive about 1 to 1¼ cents under a delivery basis.

Primary arrivals today were 476,000 bushels; week ago, 630,000; last year, 1,006,000, and shipments, 214 000 bushels; week ago, 323,000; last year, 458,000.

Charters were made today of 450,000 bushels of rye from Duluth for Winter storage here. Rye futures were easy and 1⅞ to 1⅝ cents lower at the last and the statistical position is attracting less attention than of late.

Oats were 1 cent lower to ¼ cent higher at the last, with the market dominated almost entirely by the action of corn.

OIL CONSERVATION URGED BY DOHERTY

He Warns Petroleum Association That Our Reserves May Be Exhausted in 12 Years.

CALLS OIL MEN PLAIN BOOBS

If They Don't Set House in Order, He Says, Some One Will Do It With Dynamite or an Axe.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 19.—Henry L. Doherty of New York, head of the Cities Service organization, addressing the National Petroleum Marketers' Association annual convention here today said the whole oil industry is in a bad way and the public, not knowing enough about it to insist on correction, "will pay for all eternity," the price of the industry's wasted natural resources, its demoralization and its increasing competition.

"If our industry," Mr. Doherty said, "is on a proper basis and is being properly conducted, I cannot see why it should be constantly in trouble and why it does not enjoy greater public confidence and better financial credit. We scarcely emerge from one Government investigation before another one is inaugurated. Our chief occupation is answering questionnaires, sent out by some branch of the Government. We are not criminals, but if we cannot change these conditions, then I think we ought to admit that we are just plain boobs.

"To my mind, our business is basically wrong, and it can never be made right until we can provide a dependable supply of oil. To do this we must change the laws under which we work. The only other property or product from property which is under laws similar to the laws governing the production of oil is wild birds and wild animals, and what has happened to them is rapidly happening to our oil.

"Oil and gas belongs to the man who can capture it, and this means that we have absolutely no control over our production. Discovery of an oil pool results in a frenzied effort to exhaust it as rapidly as possible, without regard to the market.

"If we do not get our own house in order sooner or later some one else will attempt to do it with a stick of dynamite or an axe."

After calling attention to the estimate of the Geographical Survey that the remaining petroleum reserve of the United States approximate 9,000,000,000 barrels, and that the current rate of production is 750,000,000 barrels annually, Mr. Doherty declared that "we are devastating the reserves in this country at a rate which would exhaust them in about twelve years."

In the line of conserving the oil resources of the country, Mr. Doherty urged:

1. That no one should be permitted to drill for oil without first receiving a State permit to do so.

2. That nobody should receive a permit to drill for oil until an exploration district had been established.

3. That the exploration for oil should be restricted to that part of the exploration district one-half mile inward from the outer boundaries.

4. That the strip of one-half mile within the outer boundaries of the district should not be drilled until a period of one year after oil or gas had been found in commercial quantities or sooner, but not until the exploration district had been enlarged or another district had been established adjacent to it and that the contractions in the districts —if separate districts are formed—should not attempt to drill either half-mile strip until they had agreed upon a plan on which it should be drilled, and failing to agree upon a plan, then the State Engineer could specify the plan suggested by either contractor or a plan of his own.

5. That royalties should be paid to the trustees of the district and that they should settle with the individual land holders according to the calculated amount of oil or gas underlying each man's land.

The object of Mr. Doherty's address was to urge the industry to make such changes in the basic methods of producing crude oil that the raw product would not be dumped onto the market in an amount larger than the market's ability to absorb it. He urged that the industry undertake every oil company to develop as fast as possible the utilization of oil, and to secure the widest possible application for every use which is developed. He asked that support, encouragement and assistance be given to inventors and manufacturers of oil-burning apparatus.

Mr. Doherty expresses the opinion that current conditions do not warrant an advance in crude oil prices for some months to come. In connection with prices and overproduction, he said:

"Now a word about the overproduction of oil. Don't let us fool ourselves on that. Our overproduction cannot be measured by excess of production over consumption. Before we can have a satisfactory price structure we must not simply find a market for the oil which is now going into storage but we must find a market for this oil for superior uses and where the price will yield not only all our costs but a fair profit as well, and then we must find similar markets at similar prices for all of the oil that is now being used for inferior purposes, and by this I mean for purposes which cannot afford to pay substantially more than for coal. More than 50 per cent. of all the oil consumed is used for fuel purposes. A large part of this is just as much overproduction as the oil which now goes into storage. I doubt if anybody knows how much of this must be resold for other purposes before we can hope to establish a compensatory price structure.

"There was no justification for an increase in the price of crude oil either last year or the year before, and there can be no justification for it this year or at least not for several months. Oil producers are increasingly optimism. Any increase in drilling activities should be discouraged by everybody."

ASK FEDERAL CONTROL FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Senators who favored the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals are seeking the aid of Western Senators for a compromise Government plan of operation for the properties, to be submitted when Congress convenes next month.

At the same time Secretary Weeks is taking steps to ascertain the scope of his authority to contract for the temporary disposition of power generated at the plant, should Congress fail to make final disposition of the properties prior to completion of the Wilson Dam next July. Should Congress fail to dispose of the question, and should the Secretary find himself without authority to lease the output of the plants, they would lie idle.

Senator Norris of Nebraska has submitted a Government operation plan which he says he will press in the Senate, and leading advocates of the Ford bid, convinced that Mr. Ford has withdrawn from the competition, are trying to put together a plan having many features of the Norris proposal, but considerably amended.

Secretary Weeks has asked General Hull, Judge Advocate General of the army, for an opinion as to his powers in handling the properties. If that opinion should hold that he has no authority to make temporary contracts for power he probably will ask Congress to confer the authority on him if it should appear that Muscle Shoals legislation is not to be completed during the short session.

While there may be some difficulty in finding companies willing to make short term leases for all the power developed, near-by power companies are known to be prepared to take a very large part of it.

Secretary Weeks conferred today with Elon H. Hooker of New York, who has been at work for some time on a proposal for the creation of a gigantic chemical and industrial plant at Muscle Shoals. The conference was described as one of a series which have been held by the two men on various aspects of the Hooker offer for the properties. It was said that Mr. Hooker hoped to have his proposal in shape for submission to Congress at the coming session.

STUDY PRICE OF POTATOES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. — Freight rates are not the controlling factor in the price of potatoes, and are such as to allow wide distribution at centres of population far distant from the areas of production, the Bureau of Railway Economics announced today as a result of a general survey of the potato growing and marketing industry.

The survey, the bureau announced, shows that potato prices paid to the farmer have fluctuated as much as 225 per cent. of the minimum price, although the freight rates remained unchanged.

The bureau also found that the price of potatoes in potato growing areas, is frequently higher than the prevailing prices in cities far removed from the production centres.

Part of Complaint of Virginia, Minn., Is Upheld.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Freight rates on citrus and deciduous fruits, cantaloupes and melons, dried fruit, coffee, canned goods and preserves, and fresh or green vegetables from California to Virginia, Minn., were held by the Interstate Commerce Commission today to be unreasonable and prejudicial to Virginia.

The rates were found to exceed the rates contemporaneously in effect to Duluth, Minn. The Duluth rate basis was prescribed by the commission for use in the future.

Class rates from Western trunk line, central and trunk line territories to Virginia, Minn., were found to be not unreasonable or unduly prejudicial.

The commission also held that rates on various commodities from Ohio River crossings, New Orleans, La., and points in Western trunk line, central and trunk line territories to Virginia, Minn., were not unreasonable.

This "Crook" Is Versatile.

The current bulletin of the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc., calls attention to the operations of one of the most versatile "crooks" the local stores have had to deal with for some time. Not only did he attempt to cash a good-sized check drawn on a local trust company by forging the name of a well-known New York man from whose office he had stolen a checkbook, but he called up a local store recently in this man's name and offered to guarantee purchases that would be made by a "Harvard student" to the extent of $400 to $500. When the credit man of the store in question sent a guarantee blank to be filled out by the man who was supposed to have telephoned, the latter was astounded, and said that he knew nothing of the matter. The name of the "Harvard student" as given by the "crook" was the same as that used by the man who tried to cash the check.

Northern Mills May Not Follow.

Although reductions had been expected on Fall, 1924, lines of heavyweight cotton underwear, the special news letter of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers says it was hardly thought they would take the shape of the 11 to 13 per cent. decreases that were made early this week by two large Southern mills. Practically every number of both lines, including union suits and two-piece garments of the cotton ribbed type, are quoted below last year's prices. There are differences of opinion as to what to expect when wool and wool mixed goods are opened later on. One opinion holds that little or no change will be made, while it is asserted in another quarter that a substantial boost is contemplated. This is based on the upward trend of domestic wool prices. For Spring, one Northern mill has increased the price of men's lightweight cotton ribbed union suits 25 cents a dozen.

Gray Goods Sales Light.

Gray goods trading continued only fair in the local market yesterday. Printcloth business was put through in a limited way on the basis of 9¼ and 10½ cents, espectively, for 38½-inch and 64-60s and 39-inch 68-72s. Buyers again paid 8¾ cents for 38½-inch 60-48s, with some holders asking an eighth more for them. In the sheetings, sales of 40-inch 2.85-yard goods were reported at 14½ cents, with 10½ cents the best that could be done on 37-inch 48-square, four-yard cloths. Sales of the lighter 36-inch sheetings were made at 8⅝ cents for 3-yard, 8 cents for 5.50s and 7⅝ cents for 6.15s. Eleven cents, nominal, was the price of 72-80 pajama checks. Second hands are said to have sold 64-60 pajama checks at 8⅛ cents.

Says Notions Are Important.

It is a mistake to regard the notions department of a retail store as unimportant, Herbert N. Straus, secretary and treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., told members of the National Notion Association at its meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday. Mr. Straus has had charge of the notion merchandising at Macy's for years and said that store has far from regarded notions as unimportant. The main thing, he asserted, is that notion stocks must be complete, so that the goods are on hand when the customer wants them. He did not consider hand-to-mouth buying as applied to notions a good thing and set a six weeks' supply as the desirable purchase. Mr. Straus said that much of the discouragement in the notion trade is due to the influence of current styles which hamper notion sales. This, he added, was but a phase which in time would correct itself. Retail buyers and merchandise managers representing other local stores were also present at the meeting as guests.

Burlaps Were Dull Yesterday.

The local market for burlaps was dull yesterday, no more trading having been done than on the first two days of the week. Recessions in prices at Calcutta have given many buyers the opinion that near-by arrival goods will be lower and, in anticipation of this, they are not willing to trade. So far, at least, there have been no declines, and the prediction is that, because of the small stocks of spot goods in this market and the limited quantity of burlaps afloat, no drop will occur. Holders are very firm, and low bids by buyers are steadily refused. These were the prices quoted here yesterday by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc.:

	8-Ounce.	10½-Ounce.
Spots	9.20c	10.85c
Nearby arrivals	8.85c	10.40c

Dress Goods Headed for Rise?

While price advances in woolens and worsteds recently have been more or less confined to men's wear fabrics, there is considerable talk in the market now of increases in women's wear weaves. One well-known selling agent, summarizing what appears to be the general view of these mill representatives, says: "One mill may have a little more low price yarn than another, but if any business is done, it is only a question of time when they must all advance their prices." This agent added that tops going into 2.50 yarns recently cost $1.80 per pound, as against $1.50 last June. The yarns are quoted at $2.55, as against $2.30 in that month. He thinks tops are likely to go to $2 and the yarns to $2.80 and possibly $3.

Sound Judgment in Withdrawal.

A great deal of interest was shown yesterday in the local piece goods market over the report that British manufacturers of overcoatings had withdrawn all prices on their new lines. It was generally agreed that the action was based on sound merchandising principles and arose from factors that are just as strong in the wool and piece goods market here as in the British Isles. "I am glad to hear of it," said one of the leading manufacturers of overcoatings. "I regard it as an evidence of the sound judgment for which the British manufacturers have been noted. They are wrestling with the same problems that we are here and, to say the least, misery loves company." This manufacturers went on to say that he did not see how it was possible to avoid an advance of from 10 to 25 per cent., depending on the fabrics, in overcoatings for the Fall (1925) season.

Raw Silk Climbs Higher.

Raw silk quotations advanced further in the local market yesterday, making the total advance for the past two days about 10 cents per pound. Prices are now at the peak for the year, special double extras being held at $6.65 to $6.70 per pound. There has been more buying, with silk around $6.50 to $6.60, importers said yesterday, than when quotations ruled at $6 a short while ago. Predictions are that prices will move to the $7 level. Importers are buying quite heavily and the mills are beginning to cover their requirements into March of next year.

Do Not Agree on Gingham Prices.

News of the recent reductions in ginghams for Spring delivery was received with mixed feelings by the wholesale trade, according to the Market Service Letter of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association, which says: "Most factors expressing an opinion said it was a logical step that would create market confidence, impart a tone of stability and increase buying. Others, who appeared in the minority, held the reductions to be unwise. Some also expressed the belief that the reductions may tend toward complications, especially if retailers get the notion that the bottom has not been touched and that additional cuts can be expected. Such factors believe the lower prices will help buying to some extent, but will produce no rush. Another opinion was that a reduction at the opening of the season would have been more helpful. A still different group contends that more than a price reduction is necessary to bring about a pronounced revival of ginghams."

Too Much Stress on Price?

The contention is again being frequently advanced in the primary markets that retailers are laying far too much stress on price, to the neglect of quality and assortments. Emphasis is all the stronger at the moment because of the difficulties in advancing prices of which the manufacturers, particularly those of textiles, are now facing. The wholesalers contend that, if the stores would switch their sales appeals to quality and greater assortments, there would be opened up a large buying power that at present is not being tapped. They say that, as things are, the customer in many stores is forced to take the merchandise offered, when, if there were something better offered, it is more than likely that the purchase of the latter would be made. Retailers do not take into account enough, it was said yesterday, that "pride of possession" feeling which would influence many consumers, if it were properly stimulated.

WIFE DRIVEN OUT INTO COLD

For driving his wife into the streets on Tuesday, when the cold wave was near its worst, despite the fact that she was clad only in a nightgown, Daniel Relehan, a clerk living at 140 Vermilyea Avenue, was sentenced to three months in the workhouse yesterday by Magistrate Edward Weil in the Washington Heights Court.

Mrs. Relehan testified that her husband returned home shortly before 5 A. M., beat her and chased her to the street, where she was found by Patrolman Redmond. She said that she had haled her husband to the Family Court recently because he spent his money in drink and failed to support her and their two young children.

It shows that out of her total estate of $269,474 she left $150,000 to the Masonic Grand Lodge of Massachusetts to establishe a home for aged Masons in memory of her husband, Orlando Henry Davenport.

EXAMINES BAKERY MERGER.

Federal Trade Commission to See if Any Laws Were Violated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The Federal Trade Commission announced today that it was investigating the organization of the Continental Baking Corporation, which was incorporated at Baltimore on Nov. 6, and which, it is reported, contemplates merging several of the largest bread and cake baking companies in the United States.

According to the commission the Continental Company has an authorized capital stock of 6,000,000 shares, of which 2,000,000 shares are preferred stock of $100 par value, 2,000,000 shares are Class A common stock of no par value and 2,000,000 shares are Class B stock of no par value. Among the companies which, it is reported, are considering the question of merging are the United Bakeries Corporation, the Ward Baking Company, the General Baking Company, the Fleischmann Company of New York, the American Baking Company of St. Louis, the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company of St. Louis and the Grennan Bakeries, Inc., of Detroit.

It was stated that the commission was keeping in "close touch with the developments in this case and will act promptly if the facts develop that the laws have been violated."

HELD IN WAR STAMP CASE.

Special to The New York Times.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 19.—Rocco Bargoloneo, a merchant, was arrested last evening by local police in connection with the circulation of bogus war savings certificates, making the fourth arrest in Uniontown in the case.

According to the local police, some of the men under arrest say they cashed the stamps at the instigation of Fortunato Calabrok, who was held under $40,000 bail yesterday for trial in Pittsburgh.

Local Italians, who declare Calabrok directed operations of the counterfeiting ring in the East, say they were forced to dispose of the bogus stamps, paying him the same amount for the certificates that they received when cashing them at the local post office.

The arrest of the four Uniontown men has caused considerable excitement among rival Italian societies, and it is said reprisals may be expected.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

REPORT SYNDICATE BUYING

Sale of the Astor Estate Property, Fifty-seventh St. and Fifth Av., Rumored—Apartment Trading.

The realty market following the upward trend it has shown during the past couple of weeks was active in all its branches yesterday.

In addition to a number of sales closed several big transactions are pending. There were rumors of deals involving millions.

By far the most interesting negotiation pending involves the sale of the famous old Park Avenue Hotel, which occupies the block front on the west side of Park Avenue between Thirty-second and Thirty-third Streets.

The hotel, a seven-story structure, occupies a plot having an avenue frontage of 197.6 feet and 205 feet on the side streets.

It was built by the late A. J. Stewart as a hotel for working girls.

Its spacious rooms and high ceilings and its large public halls still reflect the ambition of the builder to make it an outstanding structural achievement, an ambition which was also responsible for the huge court yard with its floral and garden treatment. The property is still owned by the A. J. Stewart heirs.

There has been considerable buying by building interests in this district, other recent deals having been closed for new structures at the southeast and southwest corners of Madison Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street by Cheney Brothers and Belding Brothers, respectively.

Deal for Astor Estate Property.

Negotiations are also reported pending for the sale by the heirs of the late Baron William Waldorf Astor of the estate's property at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, adjoining the mansion of the late Collis P. Huntington on the Fifty-seventh Street end of the block.

The property consists of four dwellings, occupying a total frontage of 115 feet on the avenue and 150 feet on the street, valued at around $3,000,000.

A representative of the Astor estate stated yesterday that while many offers had been made for the property it was still owned by the Astor estate.

THE NEW

Steinway BUILDING

109—113 West 57th Street
106—116 West 58th Street

A 15 Story Office and Business Building

Publishing Houses

THE areas of the floors in the New Steinway Building are disposed so as to provide space especially suitable to the requirements of publishing houses and those in allied or similar lines.

Freight elevator service from an entrance inside the 58th Street side of the building permits deliveries to and receipts from trucks under cover, without confusion or annoyance to other tenants. A special note should be made of the light and ventilation.

The arrangement of floors shows intelligent planning by the architect. There can be no dark spots, as the windows are not only practically continuous around the building, but are unusually generous in size. Quiet offices are assured, and the floors are soundproof. A service of the highest standard; with equipment and facilities in keeping with the character of the building.

Leases are being made for occupancy during the Spring of 1925. We invite you to see the plans, and learn the details of the New Steinway Building.

We Pay a Full Commission

ONE of the reasons why buildings under our management rent quickly and satisfactorily is found in our policy of paying a full commission for leases negotiated in them by "outside brokers."

This policy is of great advantage to our owners. For it assures their buildings the active co-operation of brokers in general throughout the City, in addition to the efforts of our own renting men and the driving, directing power of our management executives who are personally responsible for getting results.

This effective combination has recently scored some astounding speed records in filling new buildings placed in our charge.
